A miniature steam locomotive, the Boilermaker Special, was created in 1940 and serves as the official mascot of the University under the supervision of the Reamer Club.

We'll remember the spirit in Purdue traditions

Remembrances of Purdue linger on for graduates.

Some of the traditions recalled later cause a smile to appear as one thinks of the "Lions" and of being a true "Boilermaker." Dates in the Sweet Shop, hectic rush week, excitement of a football game, the wearing of "pots," the fraternity pin—each has its place in a student's memories of the past.

Screaming, jumping up and down, even crying—these are the symptoms of the exciting maze known as “Hoosier Hysteria.”

Dee Allison, 1958's Outstanding Senior Woman, stands beside the Pump erected by the Reamers to honor a tradition.

Gold and black cards are flashed in the football afternoon sunlight by the freshman Block P Card Section.

*Purdue spirit is always on top -
win or lose
through any season*

Amid the flaming torches and colorful signs, Purdue fans enthusiastically cheer at a pep rally, "Go! You Boilermakers!"

Pledges of Pi Tau Sigma honorary sing at noon beneath the tall and stately pillars of the Executive Building.

Purdue spirit shines through in many ways—cheering at athletic events, singing carols at Christmas time, laughing with friends. This enthusiasm develops into a deep loyalty to the Alma Mater. A sense of belonging is established which leaves a warm glow inside of each Purdue graduate throughout his life.

Holding the Oaken Bucket, symbol of Purdue-Indiana rivalry, the football captains note that the P links exceed the I's.

Invigorated, refreshed—these two words describe the ice skaters on the Co-Rec Gym rink, first opened this winter.

Convocations beckon us to appreciate the arts

Classical music enthusiasts enjoyed the two excellent performances by the world-famous Danish National Orchestra.

Using quotations from Shakespeare's writings, Sir John Gielgud gave a drama reading entitled "The Ages of Man."

From her antics the audience agreed that Anna Russell didn't fit the stereotype of the proper English citizen.

The Purdue Edward C. Elliott Hall of Music is considered one of the culture centers of the Midwest. Besides being the largest auditorium in the world with a seating capacity of 6107, this hall is continually presenting the best in entertainment, ranging from concerts and musical variety shows to film lectures and speakers.

A Pulitzer Prize winner, Carl Sandburg has the distinction of being known as "poet of industrial America." His program consisted of poetry reading and ballad singing.

The New York City Center Ballet brought many innovations to the art of modern ballet in the United States.

Adapted for the stage, Patrick Dennis' best-selling novel, "Auntie Mame," has Sylvia Sidney playing the madcap aunt who raises her nephew in an uninhibited atmosphere.

Each Old Master who comes to the campus is escorted by hostesses and hosts for the duration of his visit.

Master minds of the professions visit the campus

A week in November was filled with discussions lead by a special group of guests known as Old Masters. Prominent people in their fields, they talked informally with students and faculty. Among the elite were Dr. Paul Hawley, Director of the American College of Surgeons and Donald Bridgeman, Presidential consultant on the Ford Foundation.

Walt Kelly, creator of Pogo, entertains Debris and Exponent staffs with drawings of his famous comic strip characters.

Floyd Starr, Old Master and founder of Starr Commonwealth for Boys, says, "There is no such thing as a bad boy."

Star performers magnetize enthusiastic crowds

To complete a perfect fall day of a football game and dining out, the students go to the evening Victory Varieties show, held in the Hall of Music. Some of the top names in the entertainment field come to perform. Such old timers as Benny Goodman and Fred Waring share honors with newcomers, the Kirby Stone Four and Warren Covington.

Fred Waring and the Penasylvanians entertained Purdue audiences with their musical variety, Hi-Fi Holiday.

Rock-an'-Roll invades the sedate Elliott Hall of Music in the form of the popular "Sha-Boom" boys, The Crewcuts.

From the World's Fair in Brussels, Belgium, to Lafayette, Indiana, Benny Goodman is symbolic of good swing.

A teen-age idol, Andy Williams, captured the adult audience with youthful renditions of old and new songs.

The husband and wife team, Ernie Kovacs and Edie Adams, performed for students and parents at the Dad's Day program.

Cultural advancement is an important part of education

Books and Coffee, a series of talks by campus professors on famous literature, is sponsored by the Student Union.

Science school seniors listen attentively to their guest speaker in the much-discussed Great Issues course.

Although known as a highly technical university, Purdue offers many areas for liberal education on campus. In the field of art, the students hold their own exhibits. Musical ability is cultivated through the Marching Band, Glee Club and Choir. Courses to challenge the mind such as philosophy and religion are now being elected.

Photographic displays in the Memorial Center offer visitors an opportunity to view the talents of Purdue shutterbugs.

Professor Huston speaks on a timely subject, international affairs, at one of the series of YWCA Coffee Talks.

The Union offers fascinating exhibits of every description. This couple is admiring a display of ceramic artwork.

The relaxation of social life in your favorite way

For shades of Al Capone and Bugs Moran, fraternity men turned to the "Roaring 20's," an era of flappers, the charleston and raccoon coats, for a pledge dance theme.

Putting their best foot forward, sorority girls entertain the faculty with a tea held especially in their honor.

Some form of diversification is offered each weekend to suit everyone's taste. The serious students enjoy discussing the vital issues of the day over steaming cups of coffee. Carefree couples enjoy dancing and singing informally at a housing unit. Some enjoy the quietness of their own room with a favorite novel. Each activity eases the return to classes on Monday.

Purdue students find the local movies a relaxing escape from the routine of Monday through Saturday classes.

Carefree college days are exemplified by the merry throng that goes Sweet Shopping between lectures and labs.

Many bumps, bruises and sore muscles result from an evening of roller skating in the Co-Recreational Gym.

To Purdue couples socializing means time for parties and fun on weekends

Every girl's dream is to have a romantic serenade on a moonlight night with a men's housing unit singing to her.

With the overwhelming ratio of four men to one woman, many Purdue coeds receive both BS and MRS degrees.

Pizza pie, a fad that seems to have become a permanent part of college life, keeps the local pizza dens busy every night.

Ranging from costume parties to informal desserts, trade parties provide opportunities to make new friends.

Many couples play bridge together or get dressed up for an evening on the town. Sometimes the boys enjoy a stag get-together, while girls find that an evening spent popping corn with their friends and gossiping can be fun. This social life is relaxing to students and allows an escape from the purely academic side of college.

A type of campus living to suit every need

These fraternity men are enjoying the benefits of brotherhood in a friendly game of pool in their house bumroom.

The change to a women's residence hall after six years as a men's residence has given Hall X a very different appearance.

One of the hardest questions a new student has to answer is where to live. The incoming freshman has a choice between eleven sororities, forty fraternities, thirteen co-operatives, and ten residence halls. This is a major decision to make for the choice may make a difference as to his success or failure in college. There is a place for everyone at Purdue.

Learning to live co-operatively means sharing the household duties of cooking, cleaning and laundering to these girls.

In the homey atmosphere of their house, these sorority sisters practice harmony—in singing as well as living.

*Our hearts are alive in a happy home
away from home*

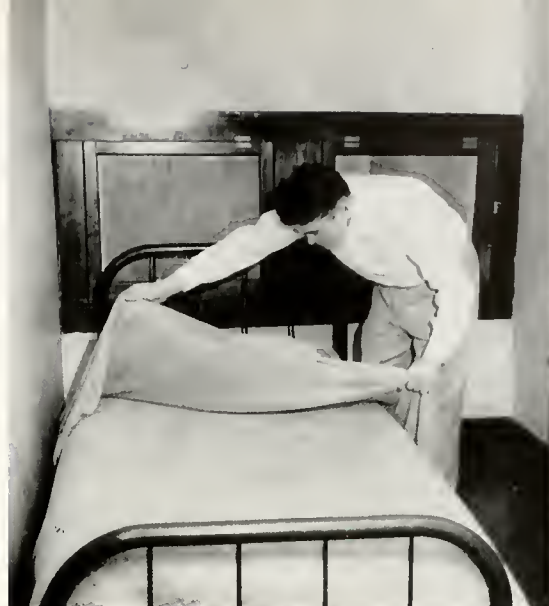

The Lafayette area offers many trailer court facilities for the married students who prefer a "home on wheels."

Completed this year, the Purdue Married Student Courts were designed for ease in studying and homemaking.

One disadvantage of being a town girl is that one must learn to resist television and other comforts of home.

A student living off-campus exhibits his independence as he acquires the techniques of cleaning his own room.

With representatives of fifty-five countries from Afghanistan to Venezuela, Purdue's foreign student enrollment totals 362.

These are the special people who live off-campus—commuters, townspeople, married students and apartment-dwellers. They have made their homes in the many comfortable and convenient West Lafayette and Lafayette residences. Purdue has aided married students by building 908 apartment units, 112 of which are completely furnished.

Those who seek knowledge find it in many places

Anyone can find information on subjects from atomic energy to zoology in the reference rooms of the Library.

The 14,000 full-time students are increasingly made aware of the outstanding accommodations Purdue has to offer. There are 267 classrooms available and 265 well-equipped laboratories. The library facilities are greatly enhanced by the 450,000 volumes now housed in the new Memorial Center Building.

These students find that even studying for a test can be fun when it's done on the lawn on a spring-like afternoon.

Opened in the fall, the new Library is a delightful place to study with its bright interior and comfortable chairs.

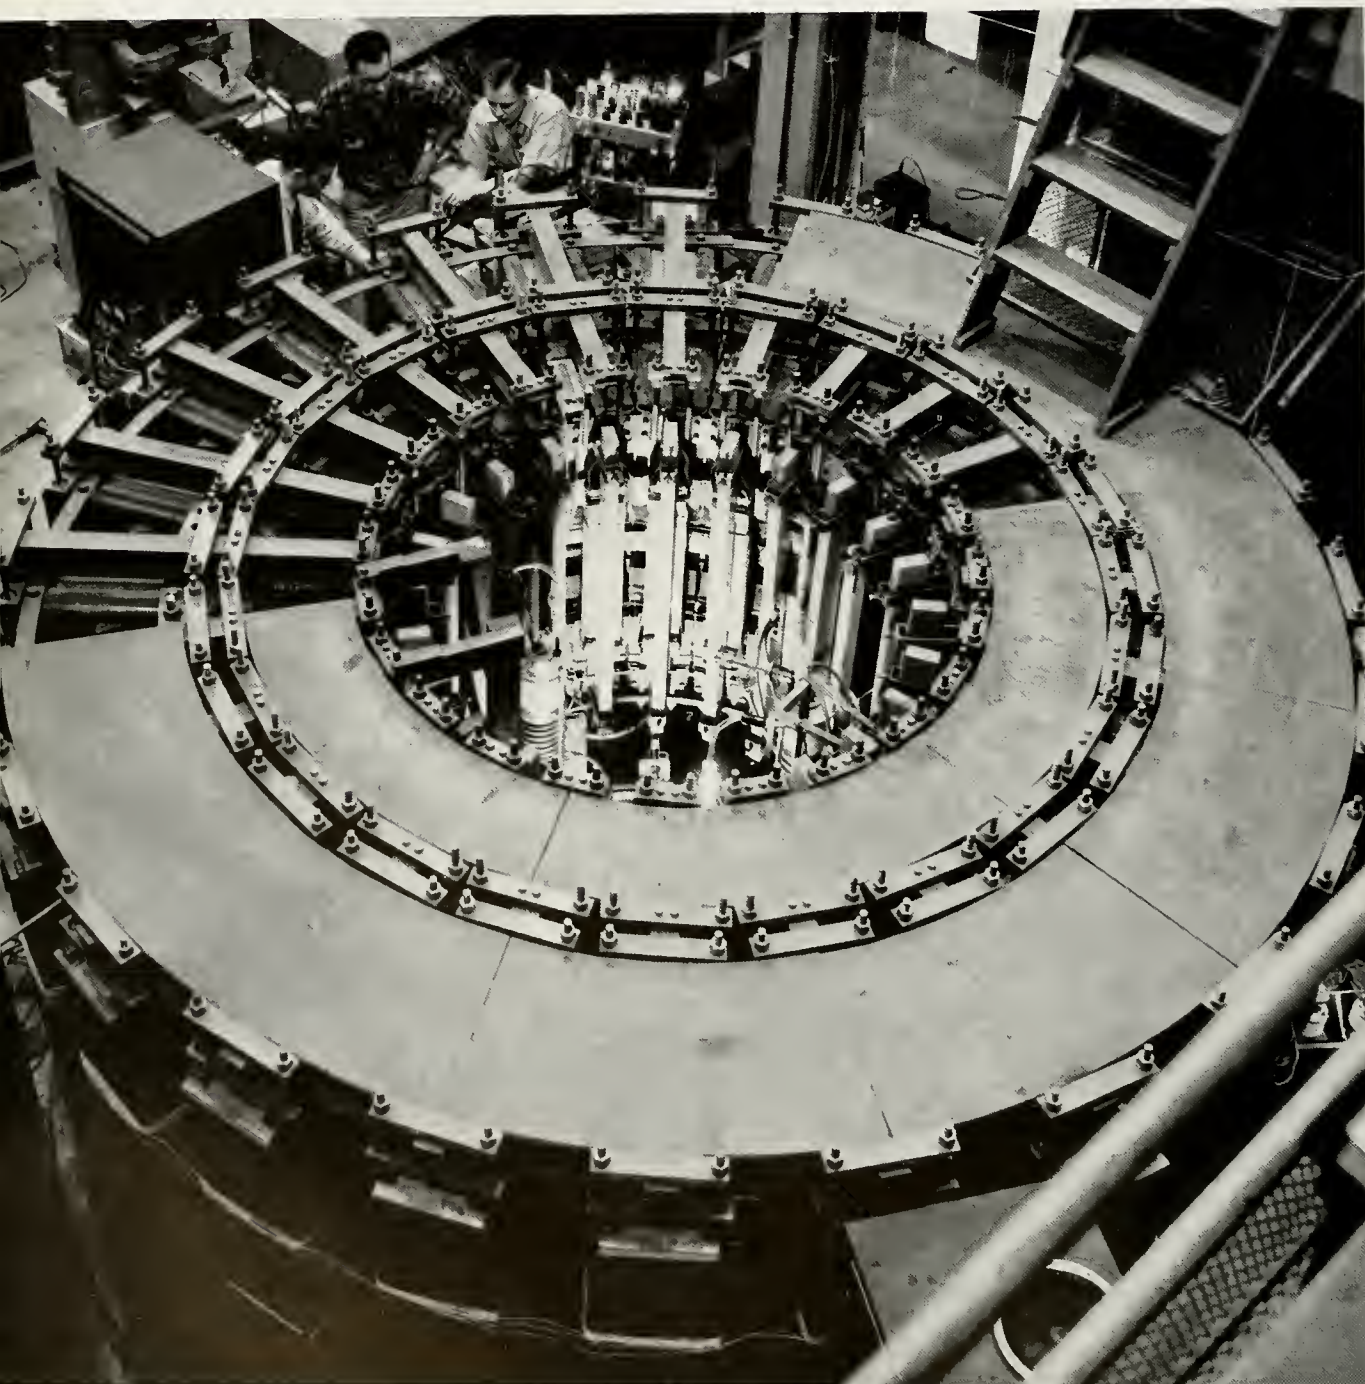

Frequent field trips afforded to forestry students by the nature of their subject offer enjoyable breaks from routine plus the chance to apply classroom teachings.

Blackboards covered with jottings and straight-back wooden chairs—these are standard items in any classroom.

Engineer's challenge . . . an unending flight from fantasy to reality

Only a Purdue engineer or physicist can understand the workings of the 300 million volt synchrotron, a complicated machine to accelerate positive ions or electrons.

Discussions over cokes and coffee are relaxing to the engineer who spends his week with science and technology.

The hands of the engineer are competent as they handle the slide rule to help erase mysteries of mathematics.

The Purdue engineer—smart, sophisticated, sought after—a man destined to succeed. Approximately fifty percent of the student body is enrolled in the seven different schools. Granting more bachelors degrees in engineering than any other university in the United States, Purdue excels in quality as well as quantity.

Amid scientific apparatus, these engineers struggle to comprehend the modern world of Sputniks and Vanguards.

The home economist learns efficiency on both small and large scale

From learning to bake a cherry pie or iron a shirt to managing a cafeteria or a nursery school, the home economics majors integrate the job of homemaking with their career. Housed in two new buildings and one remodeled one, Purdue's home ec department keeps its place as the second largest in the United States.

These girls are learning to be economical as well as original in making their own dresses, suits and coats.

Chanel, Dior and Faith have nothing over these Purdue originals stitched carefully by the home economists.

Run by institutional management majors, the Home Economics Cafeteria is popular with both students and faculty.

Home economics majors find that meals are a success when cooked in very modern experimental kitchens.

The new, modern Child Development and Family Life Building rings with the happy laughter of children at play.

Mental cultivation in Science, Education and Humanities

Girls training to be speech and hearing therapists learn the techniques for administering an audiometric test.

Senior Elementary Education majors switch from Plato and concert music to Mother Goose and rhythm bands.

The School of Science, Education and Humanities offers the most diversified curricula at Purdue. Included among the majors from which students may choose are teaching, pre-medicine, speech therapy and language. In this variety of fields, some 2500 students cultivate their individual interests each year.

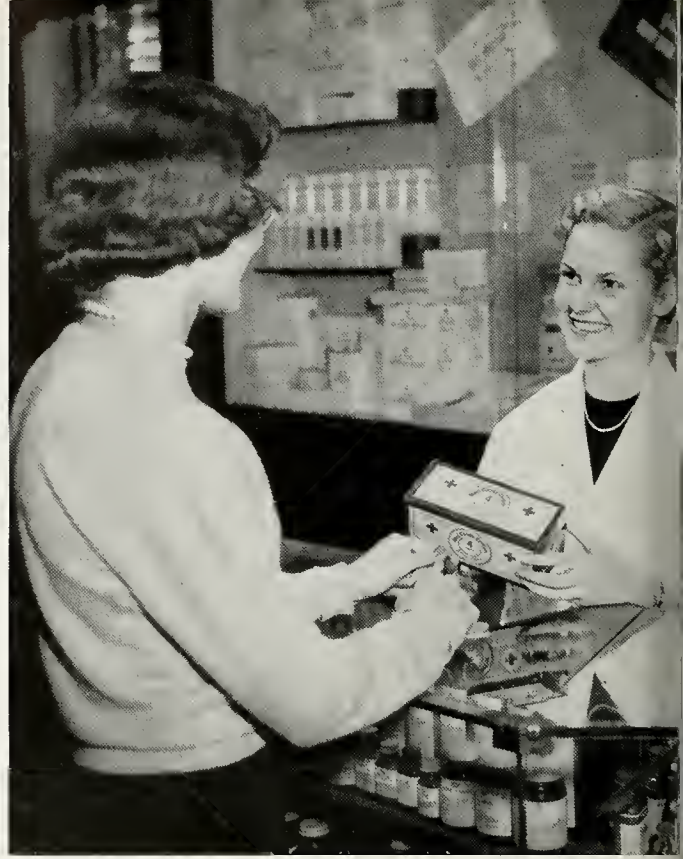

The class bell has just rung as students come pouring out

A mortar, pestle and white lab coat are the pharmacist's trademarks

Dispensing students learn that a cheerful smile is the best public relations medium in the model Apothecary.

In this unique pharmacology laboratory, pharmacy seniors experimentally determine the action of drugs on a rabbit.

Aspirin, mouth wash, dexedrine pills—these prescriptions are filled by pharmacy students practicing for their careers.

They begin as undergraduates in the Pharmacy School and emerge as the friendly druggist or as the town's physician. One hundred thirty men and women each year enter Purdue in this important field of pills, powders and prescriptions. Many of Indiana's medicine cabinets are filled by these student apprentices.

Spitting out tablets, round or square, is a full-time job for these tablet machines which supply the Health Service.

The strength of our nation is in its Corn Belt

Costing over $10 million, Purdue's Life Science Building is one of the most fully equipped buildings in the state.

Each year the horticulture department combines its talents to put on a show for the alums at Homecoming.

A favorite spot in any weather is Smith Hall where the dairy products sold are made by students of agriculture.

Purdue spends more than 5½ million dollars annually in research. Much of this money has gone to the School of Agriculture, which has developed, among other things, the seedless watermelon and an electronic device to evaluate amounts of fat and lean in live animals. Believe us when we say, Purdue is one of the leaders in the field.

The horticulture department serves the state by doing extensive research projects on many phases of plant life.

Students of agriculture learn the art of raising blue ribbon cattle which finally come to us as Grade A beef.

ADMINISTRATION

Friends as well as supervisors to the students, the administration of Purdue University successfully handles the affairs of the 14th largest university in the United States.

President Frederick L. Hovde, outstanding leader

Dr. Hovde's exceptional administrative ability has earned him the deep respect and admiration of every student, faculty member and associate of Purdue University.

A Rhodes scholar in his undergraduate days, our president is known today as one of America's foremost educators.

President Hovde's love for outdoor sports explains his fine physical condition and his presence on Purdue's golf course.

Before becoming Purdue University's seventh president, Dr. Frederick L. Hovde served on the faculties of the Universities of Rochester and Minnesota. While working toward his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering as an undergraduate at the latter institution, he was outstanding in many different fields. He gained All-American recognition for his ability as a halfback on our Big Ten rival's football team, and was awarded membership in Tau Beta Pi and a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University for his scholastic achievements at Minnesota. Since coming to Purdue thirteen years ago, Dr. Hovde has established himself as an energetic and tireless worker for the betterment of our University. His ability as an administrator is reflected by Purdue's excellent educational reputation.

Purdue's Vice Presidents

Dean Mallett is well known among students as "traffic cop" for the Junior Prom and Mil Ball grand marches.

Dr. Stewart, in spite of a busy schedule, finds time to serve Purdue as the treasurer of the Board of Trustees.

Purdue's Executive Dean, Dr. Donald R. Mallett, and Vice-President, Dr. R. B. Stewart, are two of the most important men-behind-the-scenes in the Executive Building. Few Purdue students are aware of the invaluable work which is carried on by these men. Dr. Mallett assists President Hovde in his monumental administrative duties and supervises on-campus public relations. His duties particularly involve relations between students and administration regarding University policies and academic matters. Dr. Stewart's duties consist of taking charge of normal University operations and proposed developments. He handles all financial and legal matters and oversees the operation of University housing. Though their work is often taken for granted, these two men keep Purdue operating smoothly.

Alumni Association and Alumni Scholarship Foundation

R. J. Rudolph (top) is the association's Executive Secretary, while C. H. Hall (bottom) acts as Executive Secretary of the Scholarship Foundation.

The association's General Secretary, Eth Baugh, once received the Leather Medal Award for outstanding service to Purdue.

The Purdue Alumni Association had its formal beginning in January, 1915, and has continued to grow until today it coordinates the activities of 118 Purdue Alumni Clubs located in 35 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands. In addition to publishing The Purdue Alumnus, a monthly magazine for Purdue Alumni, the Association sponsors activities for Gala Week and Homecoming weekend when many guests and former graduates make a return visit to the campus.

The Alumni Scholarship Foundation was established on September 1, 1944, by the director of the Alumni Association. Since that time the Foundation has received over twenty-five thousand contributions totaling more than one million dollars. This has provided over 3700 scholarships for University students averaging in excess of two hundred dollars each.

The Board of Trustees

An especially important function of Purdue's administration is handled by the Board of Trustees. It is to these people that much of the credit for Purdue's outstanding reputation must be given. This is the group which disperses and coordinates the enormous sums of money which are involved in the task of operating Purdue. The future of Purdue is, to a great extent in their hands also, for with them rests the final decision on construction and expansion programs. The actual Board is composed of nine members, each being elected for a three-year term, but other officials sit in on the meetings.

Replacing Charles Lynn in October of 1958, William A. Atkins served until his untimely death, December 18, 1958.

Purdue suffered a great loss recently in the demise of Trustee Charles Lynn, who served loyally for thirteen years.

Board appointments are made by Indiana's Governor who appoints six members directly and chooses the remaining three on the recommendation of the Purdue Alumni Association. The members represent a cross-section of industry, agriculture and the general public. Continuing to serve as President, Mr. William A. Hanley conducts discussion of problems with which the Board is constantly involved, including preparing the budget, selecting construction bids and approving campus policy. Members this year were saddened by the passing of two colleagues, Charles A. Lynn and William T. Atkins.

Members of the Board of Trustees take time out from their important duties to relax and engage in an informal chat.

Deans and Directors

A large staff of qualified and capable personnel is required to take care of the many details which are involved in the operation of a large university. Purdue is fortunate in having an excellent administrative team to fulfill this need. Whether they are dealing directly with students and their problems or are concerned with the endless task of registering, classifying and keeping their records, these people contribute immensely toward furthering the education of all attending the University.

At the annual agronomy field day, held to acquaint Indiana farmers with the modern developments in farm machinery and management, a new sprayer is demonstrated.

The Purdue Research Foundation

Through use of sound absorbent glass wool edges, the secrets of acoustics are studied in the echoless chamber.

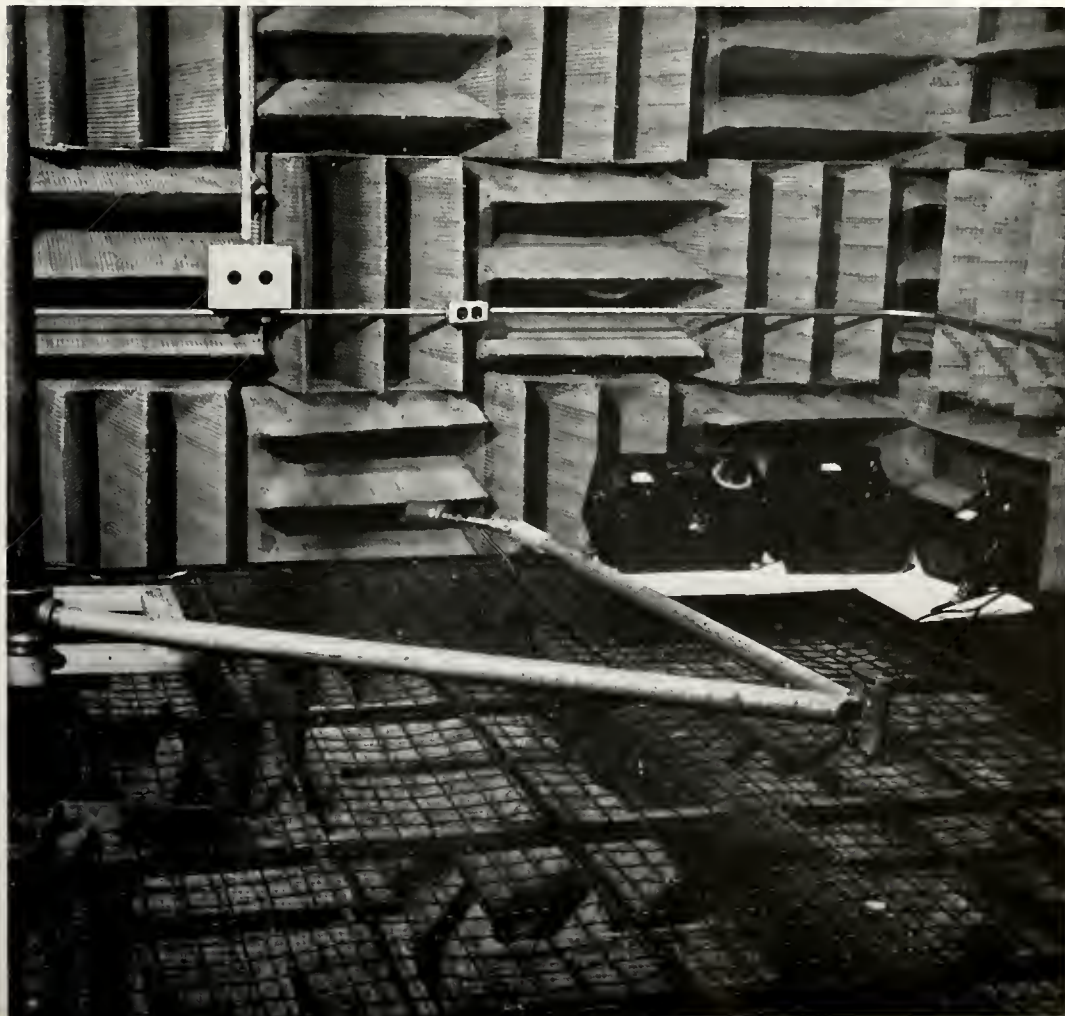

Designed to augment Purdue's ever-enlarging Graduate school, the University's research program has not only kept up with the increased graduate enrollment but has assumed a leading role in the research field on a national scale. The Purdue Research Foundation is directly responsible for leadership Purdue exhibits on modern frontiers of development in such fields as chemistry, pharmacy, aeronautical engineering, physics and agriculture. To attempt to bring together sponsors who require basic scientific information and University staff members and graduate students who desire research support, the Foundation provides potential sponsors with bulletins about Purdue research.

President Hovde and three staff members insert the last rod into the new reactor which will be used to study radiation.

The quartz head engine permits combustion to be viewed for the testing of combustion ratios and new antiknock fuels.

Professor Hoffman's skill at his wood-working hobby is shown by the table that is in the living room of his home.

When his busy schedule permits, Professor Kohls finds relaxation and self-satisfaction in utilizing his artistic talents.

Professor Frost is an ardent outdoor chef, but on Lafayette's typical winter days he enjoys spending his free time just relaxing with a pipe in front of his TV set.

Popular Professors

This year, for the first time, a campus-wide poll was taken to determine the University's six most popular professors for presentation on these pages. Students voted by sending in ballots which they cut out of the student newspaper, the Exponent, and the six men pictured here have the honor of being the winners of the first annual Popular Professor Poll. To support the poll's purpose of bringing students and faculty closer together, the professors have been shown engaging in their favorite leisure activity instead of in the role of instructor in which students most readily picture them.

Professor Hicks finds little time for hobbies as his six children usually manage to keep his schedule busy.

When asked what his extracurricular interests were, Professor Hilst emphatically said, "Baseball and baseball!"

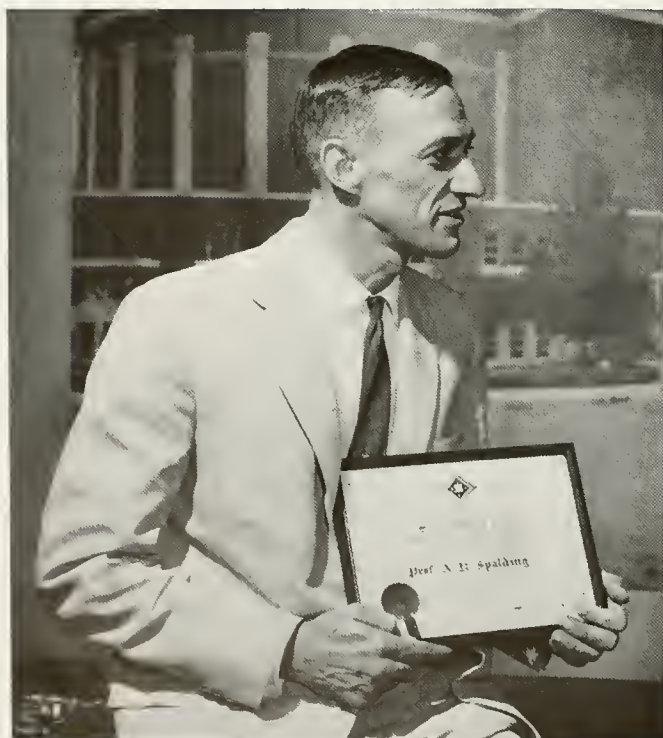

In preparation for the coming spring weekends, Professor Stoh oils his fishing reel and checks his tackle box.

Best Teacher and Leather Medal Awards

Professor F. D. Martin, Chemistry Department, received the 1958 Sigma Delta Chi award as best teacher.

Professor Spalding received a certificate in addition to having his name inscribed on the plaque in the Union Building.

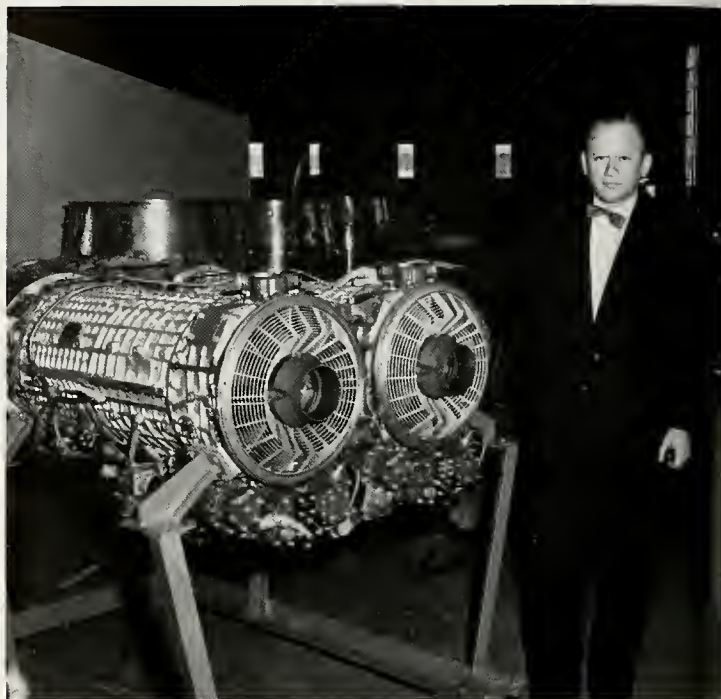

Every year Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, honors two faculty members by presenting the Leather Medal Award and the Best Teacher Award. The Leather Medal is given to the man who makes the greatest contribution to the welfare, success and reputation of Purdue University. The winner this year was Professor A. R. Spalding of the Freshman Engineering Department. The Best Teacher Award is based on the teacher's ability to convey subject material, personal appearance and sense of humor. Winner this year was Professor F. D. Martin of the Chemistry Department.

SCHOOLS - COLLEGES

Purdue is vast and complex, but in his particular school or department the student finds that he is treated not as a number or an IBM card but as an individual.

Aeronautical Engineering

With ever-increasing emphasis now being placed on military missiles and space travel, the demand for aeronautical engineers is constantly rising. The School of Aeronautical Engineering has kept abreast of the most up-to-date developments in the aviation industry, and the curriculum is constantly being evaluated and revised to insure that Purdue-trained men will be qualified to serve our nation well in their chosen field. Practical experience is gained in the laboratories through study of modern turbojet engines and a newly acquired turbo-prop engine like those used in prop-jet airliners.

H. M. DeGross

During their sophomore year all students learn the mechanics of the Swift airplane which is housed in the enormous hangar-like laboratory at the University airport.

Agricultural Engineering

The School of Agricultural Engineering provides a progressive course of study for individuals who are interested not only in farm machinery and its operation but also in farm management and problems of production. Scientific advances in such fields as land conservation and soil productivity, as well as modern developments in the broad area of farm machinery design, are discussed in the classroom and actually observed by the student in the ever-expanding series of labs maintained by the University. These presently include machinery, power, electrical, water system and crop drying labs.

G. E. Spencer

Junior agricultural engineers spend many hours in the farm machinery laboratory where several sessions are devoted to studying the farmer's basic implement, the plow.

Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering

E. W. Comings

Through a well-balanced study of all the physical sciences received in the initial two years and a varied upper-class program including actual work in industry, the graduate of the School of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering is prepared to accept a job in industry or work toward the increasingly important graduate degree. Graduate degrees which are presently available are the Master of Science in Chemical Engineering and Doctor of Philosophy. A majority of this school's graduates are employed in either research and teaching or supervision of metal-consuming and chemical industries.

The use of radio tracers to study diffusion in liquid metals is among the techniques studied in the laboratory.

Civil Engineering

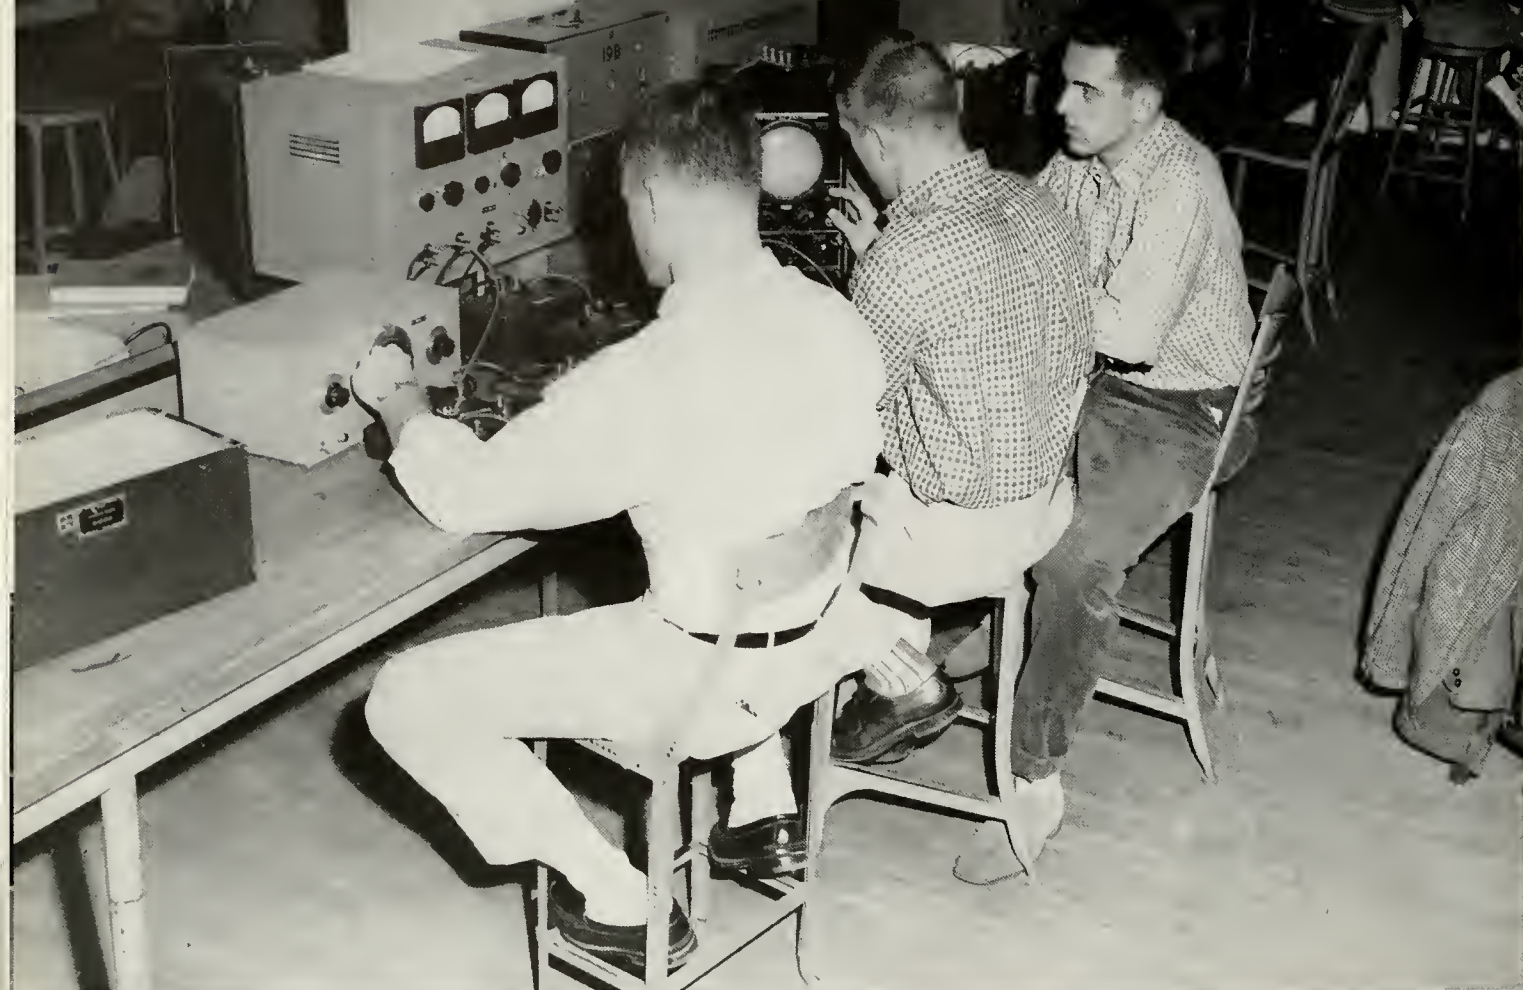

Although Civil Engineering is probably the most basic to all the other fields of engineering, it is extremely intricate and ever-changing. Aided by a background of thorough training, the graduate of this school is able to pursue various types of jobs. Purdue's C. E. School prepares its students for careers in such fields as transportation, hydraulics, sanitation, surveying and structural engineering. Due to the varied nature of technical courses offered, the Purdue Civil Engineering graduate is able to enter almost any phase of engineering in the areas of design, research or development.

K. B. Woods

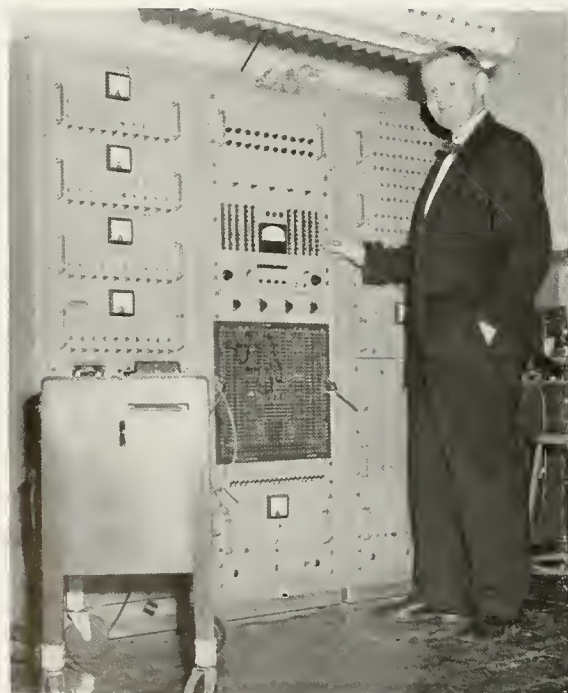

Two students stop to discuss a problem before one of the many huge murals in the halls of the Civil Engineering Building.

To Junior E. E.'s, the oscilloscope is no longer a frightening piece of complicated equipment but a useful laboratory tool.

Electrical Engineering

T. F. Jones

As the demand for electrical engineers increases, opportunities in the different fields are becoming exceedingly great. The revision of the engineering program and equipment at Purdue enables one to work with the most modern concepts and devices known today. The Electrical Engineering curriculum provides sound knowledge and practical experience in any of the subjects within this field. The recent advancements within the E. E. School have placed Purdue among the country's foremost institutions in Electrical Engineering. Humanities courses are also required to broaden the program.

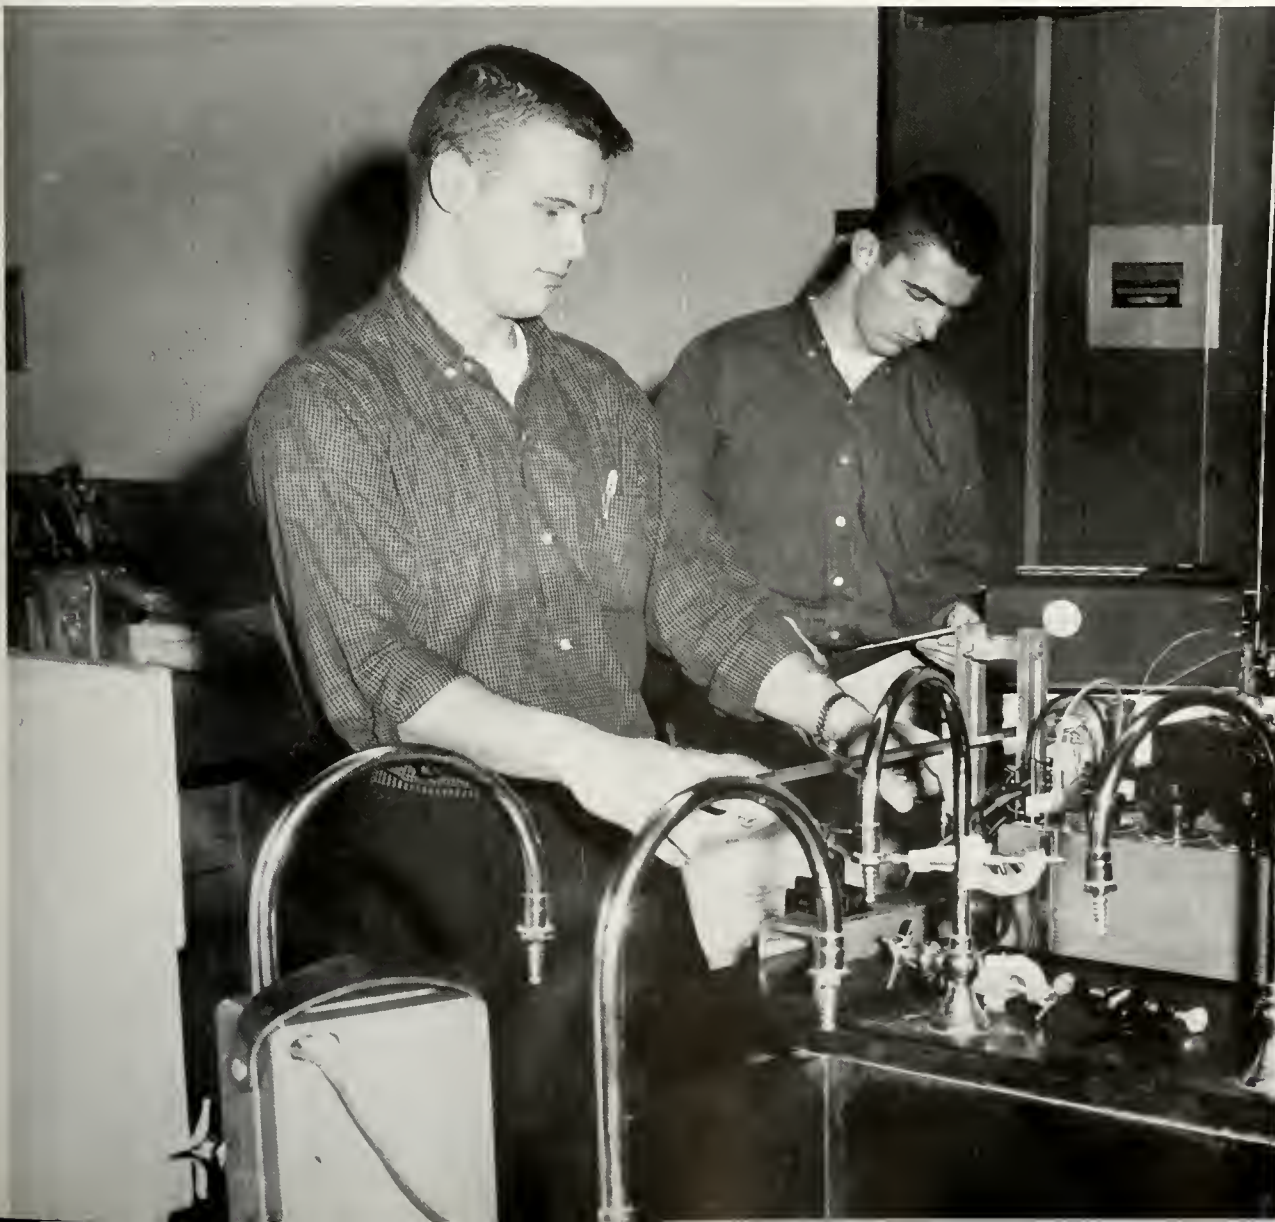

Engineering Sciences

E. A. Trabant

The School of Engineering Sciences offers to the more qualified student a comprehensive course of study directed toward the understanding of the basic principles of science. Only five per cent of each freshman class is accepted into this school. The well-rounded program of laboratory work permits practical applications of principles learned in the classroom in the fields of dynamics, elasticity, plasticity, fluid mechanics, thermodynamics, nuclear engineering and computer design. The graduate of the E. S. School possesses a thorough background of knowledge which is applicable to many fields.

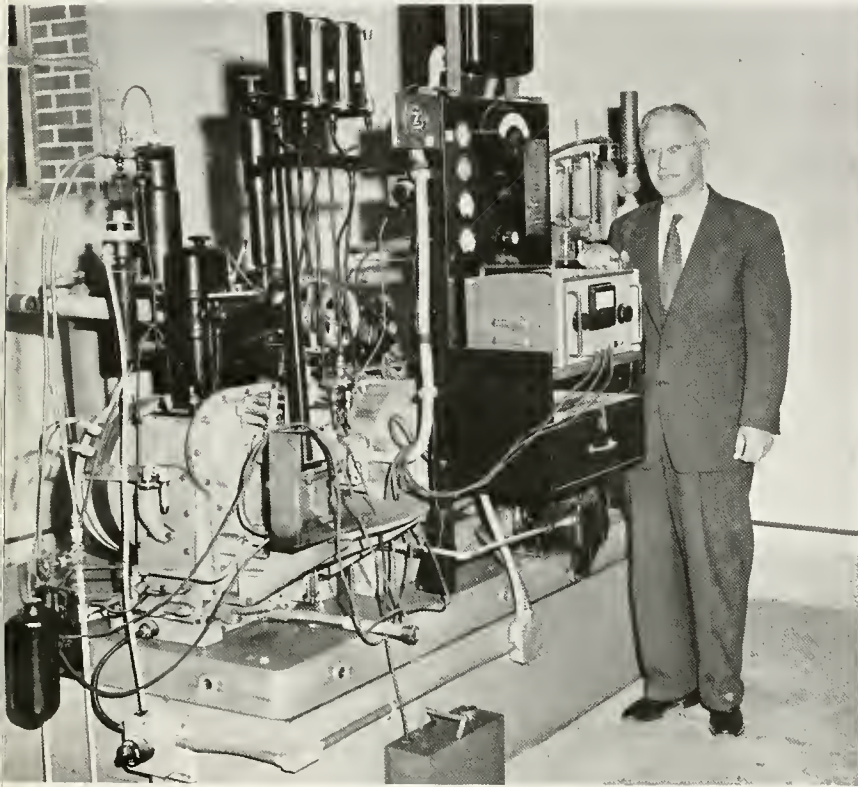

Through a complicated set of paired resistors and an amplification system, minute vibrations of the test bar are studied.

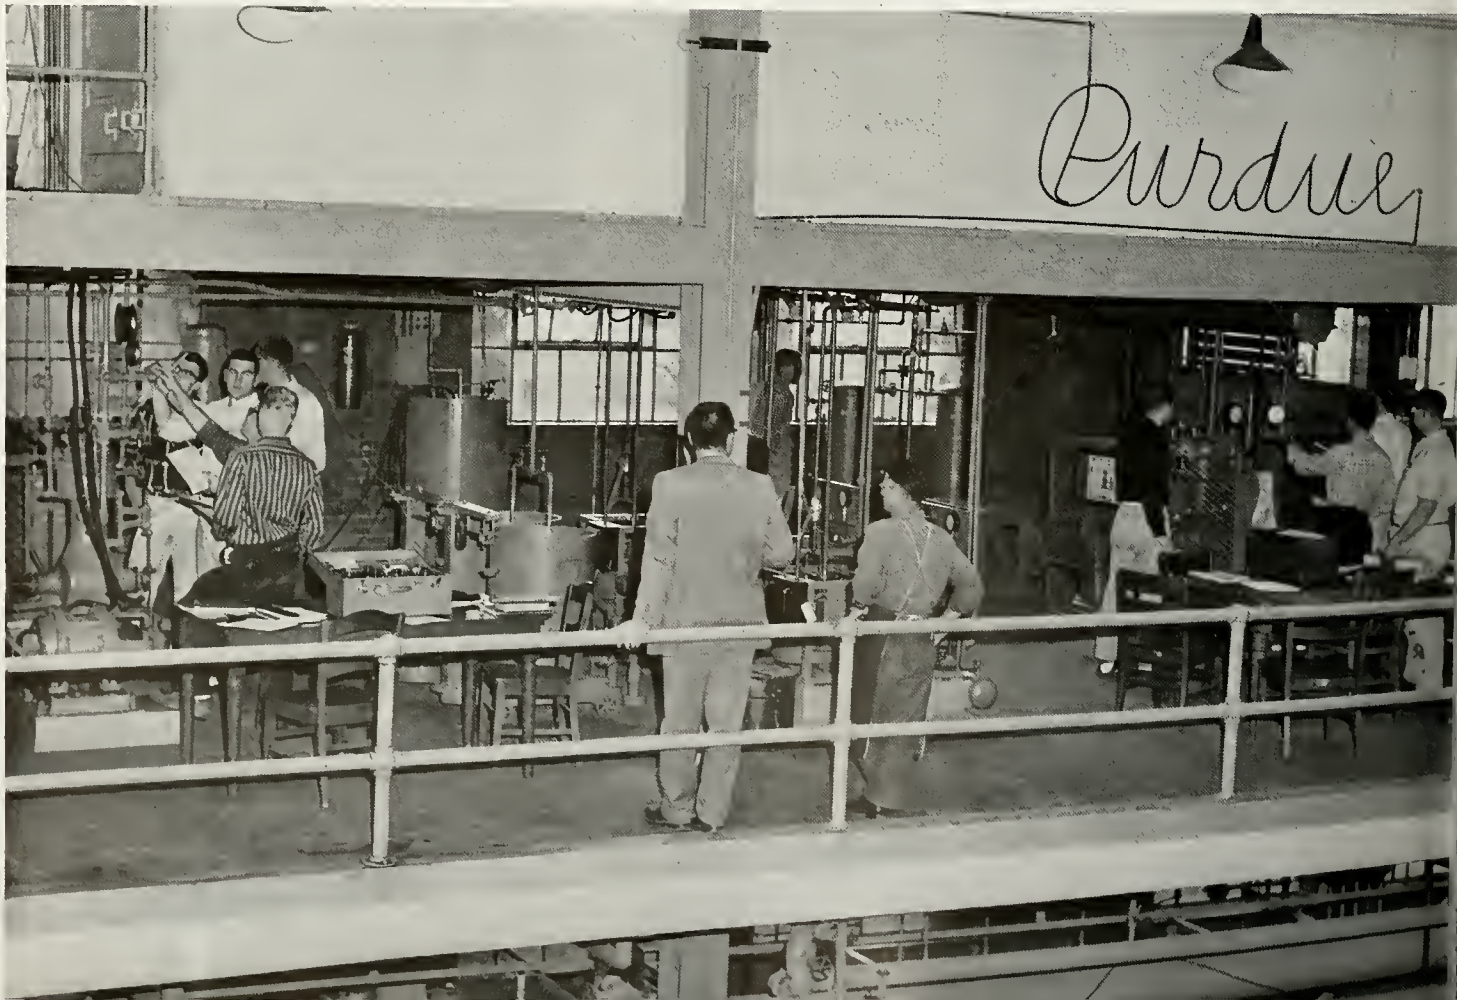

Mechanical Engineering

H. L. Solberg

Purdue's Mechanical Engineering School is designed to give students a thorough grounding in the basic fundamentals necessary for competence in any phase of this broad subject. In addition to the extensive technical background offered, thirty hours of non-technical courses, of which fifteen are elective, are included in the curriculum. Co-operative programs with industry and accelerated course sequences are available to M. E. students. Upon graduation, Purdue's mechanical engineers enter all industries, but they are primarily employed in the power, machinery and manufacturing fields.

In a typical Mechanical Engineering lab scene, two groups of students perform an experiment and calculate the results.

At one of Purdue's experimental farms maintained by the School of Agriculture, students learn to show and judge cattle.

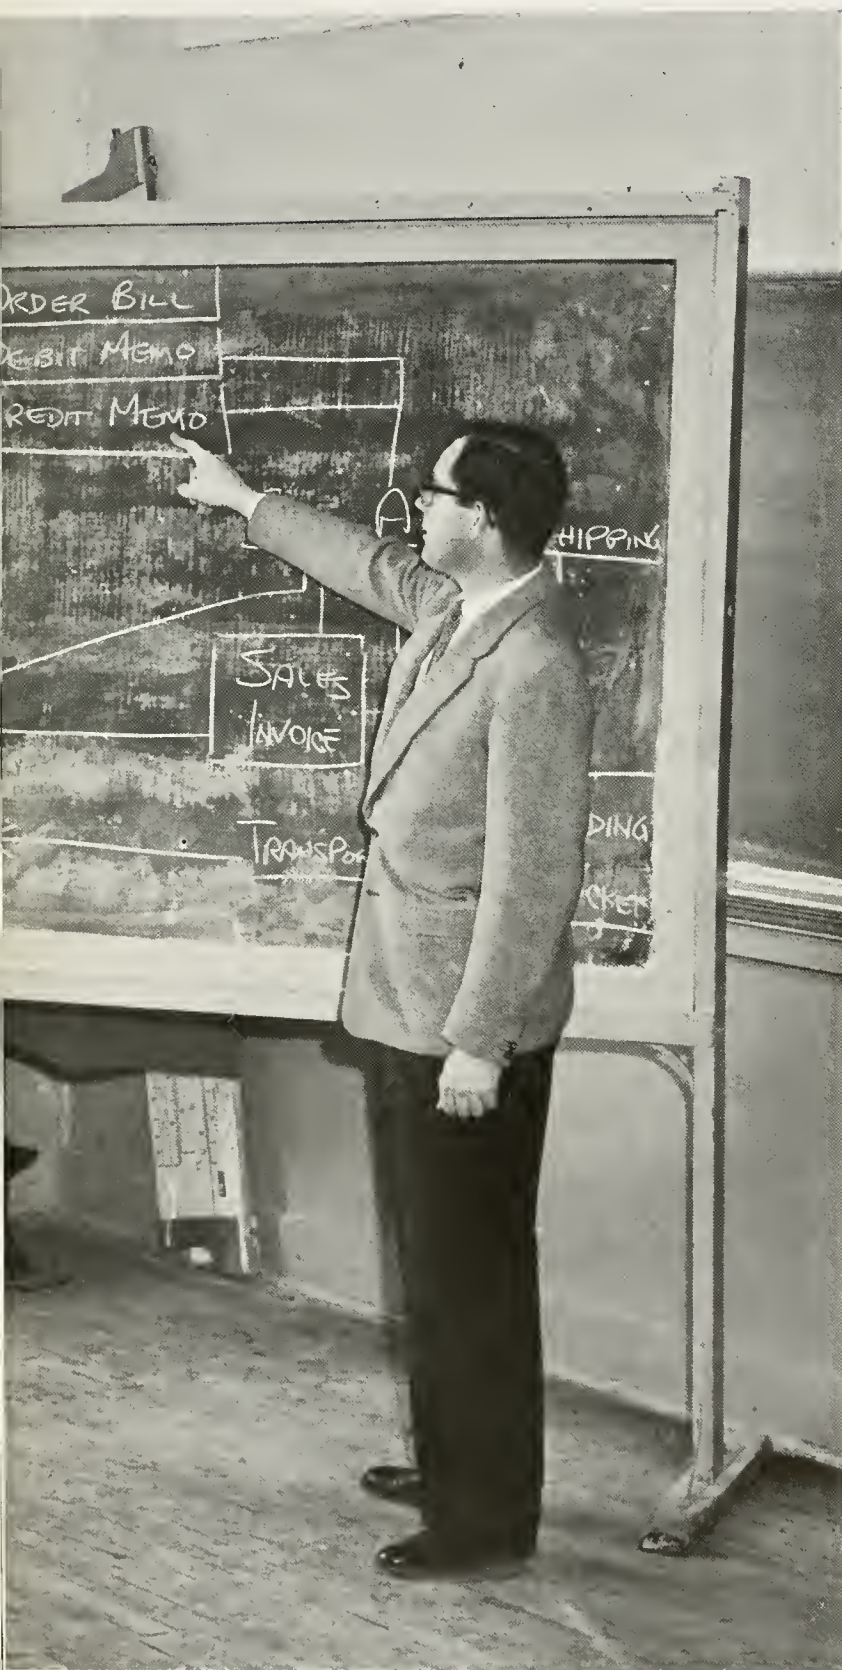

Agriculture

Purdue's School of Agriculture is equipped with the most modern facilities available. Included in the school's undergraduate curriculum are numerous courses in chemistry, physics, botany, and zoology. Graduates are trained especially for work on the farm, but positions in educational, research and commercial work are available for them in the agricultural industries. A special program is offered for those who do not wish to spend more than two full years in the University, while the agricultural economics option is open to those students who are especially interested in management.

E. L. Butz

Industrial Management

IM students find Mr. Warrick's lucid examples of "Perry Mason" transactions an aid in the process of learning accounting.

E. T. Weiler

On July 1, 1958, a new School of Industrial Management was established at Purdue University, with Professor E. T. Weiler appointed as dean. Maintaining both an undergraduate program and an industrial management and economics graduate program, the curriculum consists of elected courses in technology in areas such as engineering science, industrial engineering or home economics, coupled with an equally strong series in economics and industrial management. The management courses are designed to develop proper analytical tools to be applied to the ever-present demands of growing industry.

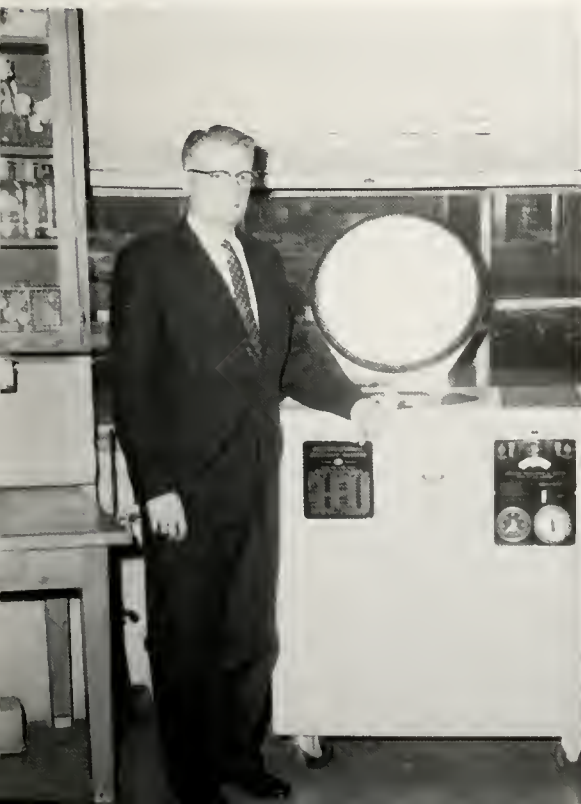

Veterinary Science

The new School of Veterinary Science and Medicine was established at Purdue on July 1, 1958. Originally the department was confined to pursuing new knowledge and understanding animal diseases, but later it undertook to begin developing a program of adult education. The department is responsible for veterinary care of Purdue's livestock, diagnostic services and research leading to the production of new serums. Although each entering class will be limited to fifty students, it will be provided with professional instruction which will lead finally to the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. C. B. Swenson, School of Veterinary Science, examines a histopathological specimen with the aid of a new microscope.

L. M. Hutchings

The penalty for not doing this homework during a six-week term in a "P" house is, naturally, bread and water.

B. V. Gillespie

Home Economics

Contrary to popular conception, the School of Home Economics does not prepare the student solely for life as a homemaker. In addition, the School offers training which is useful in many professional fields, including such varied positions as buyers for establishments dealing in clothing, furnishings or food; dietitians in hospitals, hotels and other institutions; interior decorators; and food or textile laboratory technicians. For those who are in the School to learn homemaking, four home management houses are maintained where seniors gain practical experience to supplement their classroom work.

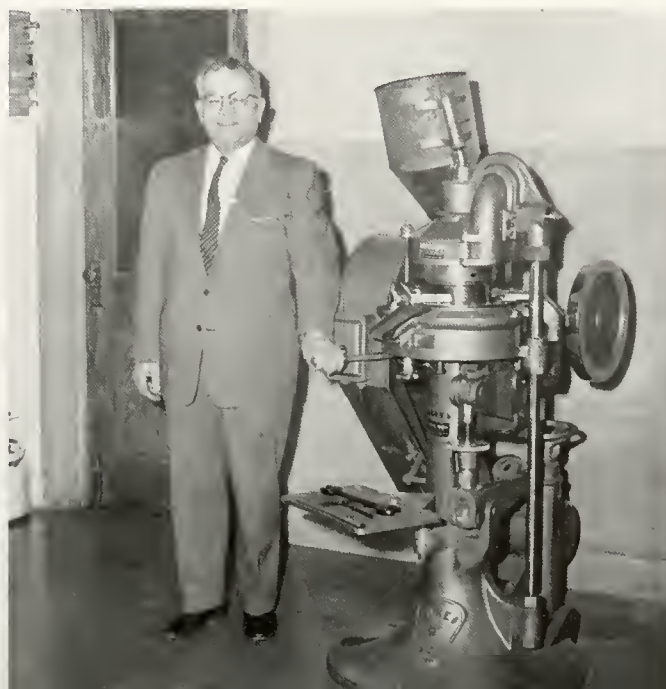

Seniors in the School of Pharmacy gain invaluable experience by filling prescriptions in a supervised student pharmacy.

Pharmacy

Since its establishment in 1884, the University's School of Pharmacy has graduated more than 2800 students, including many of the prominent pharmacists and pharmaceutical scientists of the state and of the nation. These graduates are generally engaged in the important and responsible duties of the professional or retail druggist, the manufacturing pharmacist, the hospital pharmacist, the pharmaceutical chemist or the pharmacologist. After receiving the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy, graduates can earn Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in the Pharmacy School.

G. L. Jenkins

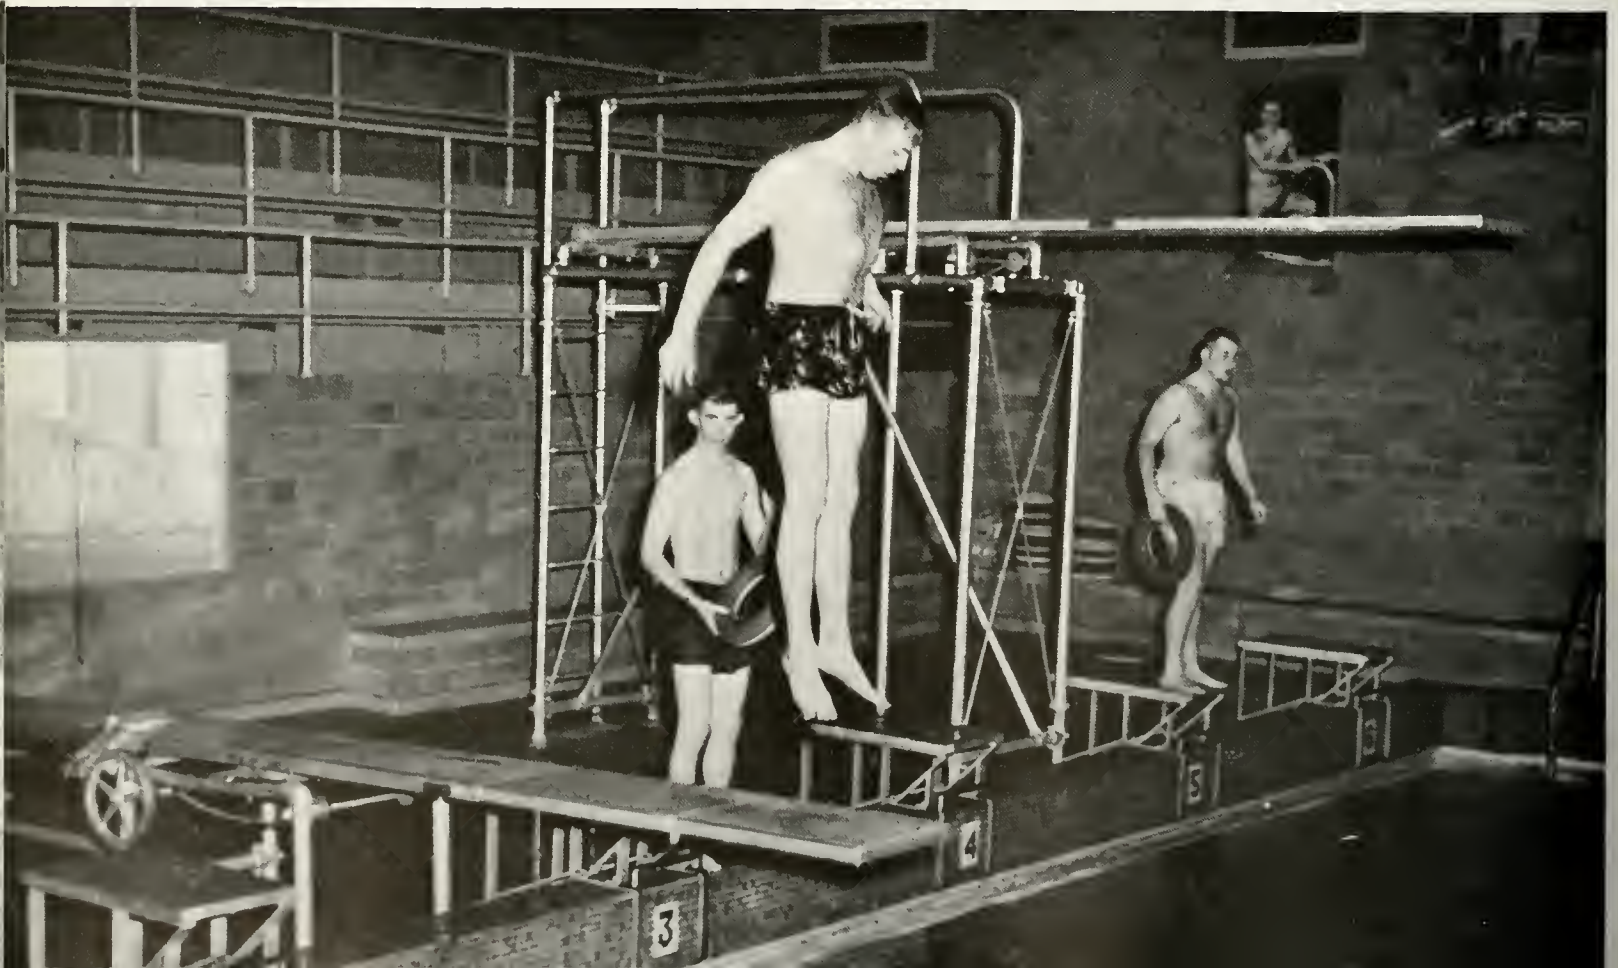

Physical Education

A Bachelor of Physical Education degree is awarded to the student who fulfills the general requirements of the education division of the School of Science and also completes one of the two options offered by the physical education department. At the end of a standard freshman year, students must choose one of these options. The pre-physical therapy option prepares undergraduates for admission into any physical therapy school, while the other option offers careers to students in the coaching or teaching of health, physical education and any one of many other subjects which are studied as electives.

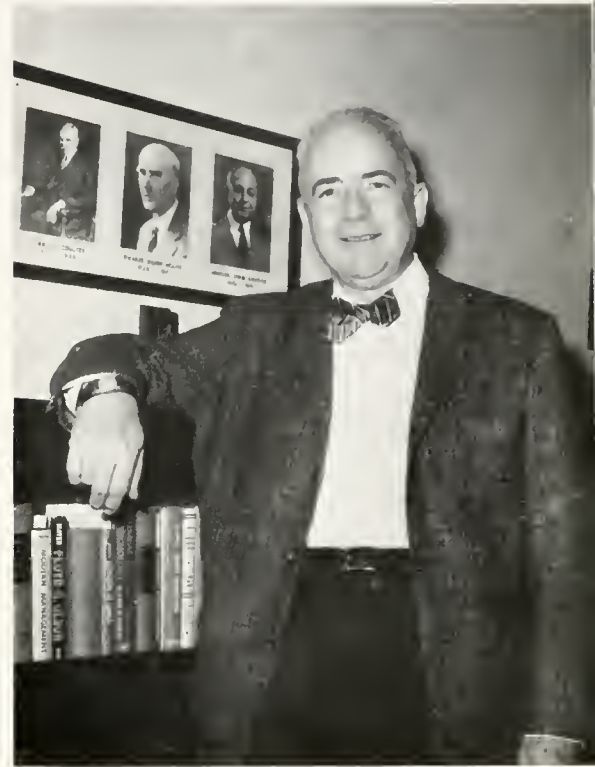

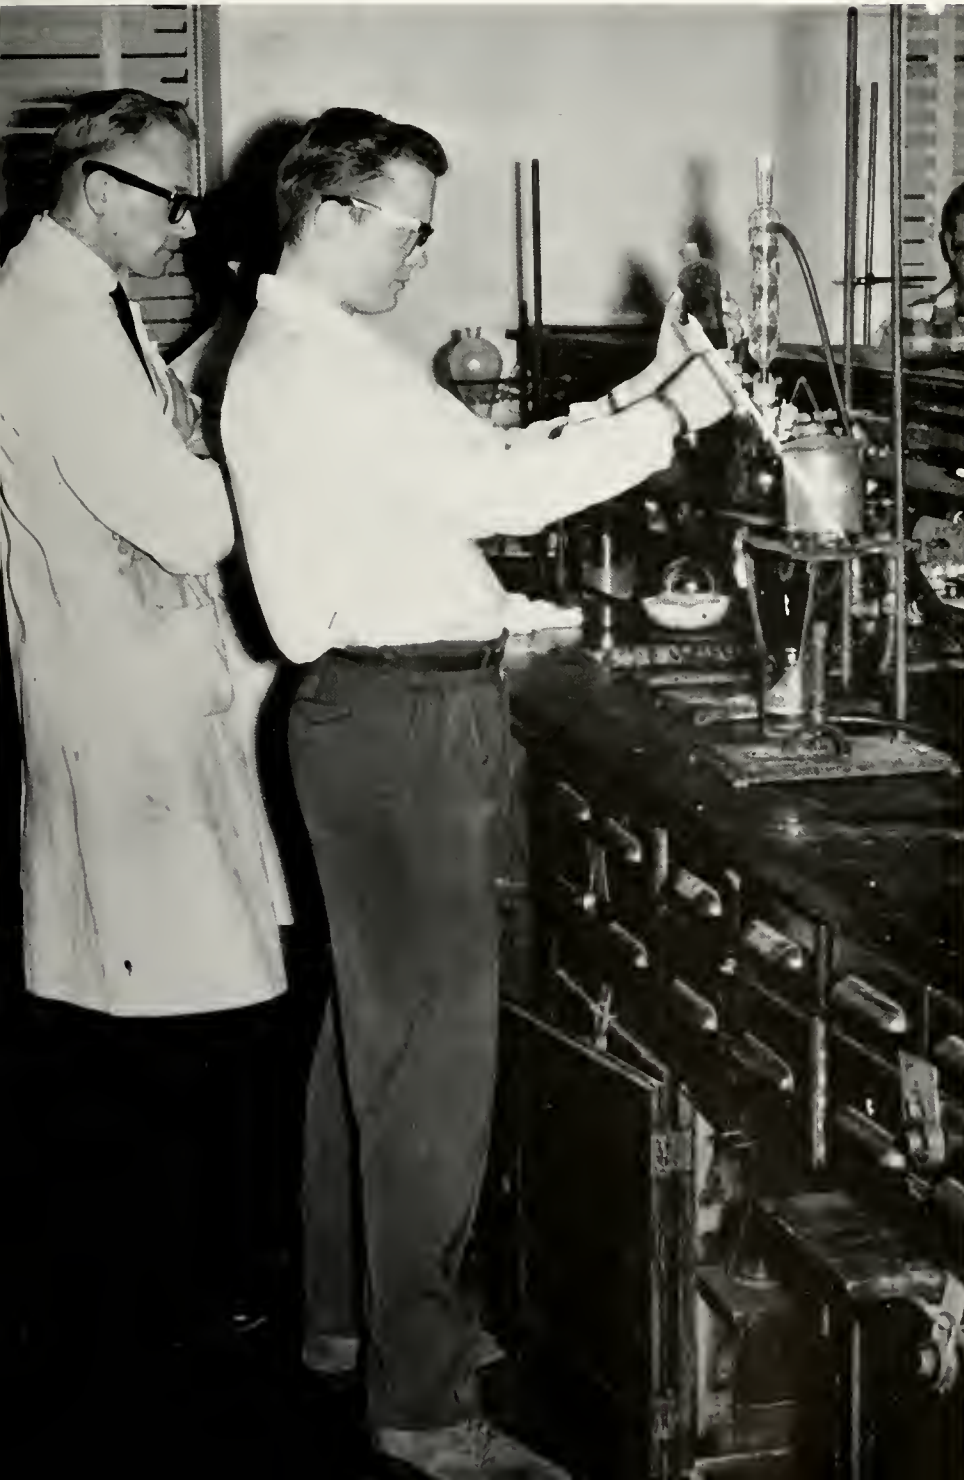

G. J. Mackey

Physical education majors in the School of Science find swimming class "homework" enjoyable as well as educational.

Science, Education and Humanities

Three different degrees offered by the School of Science, Education and Humanities include Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Industrial Education and Bachelor of Physical Education. The school itself is organized into fourteen departments, each of which offers its own curriculum leading to one of these degrees. Because of the many different types of training available through these departments, the student of the "Science School" may prepare himself for work in a wide variety of areas. English, mathematics and psychology are but a few of the fields of specialization which may be selected.

CAMPUS LIFE

Campus Life—the backbone of Purdue.

The events and incidents which make up social life on our campus set us apart from other colleges and universities.

Freshmen face college with rising enthusiasm

Green Guards, Ellie Sisson and Mary Ann Vajner describe Purdue life to counselees, Janis Galbreath and Chris Hultman.

Composed of campus leaders, freshman orientation panels encourage informal discussion about campus life.

It is practically an impossible task to avoid the inevitable rush at the bookstores when semester classes begin.

Orientation Week is Purdue's way of saying "hello" to the new student. Through a series of many events including informal panel discussions, the Freshman First Nighter program, a Green Guard picnic, Block "P" call out and informative orientation meetings, the freshman is introduced to the campus and its traditions, the faculty and the Purdue community. Ending with the inspiring President's Convocation, the week's activities make the new student feel at home in his college world.

Freshmen are inspired as they listen to voices of the famous Purdue Glee Club at their Freshman First Nighter.

Freshmen soon find that it is extremely easy and enjoyable to make new friends on Purdue's large but amiable campus.

Stressing the importance of combining scholarship and activities, Dr. Spaulding addresses Freshman Leadership Camp.

Campus overrun with senior cords and derbies

Senior cords, derbies, canes and floats add color and fun to the pre-game activities before the opening kick-off.

Traditionally, yellow cords and black derbies are worn only by seniors. Each year Cord Day is awaited with great anticipation. This year they paraded to the first football rally with the floats of their individual schools. The next day, dressed in cords and sporting derbies and canes, the seniors gathered on the field for the entrance of the team. After the first Purdue touchdown their derbies were tossed into the air in celebration. Although this is a gay time, each senior, realizing that he has now entered his final year at Purdue, experiences certain sentimental feelings about his college life.

Impressively arranged, senior couples stand as a monument to the accomplishments and failures, the happiness and sorrow, and the work and play of their Class of '59.

John Harless and Jan Myers, a typical senior couple, smile proudly as they are wearing freshly painted cords.

Anticipation and excitement fill the air when the seniors cheer the football team as it charges onto the field.

Enthusiasm keynotes another pep rally as cheerleaders lead students in a favorite yell, "Fight, Purdue, Fight."

Exuberantly, the Delta Gammas and Alpha Tau Omegas display their pep rally sign that captured first place.

Indulging in a friendly hand of bridge at one of the typical open houses held during Homecoming weekend, this group at the Chi Omega house finds it a perfect relaxer.

Homecoming alumni are given a Purdue welcome

Homecoming is a festive weekend. Each fall alumni return to the campus to renew old friendships, relive memories of their college years and view the major changes that have taken place on the campus. As the weekend approaches, Homecoming signs appear and competition is keen to construct the winning sign. Highlighting the weekend is the football game and the crowning of a Homecoming Queen during the half-time ceremony. Other activities of the busy weekend include a water show, numerous open houses, Victory Varieties in the Hall of Music and the Homecoming Dance.

Alpha Delta Pi, constructing the first place sign in the women's division, wants to "Squeeze out a Victory."

Purdue Pete shelters the famed Golden Girl, Addie Darling, from the drenching rain before her half-time performance.

"Illinois' Only Glory," a simulated life-size statue of Abraham Lincoln, is the winning entry of Cary Unit A.

In the twenty-five dollar division, "Around the Big Ten" won first place trophy for the men of Phi Kappa Tau.

Brass shines and eyes sparkle at the Military Ball

The theme of "Count Down" is carried out carefully in modern decorations like this intricate space mechanism.

Along with the traditional elaborate decorations, the Military Ball proceedings are characterized by a magnificent Grand March for the guests and senior ROTC students.

The official opener of Purdue's formal season, the Military Ball, is a gala affair. This year's theme "Count Down" is carried out with appropriate decorations. Each year a highlight of the memorable evening is the presentation of Scabbard and Blade pledges who are kissed by their dates before they lead the traditional Grand March through the Arch of Sabers. The danceable music of Buddy Morrow and the renditions of Pee Wee Hunt for listening pleasure provide an appropriate atmosphere.

During intermissions the most popular place appears to be the Sweet Shop, which assumes a military appearance.

No one misses an opportunity to attend the Military Ball as is shown by the numerous couples dancing on a crowded floor.

The sabers are lifted and the arch is formed as the couples prepare to fall in for the traditional Grand March.

In their presentation with Cary Hall of "Reciprocal Ratio," a parody on Purdue's 4:1 ratio, girls of Southeast "X" seem disturbed by the lack of men on campus.

Rehearsals are prerequisite to polished show

Singing in Varsity Varieties was one of the first appearances Larry Tanzi made with his guitar on our campus.

An Indian princess tells a chief he has "Heap Big Smoke But No Fire" in the Chi Omega and Phi Gamma Delta act.

The quick, graceful movements of Hungarian Dancers, dressed in their native costumes, thrilled the audience.

As master of ceremonies, Bill Fowble tied the show together with an endless supply of humorous jokes and stories.

The Kingsmen, members of Lambda Chi Alpha, presented "The Terrier's Song" as one of their calypso numbers.

Warren Hall and H-3 turn the clock back to the days of the Charleston with "Frankie and Johnny," nickelodeon style.

The product of weeks of practice, tryouts and more practice, Varsity Varieties is the annual all-student variety show. Traditionally presented on the evening preceding the Purdue-Indiana football clash, it is composed of six major acts and four olio acts. During the intermission of the show, the Debris queen is crowned and her court is presented. As the finale the cheerleaders lead "Hail Purdue," while the Old Oaken Bucket is lowered to the stage. An impressive show with colorful costumes and unique lighting effects, Varsity Varieties is an excellent display of student talent, endeavor and ingenuity.

The Union assumed a Christmas atmosphere after energetic students decorated the many trees including this large one which towered impressively over the holiday events.

The spirit of Christmas brings good will to the campus

The season just wouldn't be complete without the ever-traditional singing of Christmas carols around a piano.

Purdue students greeted the Christmas season with a traditional round of children's parties, caroling, ice skating excursions and faculty teas. After one Sunday afternoon, glittering decorations appeared in the Union. Among the many festivities that students attended were the inspiring Christmas Convocation, the gay Union Open House, residence hall gift exchanges and the Christmas tree-lighting ceremony. Enthusiasm mounted as vacation time drew near, and each student and faculty member seemed to join in the spirit of good will and giving. Christmas is a happy season on Purdue's campus.

Such delightful things as a 6.0 index are promised by Santa in a Christmas message greeting all Sweet Shoppers.

Opening their hearts to the needy, many residence units provide parties and gifts for underprivileged children.

Displays of toys and exhibits from foreign lands attract students and townspeople to the Christmas party in the Union.

Summer vacations spent in the pleasant surroundings of a camp in the Adirondacks offer campers a close contact with nature and the chance to share personal experiences.

Days spent without studying mean vacation time

For some, the leisure of vacations is a perfect opportunity for long hikes in the country by a glistening stream.

Throughout the school year Purdue students look forward to the fun and relaxation which vacation time affords. For some, vacation means ski trips to Wisconsin, sunbathing in Florida or mountain climbing in Mexico; for others it's a time to enjoy just being at home with family and friends. Proof of the popularity of vacations is the mass exodus which accompanies the end of classes and leaves the campus deserted. After days spent in fun, refreshed students return to settle down again to their academic work, but always with the date of an approaching vacation fixed firmly in their minds.

For Bob Black, the thought of vacation is synonymous with the perfecting of his golf game at which he persistently plays from early in the morning until late afternoon.

The thrill and adventure which sailing provides will remain long after the vacation comes to an end for these students.

Climbing an ice covered ravine by means of footholes hacked with a pick is an exciting and dangerous venture.

Informal rush begins with teas in the fall which are the rushee's initial contact with each of the sororities.

Warm smiles, friendly handshakes and enthusiasm mean Rush

Rushees learn more about fraternity life from the questions asked concerning the significance of these Phi Gam trophies.

Hearty congratulations are in order for proud ATO pledges on Sunday afternoon following their pledging ceremony.

Throughout the weeks of informal and formal rush, fraternities and sororities endeavor to extend the various aspects of fraternal life to those going through Purdue's rush program. For the girls, rush includes coke parties, suit parties and the final preference dessert. It means a helpful Panhellenic counselor, rush convocations and IBM invitations. Fraternity rush is on a more informal basis although it is conducted according to IFC rules, and it ends in pledging on a designated day. Rush provides the experience of making new friends and learning about one more aspect of college life.

Strawberry sodas served with a smile from the Kappa Express are enjoyed by their rushees during a coke party.

At suit parties elaborate themes like the Pi Phis' heaven are carried out in decorations, food and entertainment.

At the end of an eventful week, Greeks enjoy the colorful glamour of the Greek Week Ball and the gaiety of the Sweet Shop crowded with couples during an intermission.

Greeks devote week of activities to obtaining closer harmony

The Purdue Glee Club entertained guests at the Greek Week Banquet as they sing favorite renditions.

Although most construction work for the Carnival is done ahead of time, there is always a last nail to drive.

A few boards and a can of paint plus an original idea are all that a group needs for a successful booth at Penny Carnival.

In an effort to gain a closer understanding and improve relations between the organized students, independents and townspeople, the fraternities and sororities participate annually in Greek Week. Penny Carnival, a money-making project, is the opening event. The remainder of the week is filled with dinners, panel discussions and the Greek Week Banquet, where awards are presented to two outstanding independent students. This year a bridge tournament was initiated as part of the activities. A fitting climax is the Greek Week Ball, which is carried out with an appropriate theme.

Co-chairmen of Greek Week, Joan Nading and Phil Fischer, soon learn this project requires hours of work.

Playshop presents an array of dramatic talent

Combining dramatic and productional talents, the members of the Purdue Playshop presented a varied season of plays ranging from the musical gaiety of "Guys and Dolls" to the urgent suspense of "Death of a Salesman." The delightful comedy "Mr. Roberts" was their first presentation staged in the new Loeb Playhouse. It was followed by T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party." The Playshop's season closed with their meaningful portrayal of "Hamlet." The near-professional performances by amateur actors and excellent settings led to everyone's enjoyment of Playshop productions.

In the dramatic production of "Death of a Salesman," the emotional effect of Biff's apology to Willie is intense.

Mr. Roberts finds it easy to hold the crew's attention when he reads about the attractions of a South Sea island.

The new and modern facilities of Loeb Playhouse provided a perfect setting for production of "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Dropping in for a few hands of cards, Charlie became distressed as Willie talked incoherently during the game.

In "Mr. Roberts," Ensign Pulver found himself covered with soapsuds when his attempt to make a firecracker failed and resulted only in devastation of the laundry room.

Coeds do the asking during Dames Daze weekend

Dusty Henricks assumed the role of the dashing and suave Valentino during his lively campaign for Golddigger's King.

During this turnabout weekend, girls experience the frustration of waiting in line for a phone to call for a date.

The evening of the Golddigger's Ball finds girls waiting in line to order cokes and coffee in the Sweet Shop.

After each date during the three days of Dames Daze weekend, Judy Rule checks the Delta Gamma's date chart.

For an entire weekend, appropriately designated Dames Daze, Purdue men enjoyed the privilege of being pampered by coeds who planned and paid for all their dates. The highlight of the weekend was the crowning of Dusty Henricks as King to reign over the 1959 Golddigger's Ball. Prizes were awarded for the most original, most humorous and the prettiest corsages. As the annual sponsor of Dames Daze, Associated Women Students successfully initiated a date contest for women's housing units this year.

Elected by vote of the coeds attending the Ball, Dusty Henricks is crowned King by Joan Meek, President of A.W.S.

After she is crowned, the Junior Prom Queen is escorted by the Junior Class president to lead the Grand March which ends in a final formation of sixteen rows of couples.

Glimmering stars guide dancers at Junior Prom

Couples danced under a ceiling of sparkling stars, walked through the colorful streets of Paris and sat at tables adorned with red checkered tablecloths and candles at the Junior Prom. The major social event of the spring, this year's Prom featured the musical arrangements of Duke Ellington and his band and the unusual music of Chico Hamilton. Selected by the votes of couples attending and crowned by the Junior Class President, a queen and her court are honored at the dance. The exciting evening also includes a Grand March and a formal reception for guests in the Union lounges.

During dance intermissions, the Sweet Shop is filled with the sound of happy voices and the clinking of glasses.

At a reception honoring the Junior Prom Queen and court, couples gather around the table to enjoy punch and cookies.

Couples are favorably impressed with the unique musical arrangements of Duke Ellington and his world-famous band.

Alumni come from far and near for Gala Week

The Boilermaker Special turns out with many passengers for the annual Gala Week parade which proceeds around the Oval.

The Pump, which is symbolic of several traditions, is restored to the campus once more and maintained by the Reamers.

Typical of the many banquets during the week, the banquet held by the Class of 1908 provides an excellent opportunity for old friends to reminisce and relive the past.

Returning each spring for Gala Week, alumni are amazed at the changes and improvements which have occurred on the campus since their college years. This year they viewed the new Memorial Center with wonder. The entire week is filled with class reunions, banquets, parades, receptions and ceremonies. The traditional wreath is placed on John Purdue's grave, the old Pump dedicated and the oldest returning alums are honored. There is still time, however, for informal visits among old friends. As the week draws to an end, everyone vows to himself to return for Gala Week next year.

As a memorial to John Purdue, the founder of our university, a wreath is placed each Gala Week at his grave on the Oval.

Early in the morning, visiting mothers register in the Union and receive their programs for the weekend's activities.

Over a mid-morning cup of coffee and doughnuts, mothers and fathers enjoy the informal atmosphere of the Union lounges.

Mothers pleased with variety of musical renditions

It's a Phi Gam tradition to serenade their Fiji sweethearts when they give them the use of their house for the weekend.

Every spring University Sing is presented as one way of expressing our appreciation to our mothers. Weeks of song practice precede the time when the groups, composed of members of housing units, take their place on the stages of the Union ballrooms for the elimination rounds. The chosen finalists present the evening program in the Hall of Music, and the winners of University Sing are announced. A May Queen is crowned to reign during the evening. For the remainder of the eventful weekend, mothers are honored with dinners, skits and serenades; and they return home tired, but happy.

In the evening program of University Sing, the Kappa Kappa Gammas won first place in the finals of the women's division singing their rendition of "When Day Is Done."

The words of "Seeing Nellie Home," the Pi Kappa Phi's winning selection, brought back memories of old-time favorites to many smiling listeners in the Hall of Music.

Graduates prepared to assume place in society

Programs are scanned, mortar boards are straightened and collars are adjusted in preparation for that procession which means the presentation of coveted diplomas.

Graduation day is that long awaited day in the life of every student. It culminates the many hard hours of study and the warm and lasting friendships made through social contacts and the never ending round of activities. It opens the door to a new and eventful future. During his college years at Purdue, each graduating senior has been given the very best in academic and cultural advantages; and through the knowledge gained, he is better able to meet the challenging world he now must face.

Anticipation and excitement prevail in the Armory as anxious seniors wait behind their markers for the ceremony to begin.

Satisfaction of achieving a worthwhile goal is felt by each who passes on his way to claim recognition.

Nina Beth Whitehead

Homecoming Queen is crowned during half-time

The excitement of Homecoming weekend reaches its peak when the Homecoming Queen is crowned amid the activities of a busy half-time. Each women's housing unit is entitled to nominate a candidate, and the queen is chosen by a panel of judges composed of faculty members and townspeople. Selected on the basis of poise, personality and beauty, the queen and her court are presented at the Homecoming Dance in the evening. Nina Beth Whitehead was Homecoming Queen for 1958.

Seated in front of a blazing fire, the Homecoming Court composed of Nancy Carroll, Sharon Ricks, Sharon Holzhaue and Eleanor Lovell relax after all the excitement.

Julie Vaughn

Honored at the 1958 Junior Prom held in the spring were these four lovely members of the Junior Prom Queen's court; Jan Modesitt, Jane Wallace, Sue Oren and Beth Kent.

Queen selected amid splendor of the Junior Prom

After several busy weeks of vigorous skitting and campaigning, the night of the Junior Prom finally arrives for anxious queen candidates. The girls are all members of the Junior Class who have been nominated by their housing units. The queen and her court are selected by the votes of couples at the dance. Crowned with a garland of roses and presented with a trophy, the queen leads the Grand March and is honored at a reception. Julie Vaughn was selected to reign over the 1958 Junior Prom.

Carol Lockwood

May Queen and court reign over University Sing

One of the highlights of the spring season is the crowning of the May Queen. Each housing unit is given the opportunity to make nominations of outstanding senior women. The candidates are reviewed and the finalists selected by the Dean of Women's office. These are then voted upon by members of the senior class, and the queen is chosen. During University Sing night, the queen and her court sit in their places of honor and enjoy the performance. The privilege of becoming May Queen is one of the outstanding honors a coed may receive during her final year of study at the University.

Nancy Koho, Dee Allison, Carol Lockwood (Queen), Sue Messenger, Sally Steinhauer, Jean Campbell, Pat Klopfenstein and Karen Hartman composed the May Queen court.

Kris Johnson

A queen is selected to represent the Debris

Although majoring in mathematics, Kris still finds time to enjoy a good book chosen from Chi Omega's library.

On cold winter afternoons, Kris likes to curl up with a magazine, in spite of her enthusiasm for outdoor sports.

Anticipation filled the air in the Music Hall as the intermission of Varsity Varieties approached when the queen for the 1959 Debris was announced. Judged on the basis of poise, personality, beauty and photogenic ability, the finalist was selected by a panel of judges from a court of five girls. Jerry Kimball, Debris Business Manager, crowned the queen. Kris Johnson, the queen, received an engraved trophy and a spray of roses and represents Purdue in the national yearbook contest.

Kris is enjoying her senior year as she keeps busy with her campus activities and plans for a future career.

Debris Queen Court

Selected after several weeks of skitting by a popular vote of the students, Jean Edmond, Sharon Ricks, Wanda Wood and Molly Miller compose the 1959 Debris Court.

Several weeks before the Varsity Varieties show, each women's housing unit selects a candidate to represent it in the Debris Queen contest. Since the final court is determined by the votes of students, the candidates present skits at the men's housing units to gain their votes. Most of the skits are humorous, revolving around a catchy tune or slogan. Posters and matches are also used in the campaigns.

Georgia Sullivan, chosen by the popular vote of the magazine's subscribers, was 1958 queen of the Rivet.

Beauty, charm and grace abound on the Purdue campus

Sandy Brubaker, elected as Miss Indiana Photoflash of 1958, was later selected by the Air Force as their queen.

Judy Ward is queen of the Midshipmen's Ball with Louise Frazier, Carol Bartholomew, Pat Jones and Claudia Hurley.

as he does from the classroom.

UNION ACTIVITIES

With an over-all goal of effectual utilization of the facilities of the Memorial Union Building and the Memorial Center, the Student Union Board successfully sponsors many enjoyable events. The primary task of this group is supervision of student activities occurring in these buildings. The Senior Board, including Jack Coffin, Pat Preston, Bill Davis, Sue Oren, Doug Adams and President Bob Weis, worked to effectively coordinate the efforts of the junior vice-presidents and workers.

Many people admired the charming costumes and quaint objects of this Korean exhibit sponsored by Student Union as part of its Christmas Around the World Program.

The additional facilities created by the opening of the Memorial Center increased the responsibilities of this year's Student Union Board. In order to familiarize students and visitors with the newly available services, guided tours were provided as well as frequent receptions. One of the popular events under the sponsorship of the Student Union was the Books and Coffee reviews.

Books and Coffee, a Student Union sponsored function, never fails to provide an interesting literary discussion.

Freshman and sophomore workers training for junior jobs perform various tasks to prove their ability.

Many workers have spent long hours making backdrops for the various dances and big events which occur during the year.

The first item on the agenda of each fall's new Junior Board is the Freshman First Nighter which is followed by the Activities Carnival. The purpose of this Carnival is to acquaint students with the various activities on campus open to their participation. Cabaret dances held periodically provide an innovation to the usual dances. The decorations for other dances and key events are made by Student Union workers under the direction of the Junior Officers. Presented in the program for Homecoming weekend is a reception held in honor of returning alumni. Receptions are also held when mothers and dads receive special attention on the weekends planned in their honor. The entire campus is invited to the Student Union Decorating Party which commences the yuletide season. To complete the holiday mood, the Board sponsors an annual Christmas party at which the foreign students are invited to exhibit articles characteristic of their homelands. Gala Week, set aside to honor alumni, finishes the year.

The Activities Carnival is the ideal place for students to learn about the wide variety of activities on campus.

Wood Hall and Lambda Chi Alpha put the finishing touches on "Calypso Holiday" in a dress rehearsal for Varsity Varieties.

One of the highlights of the year is Varsity Varieties. Student Union Board members select acts that are representative of campus talent. Rehearsals are held to polish the entire show to perfection, and backdrops are made according to the needs of the acts. University Sing, held on Mother's Day weekend, is another time-consuming activity. Each housing unit rehearses two songs which best show the talents of the group. The final performance in the Hall of Music consists of the groups that have been chosen in the preliminaries to provide the best possible entertainment for the mothers.

Entertaining Old Masters gives student hosts and hostesses an opportunity to meet individuals who have been successful.

Many rehearsals took place before this hopeful group performed for judges at University Sing tryouts in the Union.

All beauty comes under surveillance of Camera Club members who never miss opportunities for good pictures.

Through the sponsorship of Student Union, opportunities are opened for hobbyists to meet together and compare notes. The Model Railroad Club meets on Wednesday evenings, when members work on equipment and prepare for periodic regional meets. Camera Club members, besides sharing a common interest in photography, prepare for local contests and exhibitions in their semi-monthly meetings. Launching contests held on the intramural field give Aeromodelers the chance to try out new models.

Aeromodelers utilize special materials to gain a combination of strength and lightness necessary for good models.

These models, placed on a realistic layout, provide hours of enjoyment as the craftsmen perform actual railroad maneuvers.

Associated Women Students

Purdue's AWS was founded in 1920 under the leadership of the Dean of Women, Carolyn Shoemaker. In 1931 Purdue's group worked out a formal constitution that is still being used, and today all women of Purdue University automatically receive membership in Associated Women Students upon enrollment. The ideal of the group is to further a spirit of unity among the coeds, while its purpose is to regulate matters pertaining to the student life of its members that do not fall under the jurisdiction of the faculty and to be a medium by which social standards of this University may be created and maintained. The activities of AWS during the year include such projects as the Golddiggers Ball, All-Women's Day, Dean for a Day, orientation for new students and all queen elections.

These two staunch members of the Derelicts are working laboriously on such club activities as loafing and more loafing.

This group, composed of junior officers in major activities, has absolutely no claim to fame. Its major selling points include no dues, no pledgeship, no initiation, no meetings, no anything. As a matter of fact, the one qualification for membership is a rather peculiar state of mind where nothing rates any importance whatsoever, where the victim has become a derelict and revels in this rather unusual condition. Its drifting members are barely able to gather up sufficient steam to finish another year, but all of them can claim membership in the most useless organization the campus has to offer.

The Derelicts

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors, all policies failed to be adopted because the members did not even have enough ambition to vote on the first motion.

Selling balloons prior to football games was a new project this year for the Women's Recreational Association. The balloons, which served a two-fold purpose as advertisement and as a means for obtaining funds, were released with the first Purdue touch-down of every game. Under the leadership of the Council, WRA works to promote interest in women's athletics, is responsible for arranging the intramural program for women and helps with selection of members for Sportswomen honorary. Besides individual and team trophies, an award is given annually to the most outstanding senior.

The Block P Card Section presents a pre-game and half-time show at each of the home football games. Composed of some two thousand freshman students, the Card Section has added completely new flash and instruction cards as well as white oilcloth capes this year. Besides having its own publication, The Blockite Spiel, the Card Section sponsors a dance at the end of each football season honoring all freshmen who were members. Five senior advisers, ten junior officers and approximately one hundred sophomore workers are responsible for the smooth functioning operations of the Card Section.

Student Senate

Under the guidance of President Ken Fletcher, Student Body Secretary Susie Bartlett and Speaker of the Senate Jerry Weisenauer, the twenty-five members of the Student Senate continued their activities as coordinators of twelve standing committees, temporary committees, Student Court and the Office of Student Services. As representatives of student opinion, the members strive to better the educational outlook of the students. The Senate was organized in 1952 upon the dissolution of the Student Council and serves as the legislative branch of Purdue Student Government. Its officers are elected by a majority vote of the student body, and meetings are regularly scheduled twice a month.

The Student Senate serves as the voice of the student to the administration in matters affecting student life and affairs. To promote a social and educational projects program, Student Senate organized the Student Economy Booklet, a Scholarship Report, a study of honesty at Purdue and the shipment of books to Koreans. The Old Masters Program, Campus Chest and student group insurance plans are responsibilities of Senate subcommittees. The annual activities are scheduled at the Fall Retreat, and later the Student-Faculty Committees Retreat is held to plan programs aimed at strengthening the two groups. A voting representative of the faculty attends the Executive Committee meetings.

Senators-at-Large, Bob Miller, Mimi McKnight and Bill O'Neal, serve as committee heads for many Senate projects.

Office of Student Services

Dusty Henricks, Business Manager

Anne Thacker, Services Director

Jim Reynolds, Student Body Treasurer

Julie Vaughn, Projects Director

Parker Wayland, Office Director

The Office of Student Services serves as the administration branch of the Purdue Student Government and promotes policies of the Student Senate. Parker Wayland, this year's Office Director, presided over all Executive Board meetings and held a seat on the Executive Council of the Student Senate. Assisting in the supervision of the various projects were: Jim Reynolds, Student Body Treasurer; Dusty Henricks, Business Manager; Julie Vaughn, Projects Director; and Anne Thacker, Services Director. Miss Cecelia Zissis and Dr. D. J. Grier act as advisers on projects and attend all Board meetings.

Initiation of new projects and the execution of OSS services are the tasks of the Junior Board. Among the many projects are included a lost and found service, committees on scholarship, weekly movies and the publicizing and promotion of campus activities. A Leadership Training Program offers pointers to aspiring executives while Freshman Orientation Panels give advice to new students. Another OSS service is the workshop where posters and mimeographed sheets can be duplicated. A Travel Service which offers rides home for vacation to students without any transportation and the supervision of campus elections complete a busy OSS calendar.

Plans for Purdue's Homecoming weekend are made by Ken Rich, Nancy Weaver and Bob Drescher, senior class officers.

Class Officers

President Bud Cunningham organized Junior Prom details with his co-officers, Ed Molnar, Jan Dawson and Bob Allen.

Reviewing petitions, selecting committee heads and members and formulating plans for the Junior Prom are the primary responsibilities of the junior class officers. In addition to their work of sponsoring the Homecoming Dance, selecting the Homecoming Queen and planning the events for Senior Cord Day, a new project was undertaken by the senior class officers. This project involved informing the senior class of the functions of the Purdue Alumni Association with particular stress on the importance of the scholarship fund.

Directing activities for the sophomores during the year were Judy Cary, Bill Hoover, Dick Sharp and John Nelson.

Organization is the primary task of the freshman class officers. First upon their list of responsibilities is the selection of council members and the adoption of a constitution. In addition to planning the Pot Burning, they sell Buzz Books, directories of the freshman class and class keys. A freshman newspaper was also published this year. In preparation for their Junior Prom next year, sophomore class officers had many projects. Selling Christmas cards and student directories contributed financially while the Sophomore Dance, Field Day, a Jazz Festival and making pep rally signs promoted class unity. Activities are published in the Scoop.

Freshman officers, Sandy Risk, Bob Brown, Dave Parent and Jim King, enjoy an informal session after council meeting.

Student Court

Ronald Taylor, Chief Justice

Before each session of Student Court, members carefully review all information to be presented on new cases.

Students pass judgment on students. Although the highest student judiciary body has an adviser from the Dean's Office, it has no faculty member attend its semi-weekly sessions. The Student Court is organized in the same manner as a regular court of law and is composed of eight justices, one public defender and three secretaries. Sponsored by the Office of Student Services, the Court deals mainly with offenses concerning misuse of student passports and car stickers. Student body organizations must present their constitutions to the Court for review and approval before they may be adopted.

PUBLICATIONS

The pace increases, typing becomes steadier, phones ring, and still the clock moves on until the layout is complete and another issue is ready to go to press.

As the final deadline nears, a serious atmosphere engulfs the office, and the stress is reflected on the faces of the staff.

Debris

Purdue's Debris provides a visual history of the year by recording student life, new developments and campus events. In existence since 1887, the Debris has been striving continually to attain the All-American rating, top honor for a college year-book. This year the Debris moved to a new office which includes an integral darkroom and photo department and offices for the Senior Staff.

A highly successful yearbook is a combination of pictures and words united by a central idea and presented with feeling and imagination. The editorial staff strives to make the Debris a record of the year, a good reference book and a public relations medium in the school. Chosen on the basis of past experience, work in the Debris office and recommendations from past editors, the editorial staff is in charge of planning, composing and publishing the Debris. Staff organization consists of the Senior Board, Junior Board and a staff of workers. The first Debris, promoted by George Ade, appeared in 1887. It contained no photographs but featured write-ups about each member of the Senior Class.

Jerry Kimball, Business Manager

The business staff of the Debris has some enviable duties along with the routine, including taking charge of the Debris Queen contest that is held each fall. Not all the work involves glamour, however. Organized to include the Business Manager and three juniors, the staff is held responsible for the various sales campaigns which occur throughout the year, for the circulation of the finished book and for the various sales records and financial accounts that are needed to keep the records straight. Freshman and sophomore workers assist in the routine duties of typing and filing records.

Junior Business Staff: Dick Griner, Bob Anderson, Hank Urbach.

Filing sales cards, totaling receipts and compiling sales reports are important functions of the business office.

George Shwab, Photography Editor

Photography plays an important role in the production of a yearbook, for much of the effectiveness of the finished product depends upon clear and meaningful pictures. Photographers spend many hours taking pictures in both the afternoons and evenings. The photography staff includes an editor and a junior staff in charge of production, coordination, negative room and print room. The Photography Editor is responsible for checking pictures for correct proportioning, contrast and content. This year for the first time, the entire photographic operation was located within the Debris office.

Many steps in the development of a final Debris picture occur in the dark-room before an engraving is made.

Exponent

Publishing a daily paper is a big responsibility, but the Editor-in-Chief of the Exponent and his nine senior staff members ably accomplish this feat. The Exponent, which was organized in 1889, informs students of the current news and human interest developments on and around campus as well as important national affairs. Refreshments and occasional junior editor and worker walkouts provide a welcome social break from the constant pace necessary to meet each early morning deadline.

George Schneider, Editor-in-Chief

Copy Editors: Phyllis Webster, Chuck Schroeder, Aldred Hellmich, Ellen Kenney.

Copy Editors: Linda Mallett, Julia Jackson, Joey Cole, Bette Speaker.

Al Gross, Associate Editor

Night Editors: John Ickes, Ed Budill, Dick Clayton, Sally Watlington, Walt Spencer.

Each detail of the forthcoming issue is planned to the typical and surface sounds of typewriters, ringing phones, the hum of voices and deliveries from the Sweet Shop.

Joe Pendry, Feature Editor

Jerry Hill, Managing Editor

Diana Williams, News Editor

Mike LeVitt, Business Manager

The advertising and circulation departments comprise the business staff of the Exponent. Working closely together, the juniors and seniors of these two groups are responsible for providing a means of support for their publication. Both advertising received from national syndicates and that which is solicited by freshman and sophomore routemen are featured daily in the Exponent. With a daily printing of approximately 3000 copies, the paper is circulated in many areas of the United States as well as foreign countries. Students, alumni and industry comprise the large majority of subscribers.

Junior Advertising Staff: Jack Lucas, Maudie Houtt, Joe Coffey, Dick Bratkovich.

Circulation Manager

Junior Circulation Staff: John Bacon, Fred Bartlett.

Pulling the first page proof from the bed is an exciting moment for the issue editor on his first night at the typesetters.

Bill Dohr and Gene Schreiber, Sports Editors.

One page of the Exponent is devoted daily to the coverage of all Purdue's major and minor athletic events as well as intramural competition. The five junior editors on the sports staff are responsible for the home football and basketball games, while the two senior editors attend and report on those games played away from home. The photography department, under the direction of the junior photo coordinator, works closely with the editorial staff and particularly with the sports department. Although some pictures are secured from other sources, the majority of the pictures are taken and developed by Exponent photographers. A file of all negatives and engravings is maintained for possible future use.

Engineer

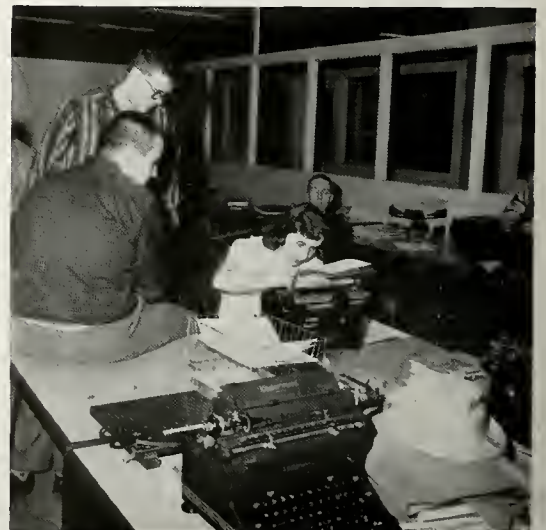

Progress is continually being made in the field of engineering, and these advances must be reported quickly and accurately to the students. The Purdue Engineer, a magazine which is published eight times during the year, provides such an information channel containing articles about the most recent and interesting engineering projects. Students who do work for this publication gain much valuable knowledge from reviewing the many research reports that are submitted for publication. In order to provide color for the magazine, a parody on all the types of engineers is offered once a year. This semester Purdue was awarded a third division prize by the Engineering Colleges Magazine Association for the best technical article. The staff, which has a junior and senior board, worked hard in order to bring the students a high quality publication.

Counting cash receipts at the end of the month is a necessary task that requires extreme accuracy and responsibility.

After rushing to get the next issue done by the deadline, it is pleasant to sit down, relax and enjoy the surroundings.

Typing the final copy is an important job, for everything must be perfect before being mailed to the printers.

Jim Lichtenwalter, Editor

Layouts of future issues of the Engineer must be planned by John Lodenkamper, Bob Simmons and Weldon Annable.

The Agriculturist, which has articles of interest for students, faculty and alumni of the School of Agriculture, provides an opportunity for students in the Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics to gain experience in journalism and those fields associated with the publication of a farm magazine. Published eight times a year, the Agriculturist competes with fourteen other agricultural magazines for the best covers, best issues, best home economics sections and best technical articles of the year. Faculty advisers offer ideas and suggestions to the staff at regular monthly meetings.

Editor Larry Shuman learns from Business Manager Lee Shafer that making a business profitable isn't an easy task.

Pharmacist

Bob Mayes, Leta Drafen, Bonnie Hanf and Jerry Taylor hunt for copy ideas in pharmaceutical publications and newsletters.

Since 1920 the Pharmacist has been published as a communicative periodical aimed at providing information on recent pharmaceutical developments, as well as school news and items of interest to members of the profession. With many Indiana retail drugstores on its mailing list, this publication has a circulation of almost 1700. Staff positions are open primarily to students in the School of Pharmacy, and honors are received by all officers and junior members at the Awards Banquet. Professional guidance is provided by Dr. G. E. Cwalina, Dr. G. J. Sperandio and Professor J. V. Bothel. One of the activities within the organization is the All-Pharmacy Picnic.

Workers in the Rivet office seem to enjoy reading the humorous magazine that appears five times annually as much as they enjoy doing the necessary pre-publication work.

Rivet

Five issues of the Rivet each year give Purdue students a rare chance to enjoy original satire and collegiate humor at a moderate cost. Covering such topics as the Beatnik generation, current campus events and personalities, the Rivet never fails to tickle the ribs of the students and many of the faculty members. One issue is devoted exclusively to satirizing one of the national magazines, since none of these publications lies above reproach in the eyes of the Rivet staff. Now in its twelfth year, the Rivet has enjoyed increasing popularity as evidenced by its yearly increase in circulation.

Scientist

Any interested student can work for the Scientist, which provides the campus with news of current scientific and technical development. Published four times a year, this magazine shows the integration and interdependence among the various sciences. The Scientist is a comparatively young organization, founded at Purdue in 1947. This publication is even distributed in many foreign countries. Staff members of the publication strive to promote closer contacts between the alumni and undergraduates of Purdue University. Six executive officers of the Scientist are assisted by faculty advisers.

Editors Richard Peterson, Sam Heltzel, Stan Roodman and Edward Warsaw look over a recent copy of the Scientist and make suggestions for improvement in future issues.

The Purdue Scientist is published four times annually to meet the interests of students in the School of Science.

Delta Sigma Epsilon

All senior "nebbishes" of Debris, Student Union and Exponent are members of Delta Sigma Epsilon. Expansion was the key word this year when the senior contemporaries of OSS were reluctantly accepted into the fraternity as the lowliest of pledges. Following in the footsteps of their fore-runners, the members of DSE traveled the well-worn, in fact downright bumpy, trails leading from the Union across town; and meetings were habitually called to disorder on Friday afternoons. The pooling of thoughts amidst pools of mouth moisteners was frequently interrupted by skits and contests of agility. DSE members bemoaned the fact that Student Union posters were not acceptable insofar as meaningful journalistic criteria are concerned. These notorious gatherings usually produced plots against juniors, new escape mechanisms, sessions of "toy boat" and high hopes of Eta Beta. The loyal members of DSE consider its organization, rationalization and procrastination as strictly "top drawer."

CLUBS

Clubs are welcomed as an outlet from studies, hobby groups provide a release from tension and professional societies augment education.

It is often necessary for the officers to get together and discuss the plans and details for forthcoming social events.

The Purdue chapter of the American Pharmaceutical Association strives to advance its profession by binding the students of pharmacy together for the attainment of common goals. Outside of their regular monthly meetings, the organization participates in many worthwhile activities such as the Pharmacy Banquet, student-faculty Pharmacy Picnic and decorating of showcases for National Pharmacy Week. This year the group began several new projects which included sponsoring professional talks and a winter formal. Students in the School of Pharmacy are eligible for membership.

Auto Club

The success of the Grand Prix made the Auto Club members feel that their efforts in organizing the race were not in vain.

One of the biggest sporting events of the year is the Purdue Grand Prix, sponsored by the Purdue Auto Club. This little car race was a new event on our campus, but it was so successful that it received a write-up in Popular Mechanics. Other activities which keep auto enthusiasts busy include the Auto Show, which is held on Mother's Day Weekend, the biannual auto safety check and auto reliability contests. The club was organized in 1951 with the aims of promoting safe driving throughout the community and providing facilities for students to repair and modify their own automobiles.

Spring finds the members of the Purdue Forestry Club participating in a field day with such contests as log chopping.

A campfire held in honor of the new freshmen served the purpose of a callout for the Forestry Club. New members had their first chance to participate when a display depicting the life and work of a forester was constructed for the Horticulture Show. Other group activities included the Woodchoppers Ball at Camp Cary, a club banquet and the publication of their first yearbook. In the spring the young Paul Bunyans flexed their muscles by participating in Field Day, a warm-up for the Midwestern Forester Conclave. The Purdue choppers have won the trophy for four consecutive years.

Garrison Park is a new and modern mobile-home court whose residents are required to be students in the University. The court has many facilities including a rifle range for gun enthusiasts, a rebuilt airplane, several rebuilt outboard motors and amateur radio stations. Two resident dancing instructors give lessons to the members of Garrisonville every Saturday night. The Park holds three parties each year, two of which are for the families plus a rabbit fry for the men. Even with Park activities and family life, the students are still able to participate in organizations on the campus.

Garrisonville is the only trailer park in the Tippecanoe County area where at least one member of each family is a student.

Institute of Aeronautical Science

The officers of the Institute of Aeronautical Science meet informally to plan the business for their monthly meeting.

In 1942 the student branch of the Institute of Aeronautical Science was organized with the purpose of making it easier for Purdue students to interchange technical ideas with aeronautical engineers throughout the world. Engineers who are prominent in their respective fields give technical lectures periodically during the year. Two dinner meetings are also held in cooperation with the Indianapolis section of the IAS. One of the main projects of this organization is the technical essay contest, which gives the student member a chance to win monetary prizes if his paper is published.

Students from other countries have joined with American students to form the International Association. With its goal of building an understanding among the different nationalities represented at Purdue, the club tries to gain the spirit of friendliness and mutual cooperation. Students may benefit both intellectually and socially from its frequent mixers, dances and panel discussions. During International Week, this organization works in close conjunction with other national groups in setting up public displays in the Union. United Nations Week is another of its important annual observances.

Outing Club

On a weekend trip to one of southern Indiana's scenic caves, an interested hiker stops to view an unusual rock formation.

Anyone who is of college age or older and interested in hiking, climbing, caving, canoeing, skiing or skin diving is eligible to participate in the Outing Club. Each weekend throughout the school year and during vacation holidays there are trips leaving for various parts of this state and surrounding states. The big outing of the year is the mid-semester ski trip to Wausau, Wisconsin. The Club's newest activity, skin diving, was successfully attempted on a trip to Florida over the Christmas vacation. With its many varied activities, the Club provides relaxing and enjoyable outdoor sport for all.

Purdue Crew

Crew members, who travel throughout the country, traditionally "dunk" their coxswain after each hard fought victory.

Outdoor water sport enthusiasts are brought together in the Purdue Crew, whose varsity team made its ninth year a success by placing fifth out of sixteen at the annual Dad Vail Regatta. The junior varsity took top honors from the eight other entries. Founded in 1949, the Crew has carried out its aim of furthering rowing and racing in the Big Ten and at Purdue University. In the fall season both the varsity and junior varsity finished the season with four wins and five losses. During Easter vacation, members traveled to Florida to train for and compete in races with southern colleges.

While gaining practice hours in one of the club's own airplanes, the pilot gets this picturesque view of the country.

The purpose of the Purdue Pilots organization is to give both students and faculty members a chance to fly airplanes at a reduced rate for business, pleasure and competition. In flying meets with near-by colleges and universities, the club competes for awards in lime sack bombing and spot landing contests. Lime sack bombing tests the skill of the pilot who attempts to drop a bag on the target from a specified altitude. At the present time the club owns and maintains three airplanes, two of which are trainers. Any Purdue student or staff member interested in learning to fly is qualified to join.

Rifle and Pistol Club

The Purdue Rifle and Pistol Club not only provides recreation for those persons interested in shooting, but also helps them gain a better understanding of firearms. Anyone who is interested in becoming more proficient in their use is invited to join. Each year the Varsity Rifle Team, sponsored by this organization, participates in competitions with other teams from the Big Ten and the Culver Military Academy. Members get together once a month for a regular business meeting, while practices for their own entertainment as well as competition are held twice a week in the Armory.

Members of the Rifle and Pistol Club must master the fundamentals of shooting before they attempt to fire on the range.

Coach Anthony Annarino was instrumental in leading the soccer team to its second Midwestern Soccer Championship.

This year the soccer team became the first in the conference to win the Midwestern Soccer Championship for two consecutive years. Captain Paul Coward and his team presented an over-all record of three wins, five losses and one tie which led the team into a three-way tie for the championship. At least twelve countries were represented on this year's squad, which made for a large and interesting variety of playing styles. Although Coach Annarino will lose five of his first string team through graduation, he will still have many promising players returning in the fall for a try at another championship.

The aim of the Purdue Veterans Association is to provide entertainment for its members as well as to assist them in solving their problems as veterans in a collegiate atmosphere. The club is interested in seeing that all of its members understand the GI Bill of Rights. One of the large activities of the year was the cleaning up of a woodworking shop in the Lafayette chapter of the Salvation Army. The Association is now supervising this shop for the benefit of Lafayette's youth. Veterans who have an honorable discharge and have served one year or more in active service are eligible for membership.

Yacht Club

The headquarters for weekend enjoyment, Lake Shafer is visited frequently by the sporting members of Yacht Club.

Hoping to advance, encourage and improve the art of yacht racing in particular and the sport of sailing in general, a group of boating enthusiasts united in the Yacht Club in 1948. The organization labors for the maintenance of high sporting ideals in sailing and yachting among all those who participate in the activity. The success of their work may be seen through the results of the competition in various regattas with different schools throughout the Midwestern states. Their "indoor" activities include a weekly meeting held on the campus and the publication of a newspaper, The Tell Tale.

Membership in the Industrial Co-op Student Society requires the student to be enrolled in the School of Civil, Electrical or Mechanical Engineering and a member of the Industrial Co-op Student plan. Because of the alternating between working at an industrial plant and studying at the University, the members are separated for a semester. To overcome this difficulty, the members of each section of the Society tape record their various activities so that the members of the next section will be aware of past business. The present goal of the group is to increase membership in the plan.

Behind the scenes of Purdue's unparalleled vocal performances is the Managing Board which keeps the organization running smoothly. Under the leadership of Al Stewart our vocal groups have become known internationally. In recognition of Mr. Stewart's great contribution to music and its enjoyment, he has been elected president of the Intercollegiate Musical Council. He has also received an alumni award from DePauw University. With students of Purdue's Musical Organizations, he represented the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce at the national convention in Washington, D. C.

Al Stewart, the "Ambassador of Good Will from Indiana," received the DePauw Distinguished Alumni Award.

Members of Purdue Musical Organizations Managing Board are Harvey Peggs, Sonya Stewart, Chuck Todd and Jon Smith.

The University Choir, the largest unit of Purdue's musical organization, is composed of approximately 300 students consisting of the Glee Club, Choraleers and other students who are admitted by audition. The principal performances of this group are the traditional Christmas and Easter Convocations. This year the Christmas Convocation was attended by over 15,000 people during the three performances. An effective part of the program was the use of projected scenes designed especially for the occasion. At the Easter program an additional 450 voices aided this group in entertaining.

Many students as well as outsiders who travel great distances are attracted annually to the Christmas and Easter cantatas presented by the 350-voice University Choir.

Glee Club

In spite of the fact that Purdue's renowned Glee Club has represented us internationally, nationally and statewide, it still finds time to entertain its own student body. Last spring the group sponsored a concert by the Obernkirchen Children's Choir from Germany, thus renewing acquaintances made on its good will tour to Europe. The Glee Club was featured at the 50th anniversary of Portland, Oregon's, Rose Festival and appeared at the Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital. During nationwide tours, the Glee Club sang at concerts and conventions and appeared on radio, on television and in movies.

A doll symbolizing friendship was presented to Al Stewart by the Director of the famed Obernkirchen Children's Choir.

On one of its many concert trips, the Varsity Glee Club performs in the picturesque scenery of Sun Valley, Idaho.

The Griffiths brothers, Jim and Bob, frequently are featured as soloists during performances of the Glee Club.

The Glee Club's active calendar of rehearsals and tours is pleasantly interrupted by their annual formal dinner-dance.

Aside from routine performances, Choraleers provided half-time entertainment at one of Purdue's home basketball games.

Fifty charming girls with outstanding vocal ability, beauty and stage presence are selected each year in competitive tryouts to represent the Purdue Musical Organizations as the Choraleers. Under the direction of Bruce G. McGuire, the Choraleers present a varied program of entertainment for conferences, television, campus organizations and special meetings in Indiana. The group combines with the Glee Club to present the annual Christmas Convocation and the Easter Convocation, while a girls' trio and girls' barbershop quartet provide specialty acts and make solo appearances.

WBAA

Being awarded two citations by the National Association of Educational Broadcasts for the special programs, "Atoms for Peace" and "Hier Deutschland," was a major accomplishment for WBAA. These programs are among the great variety offered to listeners. In the educational field a regular course in Russian and programs featuring various speakers on psychology were presented. This year for the first time, the reviews given at Books and Coffee were rebroadcast, while radio stage shows for children were a special feature. WBAA also covers sports activities of Purdue and the local high schools.

Soon the play being rehearsed, "The Pussy Cat and the Expert Plumber Who Was a Man," will become a radio stage show.

WCCR

WCCR, "The Voice of Cary Club," broadcasts to fifteen sororities, fraternities, co-ops and the men's and women's residence halls. It has the capacity to put out four separate programs simultaneously. The record library of WCCR contains over 40,000 selections including pops, jazz and classical music. Phone interviews and shows relayed from the Union to fraternities are very popular. The station has sponsored record hops at housing units and the Co-Rec Gym. This year a stereo show was broadcast by WCCR, the first college radio station in the United States to attempt a program of this kind.

Engineers at WCCR announce and play records in addition to being responsible for the technical aspects of broadcasting.

New office space at the WCCR studio provides the necessary facilities to accommodate phone calls and clerical work.

KMRX

WRX radio station, which recently changed its call letters to KMRX, is located in the basement of H-3 and is part of the Purdue Residence Network. Serving Excalibur Club, Hall X and the Women's Residence Halls, it broadcasts disc jockey shows, recordings of the semi-monthly Student Senate meetings and makes announcements of campus news. Six officers are responsible for the smoothly operating program. In addition to a president and the combined office of secretary-treasurer, experienced individuals are chosen to serve as directors of operations, engineering, programs and announcing.

Two members of the KMRX staff are "on the air" with one of the disc jockey programs that can be heard each afternoon.

Several members of the Forensic Board meet to discuss plans for one of the seven speech contests which they supervise.

A large part of the extracurricular speech program on the Purdue campus is administered by the Forensic Board. Forty to fifty colleges and universities throughout the nation come to the campus for the intercollegiate debate tournaments which are sponsored by the Department of Speech. While Board members are sometimes assigned to managing positions for these tournaments, they are primarily concerned with seven intramural speech contests held annually. The awards are contributed by individuals and businessmen. Approximately two hundred students enter intramural competition.

Varsity Debate and Discussion

Over seventy-five students participated this year in two of the primary activities of Purdue's forensic program, intercollegiate debate and discussion. A variety of topics was analyzed during the season. The department of speech sponsored trips to fifteen colleges for the debaters to enter competition on the proposition for 1958-59, "Resolved, that the further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement." Much of the necessary experience in research, analysis and presentation of significant public issues is obtained through audience debates and radio programs.

A man's struggle to coincide the present with his dreams of the past is depicted in this scene from "Death of a Salesman."

Purdue Playshop, in its thirty-second year on campus, was again a success with the presenting of five major productions and several experimental plays. The group opened the year with the production of "Mr. Roberts" and followed it with "The Cocktail Party," "Death of a Salesman," "Guys and Dolls" and "Hamlet." All major plays were held in the new Loeb Playhouse in the Memorial Center, while the experimental plays, designed to give underclassmen a chance to gain experience in acting, were held in the Experimental Theatre. After each play, members traditionally held a party.

R ELIGION

The Student Religious Council is a delegated body consisting of three representatives from each student religious group on campus. The Council serves as a cooperating link between religious organizations and a liaison in terms of service projects and common concerns between these groups and the University administration. With continual emphasis on religious activities, the Council sponsors an annual Conference of Religions, Brotherhood Week and the religious Christmas display in the Union. Publishing a brochure on religion at Purdue and distributing preference cards are two other services.

Planning service projects and activities are just a part of the work conducted in the Student Religious Council office.

The supper served every Sunday evening at the Purdue Christian Foundation provides a relaxed atmosphere in which fellow worshippers may also meet on a social basis.

Purdue Christian Foundation

Students are welcome anytime to the friendly atmosphere of the Purdue Christian Foundation located at 315 University Street. This organization serves students in their spiritual, recreational and fellowship needs. Through such functions as study groups, parties and Sunday evening cost suppers, students find a diversion from their studies and a chance to know each other better, while Sunday morning worship services provide them with a spiritual outlook on life. The facilities of the building include a worship center, recreational area and a living room for pleasant relaxation.

Foundation members pose for an informal picture before the panel discussions usually held after the business meeting.

The University Presbyterian Church nears completion with the aid of a huge crane that erects beams in seven seconds.

The religious atmosphere of the campus is influenced by architecture, as well as by sermons and studies. The building now under construction is a sermon in stone with stalwart pillars. The spirit of students is most essential to life; we live by what we know and believe. Dr. Rasmusson preaches a sermon three times each Sunday, and his marriage lectures guide the future of many students. Six discussion classes are led by Rev. Chalfant. Here a student gains a dimension of depth to his personal philosophy which undergirds his professional and social approach on and beyond the campus.

The Purdue Newman Club has been nationally recognized as one of the most prominent Newman Clubs in the United States. The main purpose of the organization is to promote social, cultural and religious training of both the graduate and undergraduate Catholic students at Purdue. The club offers inquiry classes, discussion groups, guest speakers and many social functions such as the Mardi Gras Dance, the Children's Christmas party, Sunday night suppers and Tuesday night meetings. This organization of over 600 members is advised in its operation by Prof. W. J. Whalen and Dr. R. A. Benkeser.

Paul Redelman, Janis Breiner, Harriet Wood, Al Pinihak, Father Leo Piquet and Larry Galuppo hold an officers meeting.

Newman Club

Dr. John J. Kaine, a sociologist from the University of Notre Dame, spoke to members of the Newman Club concerning "Modern Dating Practices and Your Marriage."

The University Lutheran students meet every Sunday night for dinner before their regular program which usually consists of visiting speakers, films and discussions.

University Lutheran Chapel

University Lutheran Chapel officers set aside one of their Sunday meetings to select officers for the ensuing year.

When the school year began, the students at the University Lutheran Chapel were greeted by Pastor Rudolph Rehmer, who came to Purdue from Kent State University. During Orientation Week the freshmen were honored at the traditional reception. The following week upperclassmen returned to campus, and the religious and social programs were organized for the semester. The Lutheran Chapel student choir rehearsals and regular Sunday night meetings were among the weekly gatherings scheduled. In preparation for the Christmas holidays, a candlelight service was held for the students.

The Lutheran Student Foundation was established for the purpose of ministering to the spiritual welfare of Lutheran students in accordance with the precepts of the Christian faith. The program of the Lutheran Student Association includes a Sunday evening supper and program meeting and weekly Bible study and discussion groups. A graduate student and staff group has similar meetings every two weeks where common interests and problems relating to the Christian faith are shared and discussed. Governed by a council, the Association is further responsible for its publication, Pulsa Beats.

Lutheran Student Foundation is a popular place for socializing after football games and for weekly discussion groups.

In attempting to fulfill the needs and interests of its members, Hillel Foundation sponsors a wide variety of activities, both social and cultural. In addition to attending the Sunday night cost suppers which usually feature guest speakers and movies, students visit frequently throughout the week to make use of the library and recreational facilities which are available. Some of the events which inspired the 1958-59 academic year were the Mortgage Burning Ceremony Dinner, Installation Dance, Purim Carnival and the convening of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Midwest Conference at the University.

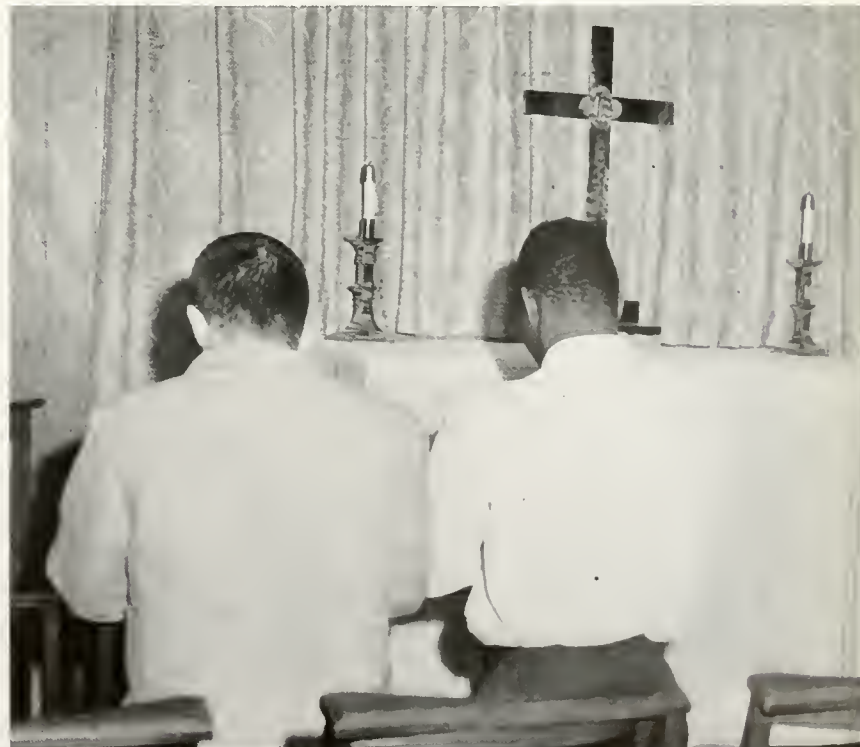

The Sunday evening speaker at Canterbury Club provides members with a topic for discussion groups that are organized after the formal meeting and devotion service.

Canterbury Club

Purdue Canterbury is the Episcopal Church on the campus, and all students who are Episcopalian and any other interested persons are its members. Its influence is felt through worship, study, service and fellowship that take place in St. John's Church, Canterbury House and the Chapel of the Good Shepherd. Canterbury helps its members achieve a more mature understanding of the Christian faith, relating it to their lives, especially in the pursuit of truth. It is a concerned community which accepts people for what they are and ministers to their needs in the spiritual dimension of life.

Canterburians gather regularly in the Episcopal Chapel of the Good Shepherd to find peace and quiet for meditations.

Christian Science Organization

The Christian Science Organization serves to acquaint students and faculty with the teachings of their religion. Its members are given an opportunity to serve through weekly testimonial meetings, annual lectures on Christian Science and various other activities throughout the year. A representative is appointed to distribute the Christian Science Monitor.

Wesley Foundation

Discussions of world affairs and matters pertinent to religion and campus life are part of the Sunday evening program.

Wesley Foundation is at work for the Methodist students on the University campus. A community of worship, an emphasis on study and discussion and a fellowship of service fulfill its educational function. Religious faith matures as students develop other aspects of personality and intellect during their four years of academic endeavor at the University.

HONORARIES

Hard work and a job well done, in the form of scholarship, executive positions or athletics all lead toward deserved recognition provided by Purdue's honoraries.

Mrs. Marguerite Albjerg

Susie Bartlett

The Purdue chapter of Mortar Board was founded in 1926 to promote college loyalty, recognize leadership, maintain a high standard of scholarship and stimulate a finer type of college woman. To be eligible for membership, a junior woman must be outstanding in all phases of college life and have a superior academic record. The major project of Mortar Board is the sale of Mortar Board calendars. Other activities include sending recognition letters to outstanding sophomore women and the Alpha Lambda Delta party to honor and to become better acquainted with the members of Alpha Lamb.

Iron Key

Iron Key members traditionally remain secret until the familiar "clank-clank" of Iron Keys rings across our campus during Gala Week. May 2 brought an end to the air of suspense that always surrounds the announcement of those who attain this position of campus eminence. Thirteen silver keys, the symbol of this senior men's honorary, were awarded this year; and Donald R. Mallett was welcomed as an honorary Iron Key. While a certain amount of mystery is connected with every facet of this organization, selections are based largely upon leadership, scholarship and service to the University.

Gimlet Club

Members of the Gimlet Club bring out the Victory Bell for the traditional parade after a Big Ten victory for Purdue.

The sale of Purdue football history books was the major fall project of the Gimlets. Gimlets are outstanding junior or senior fraternity men organized to support athletics. Following all the Purdue Big Ten football victories, Gimlets parade the Victory Bell. During pledgship, pledges wear black pots, carry "goodie" boxes and attend daily noon meetings on the steps of the Executive Building for school songs and cheers. When activated, the black pots are reversed to become yellow with a gold "G." Gimlets serve Purdue by ushering at basketball games and still find time for some social events.

Gold Peppers

Continued service to the University is the goal of the Gold Peppers. Qualifications for membership in this honorary for upperclass women include scholarship, service and leadership. Gold Peppers was founded by Mortar Board to back University athletics, foster ideals and traditions and honor prominent junior women. Parties with other booster organizations make up the social calendar for the year. Joining with Panhel and Mortar Board, the Peppers award a yearly scholarship to an outstanding senior continuing her education. One can easily spy a new pledge wearing her black pot and swinging a pepper.

Gold Pepper actives cut out green shamrocks and put them on pledge pots that will be used to tap on St. Patrick's Day.

Helping to keep many Purdue traditions alive, the Reamers offer various services throughout the year. They are not only in charge of operating the Boilermaker Special, but engage in such projects as the selling of "Boilermaker Special" buttons and awarding the plaque for the outstanding athlete of the year. Prospective members of the honorary are first chosen from independent junior and senior men who have displayed the most enthusiasm in campus activities, and final selections are based on personal interviews. Pledging begins immediately, and soon wooden "R" pledge boards appear on campus.

Tomahawk

An award is presented to the pledge who best fulfilled the pledge program at each initiation of the Tomahawk honorary.

Tomahawk is an honorary for independent sophomores who have done outstanding work in activities. This organization was founded first at Purdue in 1949, and now there are chapters at four other colleges and universities. Pledges attend weekly pledge meetings, carry boards for signatures of actives, attend all athletic events and carry out a pledge project. The Tomahawks stimulate freshman interest in activities, provide leadership training, perform services for the University and act as boosters for athletics. Each semester a Best Pledge Award is given to honor a deserving pledge.

The bulletin board maintained by APO serves as a source of information and a popular between-class gathering place.

To assemble college men in the fellowship of the scout oath and law, to develop friendship and to promote service to humanity are the objectives and ideals of Alpha Phi Omega. APO members contribute greatly by taking charge of campus elections, instructing scout swimming classes, visiting hospitalized students and maintaining a campus bulletin board. Income for the organization is derived from the sale of magazines. The coveted award in the APO organization is the Dwight Scarseth Memorial Outstanding Senior Award which is based on accomplishments and spirit of service shown by a senior.

A short four-week pledging period precedes initiation of Alpha Lambda Delta pledges. During this period the pledges wear white pots with the emblem of a flaming candle and carry pledge boards. One of the activities of the pledges is to act as guides for High School Day in the spring. Founded at the University of Illinois in 1924, Alpha Lamb brought its second chapter to Purdue in 1926. The purpose of this organization is to promote intelligent living with an increased appreciation of both the love of study and the cultural phases of academic life for the maximum use of individual potential.

Pledges and actives are given an opportunity to get to know each other through the traditional signing of pledge boards.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma, national honor society for freshman men, was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923. The purpose of this organization is to promote higher scholastic standards and to encourage high academic attainment among the freshman men in institutions of higher learning. Either a 5.5 index for the first semester or an accumulative index of 5.5 for the first year is necessary for membership. Each year the Purdue chapter distributes a pamphlet of study hints to all incoming freshmen. Other services include providing a freshman scholarship and acting as guides on High School Day.

Tau Beta Pi

Members of Tau Beta Pi, an engineering honorary for upperclassmen, frequently aid underclassmen with their studies.

Standing as a memorial near the Engineering Administration Building is the large brass "bent," symbol of Tau Beta Pi. Purdue's chapter was founded in 1903 to recognize superior students in engineering. Pledges may be recognized by their wooden "bents" which are carried during their pledgship. All junior men with a 5.5 accumulative index and all senior men with a 5.0 index are eligible for election to Tau Beta Pi. This organization presents a slide rule to the highest ranking freshman engineering student and a scholarship to a freshman or sophomore who has been outstanding.

Pi Tau Sigma

The regalia worn by pledges of Pi Tau Sigma, an engineering honorary, adds color to the campus every fall and spring.

The white hat and white gloves of an engineer mark the pledgship of a man into Pi Tau Sigma, national mechanical engineering honorary. Junior and senior men who meet scholastic requirements submit written interviews and attend two smokers before final selection of members. Pi Tau Sigma gives service to other mechanical engineering students by providing free tutoring, publishing Slide Rule Shortcuts and maintaining the Mechanical Engineering Library reading room. This organization strives for greater student-faculty cooperation by having two joint banquets annually.

Eta Kappa Nu, an honorary for electrical engineers, promotes the electrical engineering profession. To be eligible for membership, one must have completed two semesters in electrical engineering and be outstanding in scholarship, extracurricular activities and personality. The honorary's social activities include informal smokers featuring guest speakers who address the pledges, a formal banquet given for all members and competitive sports between other engineering honoraries. Additional projects are tutoring electrical engineering students and presenting the Outstanding Freshman Award.

Iota Lambda Sigma

In partial fulfillment of their four weeks pledge program, pledges of Iota Lambda Sigma hold meetings twice a week.

Iota Lambda Sigma, national honorary for industrial education, was chartered at Purdue in 1940 as Mu Chapter. The purpose of this organization is to promote the interests and welfare of its members and to further the purposes and ideals of industrial education. To be qualified for pledging, a student enrolled in industrial education must have a scholastic index of 4.5 and be at least a Sophomore 4. Selected for their personality and interest, pledges have regular meetings and social activities. The big event of the year is the initiation banquet which is usually held at the end of February.

A series of elimination contests are initiated yearly as preliminaries for the speech tournament sponsored by Alpha Zeta.

The Alpha Zeta Speech Contest is the major project of the Purdue Chapter of Alpha Zeta, national agricultural honorary fraternity. To be eligible for membership in this organization, one must be a junior or senior, have a personal interest in agriculture and have at least a 4.5 accumulative index. Alpha Zeta members perform services to the University by counseling freshmen agriculture students and acting as guides for high school students especially interested in agriculture. Another activity carried on by Alpha Zeta members is the hanging of pictures of all senior agricultural students in Ag Hall.

The Purdue chapter of Kappa Epsilon, founded in 1947, was established to unite women employed in pharmaceutical pursuits, to assist in advancement of pharmaceutical education and to cooperate with college faculty in maintaining high scholastic standards. Women who have attained a 4.0 accumulative index in the School of Pharmacy are eligible for membership. Each year a party is given for sophomore girls, and a banquet for new initiates is held in the spring. Kappa Epsilon helps with the annual Pharmacy Clinic, the Professional Pharmacists Conference and sponsors a senior banquet.

Membership in Kappa Epsilon serves as a means of uniting women who are or will be employed in pharmaceutical jobs.

Kappa Psi

Kappa Psi, national pharmaceutical honorary, endeavors to promote fellowship, scholarship, high ideals and interest in pharmaceutical research. Meetings such as group discussions, films and educational programs with speakers are held twice a month. During the year, Kappa Psi sponsors the Annual Pharmacy Round-Up Banquet for pharmacy students, the pharmacy picnic and the annual Sweet-heart Dance. Membership in Kappa Psi affords the opportunity to belong to a professional honorary fraternity which will have many advantages when engaged in the practice of pharmacy in later life.

In a typical monthly meeting, members of Kappa Psi discuss and make arrangements for their remaining scheduled events.

Dolphin

Laughter for all is provided by some Dolphin Club members as they rehearse a comedy routine for the winter carnival.

Men who are interested in swimming and aquatic activities and who have a 3.75 accumulative index are eligible for membership in Purdue's swimming honorary. Dolphin sponsors swimming shows in the fall prior to football games and also in the spring. The proceeds from their shows are used to sponsor the swimming team's yearly trip to Florida. Pledge life for Dolphins lasts from four to six weeks and consists of carrying gold fish and a pledge board around campus. The Dolphins strive to encourage interest in swimming through their water shows and enthusiastic swimming team.

Tau Kappa Alpha

The members of Tau Kappa Alpha, when in the midst of debate, are oblivious to their surroundings in the Sweet Shop.

To give suitable recognition for excellence in forensics and original speaking, Tau Kappa Alpha was founded in 1908. Members are chosen after two years of active participation in speech activities and must have a scholastic ranking in the upper third of their class. One of the major purposes of the organization is to foster respect for the freedom of speech as a vital element of democracy. Tau Kappa Alpha as a national organization sponsors many of the intercollegiate speech events in which the members participate, while local activities are designed for practice in developing techniques.

Outstanding journalists on Purdue's campus are honored by membership in Sigma Delta Chi. Membership is restricted to men students holding a junior staff position on a campus publication. Each year as their project, the pledges publish the Bar Rag, a campus parody which is distributed at Homecoming. The main project of the chapter is the annual awarding of the Best Teacher Award and the Leather Medal Award. Purdue's chapter, which was founded in 1911, is unique in the fact that it is the only chapter which is located at an institution that does not have a school of journalism.

Members of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism honorary, annually publish a short satirical newspaper entitled the Bar Rag.

Kappa Kappa Psi

Kappa Kappa Psi sponsors programs to honor the outstanding bandmen and provide needed services to the band.

The Gamma Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi, a national honorary for bandmen, was founded on Purdue's campus in March, 1956. Pledging takes place twice a year and lasts approximately six weeks. Those not fulfilling pledge duties are required to carry a Fubar, a large pledge board in the shape of a Purdue band key. A service group for the band, Kappa Kappa Psi's purpose is to distinguish the superior college bandmen. Making bus signs for band trips, selling band sweat shirts and records and sponsoring a trophy awarded to an outstanding senior bandman have been some of this year's projects.

MILITARY

The thorough training needed for the task of leading America's military forces in these uncertain times is provided by Purdue's extensive ROTC program.

Army ROTC is largest of campus military units

After the cadets learn the fundamentals of correct marching, several hours of drilling the platoon are necessary in order to make a well-executed column-left movement.

Military training at Purdue University dates back to 1876 when a company of infantry was organized on a voluntary basis. Since its founding date, the Army ROTC program has grown to become the largest of the Military Corps on the campus. At present there are approximately 1400 students enrolled in the basic course and 450 other students enrolled in advanced training. The purpose of the program is to furnish a corps of trained army leaders who will be ready in time of national emergency. Completion of the four-year program of ROTC instruction qualifies the student for a commission as an Army Second Lieutenant.

Senior Cadet Ted Myers inspects an ROTC freshman to check whether his uniform and equipment are in order.

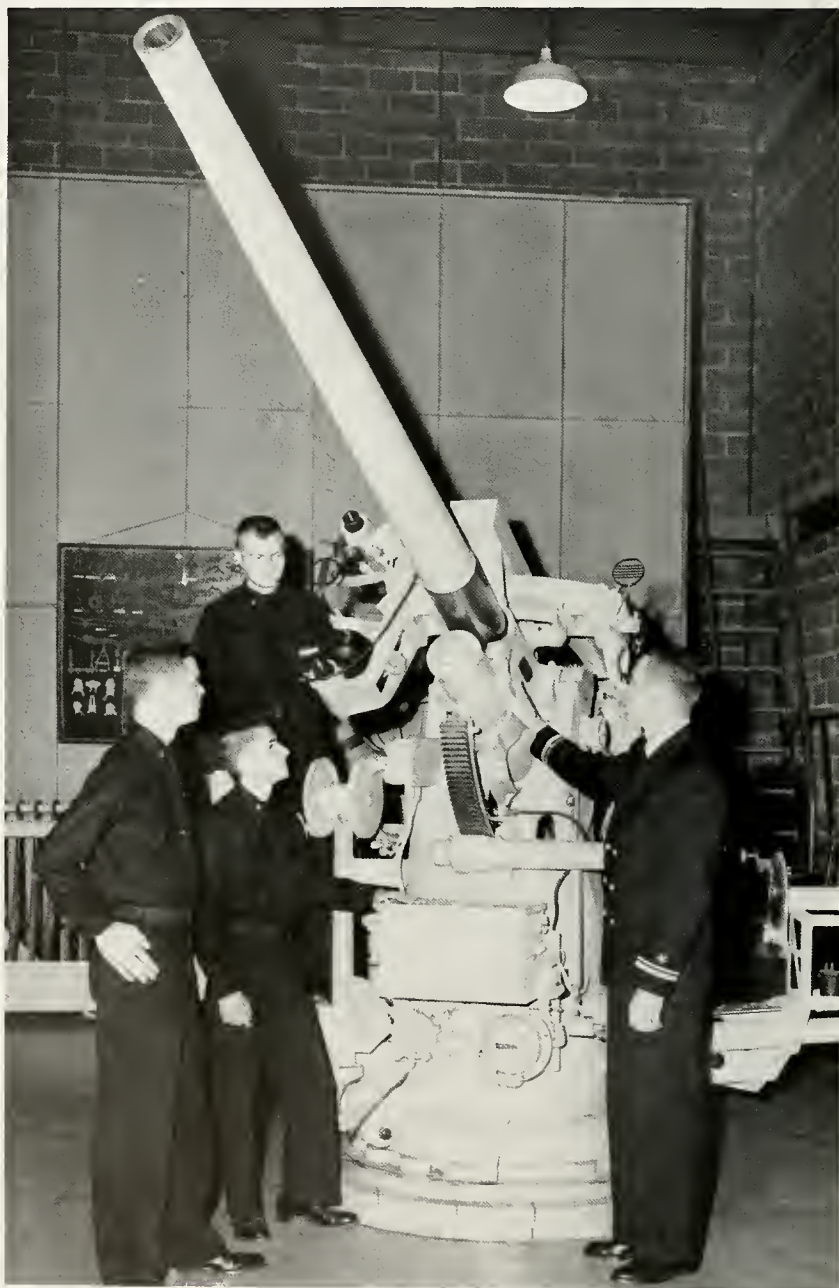

Gunnars Putnims and two classmates give a demonstration of artificial respiration to an Engineers Corps class in ROTC.

Colonel Francis Clark, Professor of Military Science and Tactics

Naval ROTC has one of its most active years

NROTC training familiarizes students with the fundamentals necessary to understand weapons like the three-inch gun.

The check presented by Captain Lee to the United Fund was made possible by the cadets' broom selling campaign.

Most of the Navy's active duty officers are furnished by NROTC programs in the United States. Purdue has both the regular and contract phases of the program. The regular student receives books, tuition and $50.00 a month for board and room for four years, while the contract student must go for four years receiving pay during his last two years. Purdue's new program, the NEASP, is offered to petty officers who come from the regular Navy to school. After spending four years at Purdue and two with the fleet, they receive a degree in electrical engineering and the rank of chief petty officer.

Captain Edwin S. Lee,
Professor of Naval Science

Cadets anxiously await class dismissal after spending two tedious hours each Thursday afternoon from three to five practicing marching formations across the field.

A number of Air Force cadets are standing at strict attention, as they would prefer learning military discipline to spending long wearisome hours working off demerits.

AFROTC promotes high standards of training

Captain John C. M. des Islets makes appropriate use of visual aids to teach an advanced class of Air Force cadets.

Purdue's AFROTC training, rated one of the best in the country, sets up rigid entrance requirements for those wishing to enroll for advanced training. During the past year, AFROTC has been made even more inviting with the addition of an L-17 aircraft program for student flying instruction. The plane used for this program is shared with Notre Dame and is stationed at the Purdue Airport on alternate months. Several field trips were taken throughout the year. These trips, including those to Eglin and Donaldson Air Force Bases, in Florida and South Carolina, were interesting as well as instructional.

Colonel Gilbert E. Teal,
Professor of Air Science

Cadet George Bigson's assignment includes giving a report to the class on retirement benefits offered by the Air Force.

Howard Trudeau takes advantage of the opportunity to talk with Captain Curo, one of his training officers.

Cadets watch a demonstration of the Honest John rocket, a member of the Army's modern might, as part of the six-week summer training camp at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Summer camps provide much practical training

Army and Air Force summer camps, which all students of advanced ROTC must attend, offer not only a theoretical study but allow for practical application as well. Throughout the six-weeks duration of the camp, time is spent carrying out military assignments and adjusting to Army and Air Force life. Leadership is emphasized continuously, and a healthy relationship between the officers and subordinates is obtained. Although the camps provide little time for rest, cadets realize that they are receiving invaluable training which will help to prepare them for a possible future in the military life.

Cadet Ronald Zike is making a hasty exit from the tear gas chamber, since apparently his gas mask isn't working.

Preparation for a take-off in a T-33 is just one of the ways that these cadets are gaining practical knowledge.

The ability to use a pistol competently is as much a part of Air Force cadet training as familiarity with airplanes.

The combination of the well-known hot and humid Texas climate with calisthenics performed every morning at reveille serves to keep cadets in top physical condition.

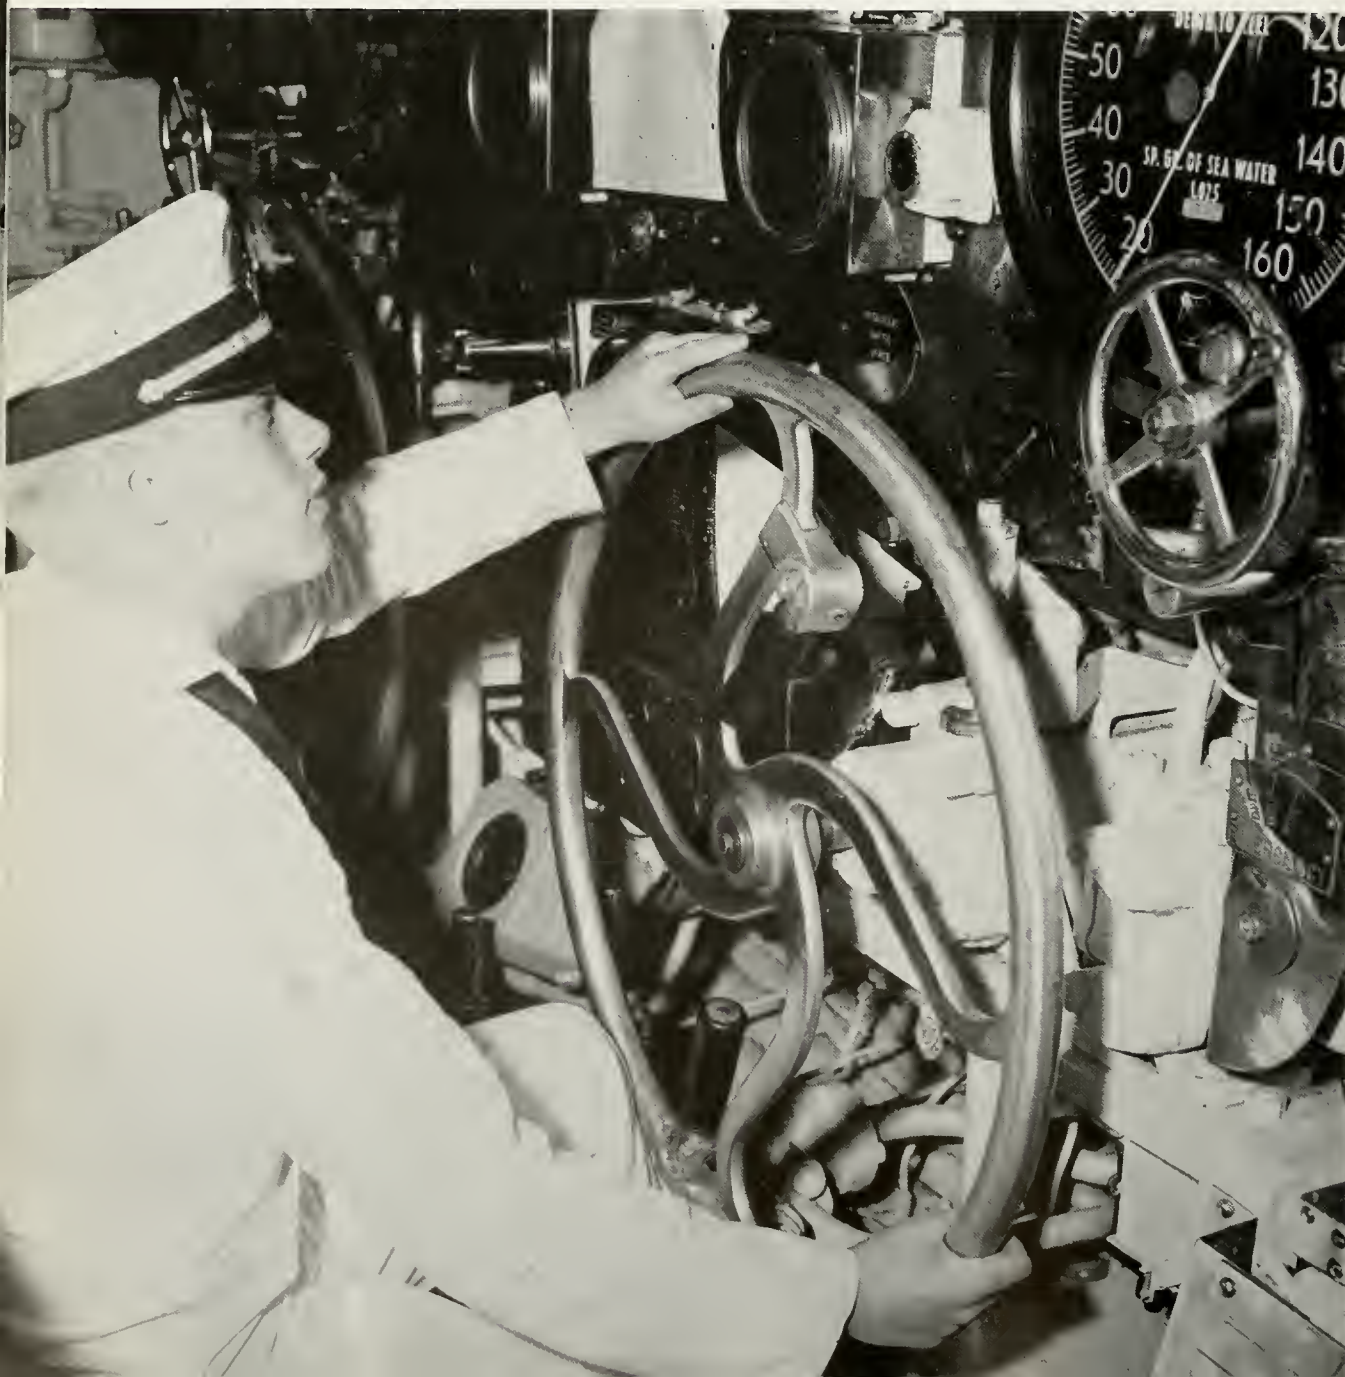

The Navy realizes that only a certain amount of training may be gained in the classroom. Therefore, summer cruises and training sessions are designed to give practical experience to supplement classroom experience. During the recent cruises, NROTC midshipmen were aboard ships of the U.S. Sixth Fleet which made landings in Lebanon in August of 1958. They were also aboard ships of the Seventh Fleet patrolling the waters of the Formosa Straits during the cruises in the area last summer. On board ship, midshipmen are given the opportunity to learn duties of ordinary seamen and junior officers.

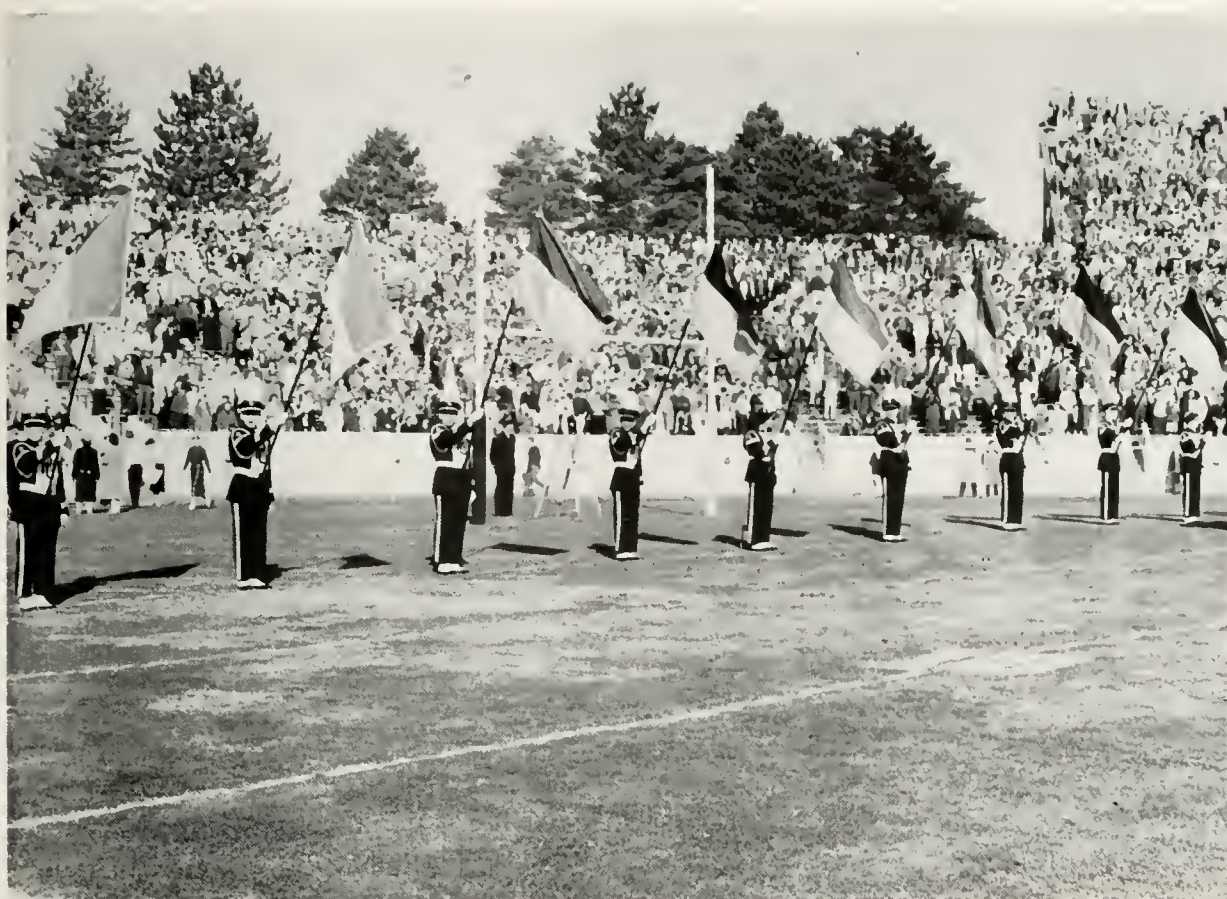

Several members of the NROTC summer cruise were fortunate enough to go aboard the aircraft carrier, the USS Ranger.

The flagbearers of the band are an impressive sight as they march down the length of the field carrying multicolored banners representing each of the Big Ten schools.

Marching band continues to thrill the football fans

Led by the Golden Girl, the marching band is on its way to the football stadium for another Saturday afternoon performance.

All of Purdue is proud of its All-American marching band. It is one of the largest of its kind in the country, and one must look very hard to find another equal to it as a marching unit. The band has been the recipient of many honors and awards. Last spring it was rated the most outstanding band and marching unit at the "500" parade in Indianapolis. Some members were represented at each football game away from home this year, and several traveled to Texas for the Rice game. Flashy gold and black uniforms were purchased this year which added to the Saturday afternoon spectacles.

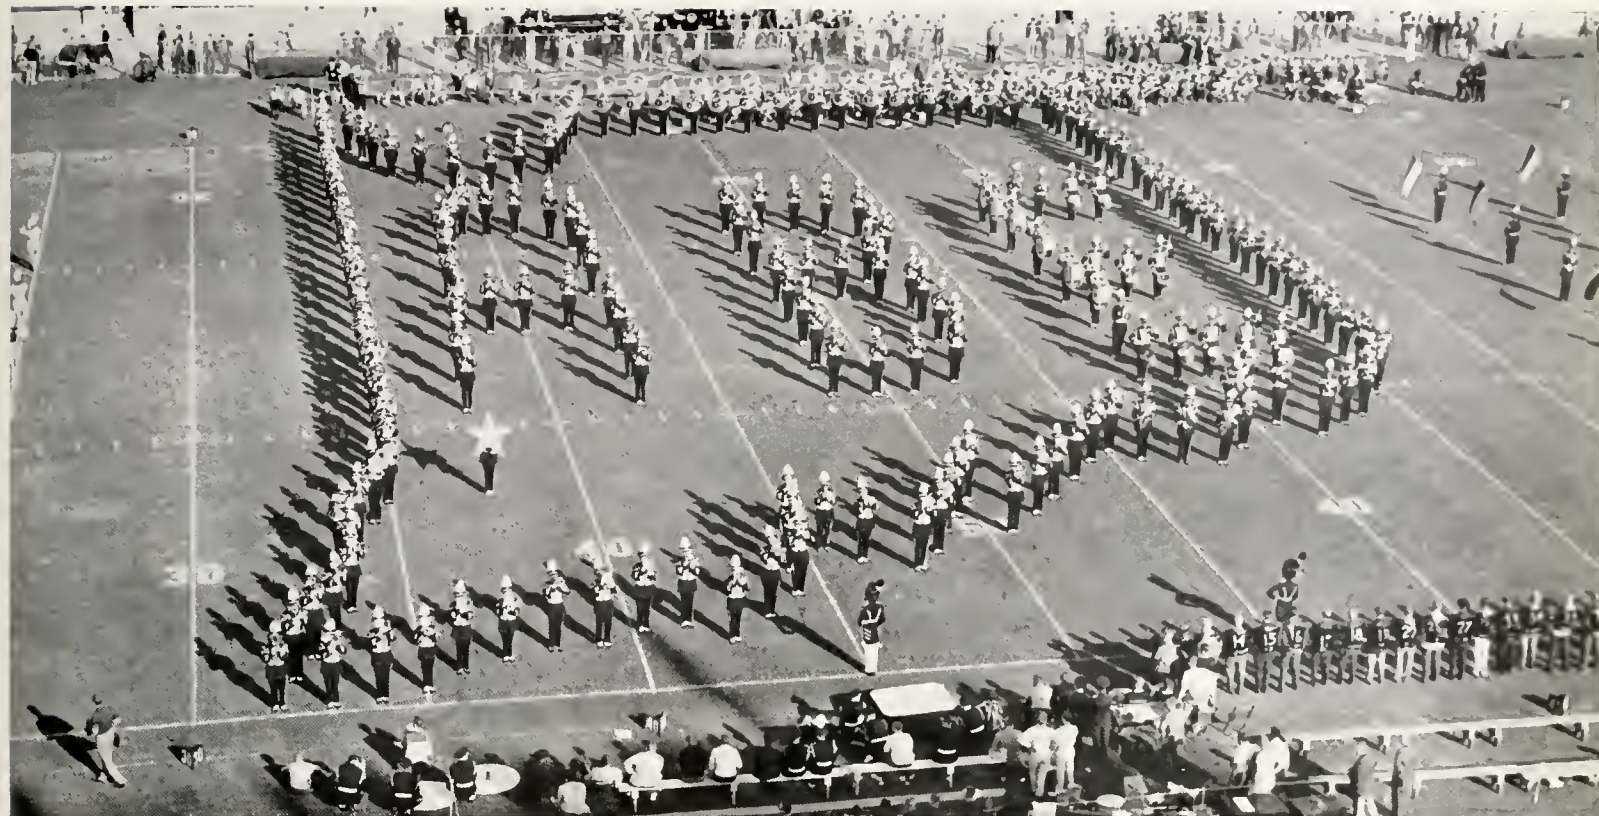

The usual formation for the playing of the National Anthem is abandoned as the visiting band joins Purdue in marching into position to form the replica of a shield.

Although the band's main purpose is to play music, it also represents one of the best cheering sections in school.

Al Wright explains to the frustrated tuba players that precise formations result from long hours of practice.

The Purdue Band contributes to the spectator interest in football by honoring such men as Abraham Lincoln in one of their unique half-time performances.

The majorettes leave the field at the end of the half after providing the football fans with a fine display of twirling.

Naval personnel play "acey-deucey" as much as firemen play checkers, so Quarterdeck pledges must learn the game.

Chosen on the basis of leadership potential, the pledges of Quarterdeck Society are given as ideals the development of aptitude and the creation of a closer bond between naval students and the staff. The honorary assembled a new Reef Points magazine for freshmen and served as ushers at the Playshop production, "Mr. Roberts." The highlight of the Society's social year was the impressive Midshipmen's Ball at which the "Queen of the Seven Seas" was crowned. Pledges of the honorary can be recognized by their midddy hats and miniature swabs which dot the campus every fall and spring.

Purdue Order of Military Merit

The Purdue Order of Military Merit is a military honorary which promotes interest in the Army ROTC and the military in general. POMM was founded at Purdue in 1925 and has since grown into one of the largest military honoraries on campus. A student must be in advanced Army ROTC with an accumulative military index of at least 4.75 to be a member. Benefits derived from membership include esprit de corps, friendship with fellow future officers and the honor of being a member. POMM activities include sponsoring the Army Ball and planning the All-Army Banquet and various social functions.

The Air Force Ball Committee, composed of Arnold Air Society members, meets to gain ideas for the annual dance.

A field trip last semester to Castle Air Force Base in California was one of the activities of Arnold Air Society. This organization strives to create a closer and more efficient relationship within the AFROTC, to further the concept of the Air Force as a means of national security and to advocate the support of air power. In addition to local meetings, area meetings are held twice a year and a national conclave convenes yearly. Any freshman or sophomore in basic AFROTC with a qualifying index and any member of advanced AFROTC with an outstanding record is eligible for membership.

The Purdue Drill Team was organized in 1947 by a group of ex-servicemen to develop efficiency in military drill, promote teamwork and advance and assist the ROTC. Although the Drill Team is primarily a military organization, any male Purdue student may belong. A callout is held each semester with three weeks of pre-plebe training, after which a plebe class is chosen to work together until they are activated at the end of the semester. The Drill Team has always had an outstanding record in inter-collegiate competition and was the national champion in 1958 for the third time.

The Purdue Drill Team has been able to achieve recognition as national champions only through long hours of practice.

Scabbard and Blade

The perennial pledge board common to all honoraries resembles a scimitar for Scabbard and Blade military honorary.

Scabbard and Blade was founded in 1905 at the University of Wisconsin and has since grown to include 105 companies. This honorary promotes interest in the military units at Purdue and helps provide closer relationship with military departments of other universities. All junior and senior cadets and officers of the ROTC are eligible for membership which is based on military rank and personality. Besides giving a dance in the spring, Scabbard and Blade sponsors a drill meet and works on the Military Ball. They also sponsor a Best Soldier contest for freshmen and sophomores.

Pershing Rifles, founded in 1894 at the University of Nebraska, was organized at Purdue in 1951. An honorary fraternity for ROTC men, Pershing Rifles improves military bearing and represents a unity of those strongly interested in military life. Activities of the year included a field trip to a military base, a rifle match with the Boston University Pershing Rifles company, selection of an honorary Co-ed Captain and aid in maintaining the Armory. Most members are pledged during basic ROTC training. Membership is based on invitation with consideration of scholastic requirements and military interest.

Thoughts of having to carry the huge "goof" rifle probably bother this pledge more than an active's stern reprimand.

Military Ball Committee

Members of the Military Ball Committee meet informally in the Memorial Center to discuss plans for the annual event.

The social season at Purdue is opened in November by the Military Ball which is held in the Memorial Union Ballroom. Buddy Morrow and Pee Wee Hunt, who are among the name bands secured for each dance, furnished the music this year. The Military Ball Committee is responsible for this dance. Advanced military students with the necessary qualifications are chosen on the basis of approval by their military adviser. The advisers, officers from the three branches of ROTC, counseled the Committee on questions of a military nature. Committee membership is a high honor for ROTC students.

SPORTS

The excitement of a Big Ten football game, the tenseness of an intramural wrestling match—
each has its place among Purdue athletics.

Mackey and staff coordinate Purdue athletics

Four experienced men are responsible for the coordination of Purdue's sports activities. Guy Mackey, a 1929 Purdue graduate, has been director of intercollegiate and intramural activities at the University since 1942. Assisting him in this department is Joe Dienhart, who came to Purdue from St. Joseph's College in 1943 where he had been a member of the coaching staff. No athletic event could be a success without the efforts of C. S. "Pop" Doan, who is in charge of the difficult job of ticket sales. Bob Woodworth, also a Purdue graduate, keeps everyone informed of coming athletic events in his capacity as publicity director, while V. C. Freeman is representative for the team at all Western Conference meetings. Working in the area of directing intramural activities, M. L. Clevett and G. W. Haniford round out the Purdue staff which provides opportunities for students interested in athletics.

Guy Mackey, Athletic Director, has supervised most of Purdue campus and intercollegiate athletics for sixteen years.

"Pop" Doan, Ticket Manager, and Joe Dienhart, Assistant Athletic Director, are valuable aids to Purdue's athletic staff.

Bob Woodworth and V. C. Freeman spend many hours performing their duties to promote Purdue's athletic program.

Planning and organizing post-game celebration activities is only one of several responsibilities of the Pep Committee.

Few people realize the time and planning that go into the spirited celebrations designed to back the efforts of our athletic teams at the University. The Pep Committee, headed by Bill Bumpas, chairman, and Diane Rogers, secretary, is responsible for these events. Many students turn out for pep rallies held on Stuart Field before each home football game, and the team is grateful to all who meet it at the airport after a hard-fought encounter. Another activity showing true Purdue winning spirit is the parade of the Victory Bell through the streets of West Lafayette after each Big Ten triumph. Working in close cooperation with the Pep Committee and University officials is the Football Seating Committee. This group plans the sections of the stadium to be occupied by faculty, students and everyone attending the games. This year's chairman, Doug Elvers, worked with three additional committee members.

Cheerleaders promote spirit among students

With a constant effort and determination, the cheerleaders instill spirit in the student body during a pre-game rally.

The cheerleaders, backing the Boilermakers with enthusiasm when the score was favorable and showing true sportsmanship when the game seemed lost, were vital to the spectator support of athletics during 1958 and 1959. The spirited cheerleading squad which appeared at pep rallies, football and basketball games worked hard to improve student support through active leadership and tireless effort. The five girls and five fellows comprising the squad were chosen on the basis of skill, leadership, personality and enthusiasm by members of the Pep Committee, the graduating yell leaders and Dr. Grier.

Purdue gridmen turn in impressive season record

The Boilermaker gridmen of 1958, rated as one of the best defensive units in the country, came very close to winning the much-prized trip to the Rose Bowl. With most of the previous year's team returning, Purdue was experienced and powerful. The season began with Purdue defeating Rice at its Texas home and subduing highly-rated Nebraska in Ross-Ade Stadium in the first home game. Although the Riveters lost to Wisconsin in a penalty-ridden game, they went on to defeat powerful Michigan State at home. With the injury of seniors Wayne Farmer and Nick Mumley, Ron Maltony and Jerry Beabout capably filled the gap. Notre Dame went down to a stubborn Rivet defense, and Illinois, on a rain-soaked field, was defeated in the Homecoming clash. Ohio State deadlocked the Riveters, who failed to overcome a large first half deficit. The Wildcats from Northwestern couldn't find a hole in the Boilermaker defense and also bowed to Purdue. In the final game of the season, Indiana tied the Riveters in the annual Oaken Bucket contest, and Purdue retained the cherished prize. Tom Franckhauser was chosen M.V.P., and Gene Selawski was elected to the ranks of All-American, as the season ended with a 6-1-2 record.

The importance of good offensive blocking is stressed during the early practice sessions preceding the regular season.

Hard and fast blocking and quick starts for the ball carrier are two valuable skills that a winning team must possess.

After a very successful trial last season, the unit substitution method became an integral part of Purdue football. This system substitutes entire units periodically throughout the game. Substituting entire units when the game is safely won is not new to college football; the unit substitution system under Head Coach Jack Mollenkopf here at Purdue calls for unit substitution periodically during the game. This system keeps fresh men in the game who can put forth their maximum efforts on every play. The system also is a big psychological boost to the team; it instills a new confidence in the players. Moreover, it encourages keen competition in practice between individuals and pride of workmanship by the different units in games.

Back Row: Dick Mayoras, Casimir Thomas, Dick Greenwood, Stan Wagle, Fred Brandel, Don Mayoras, Assistant Coach Ned Maloney. Fourth Row: Dave Oberting, Gene Miltko, Paul Rose, Mike Shanshala, Robert Sherman, Dale Rems, Team Physician Dr. Loyal W. A Big Ten title and the long sought trip to Pasadena and the Rose Bowl classic almost became reality as Purdue fought for the Big Ten title with other leading contenders. After an early loss to Wisconsin, two late season ties were the only remaining blemishes which kept Purdue from realizing its ambition. The impressive work of the Boilermaker squad and coaches throughout the entire season ended in Purdue being rated eleventh in the nation. The one factor which probably had more to do with Purdue's football success than any other item was its rugged defense. Purdue finished second in the nation in rushing defense and total defense. No fewer than five times opponents were held to less than fifty yards gain on the ground.

During a practice in Ross-Ade Stadium, Rivet gridmen dig in to improve their defense and keep it among the nation's top.

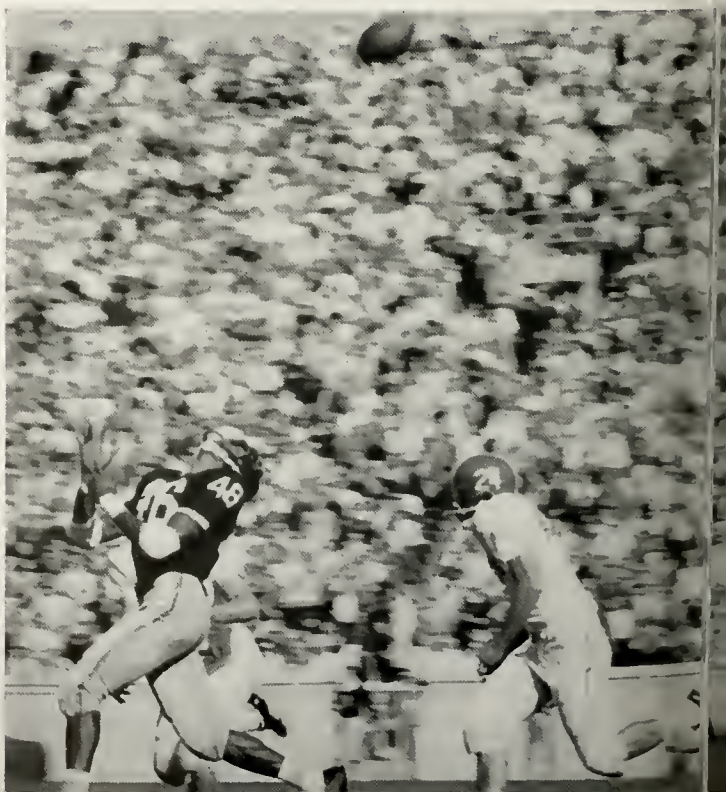

Purdue defeats Nebraska with a decisive 28-0 win

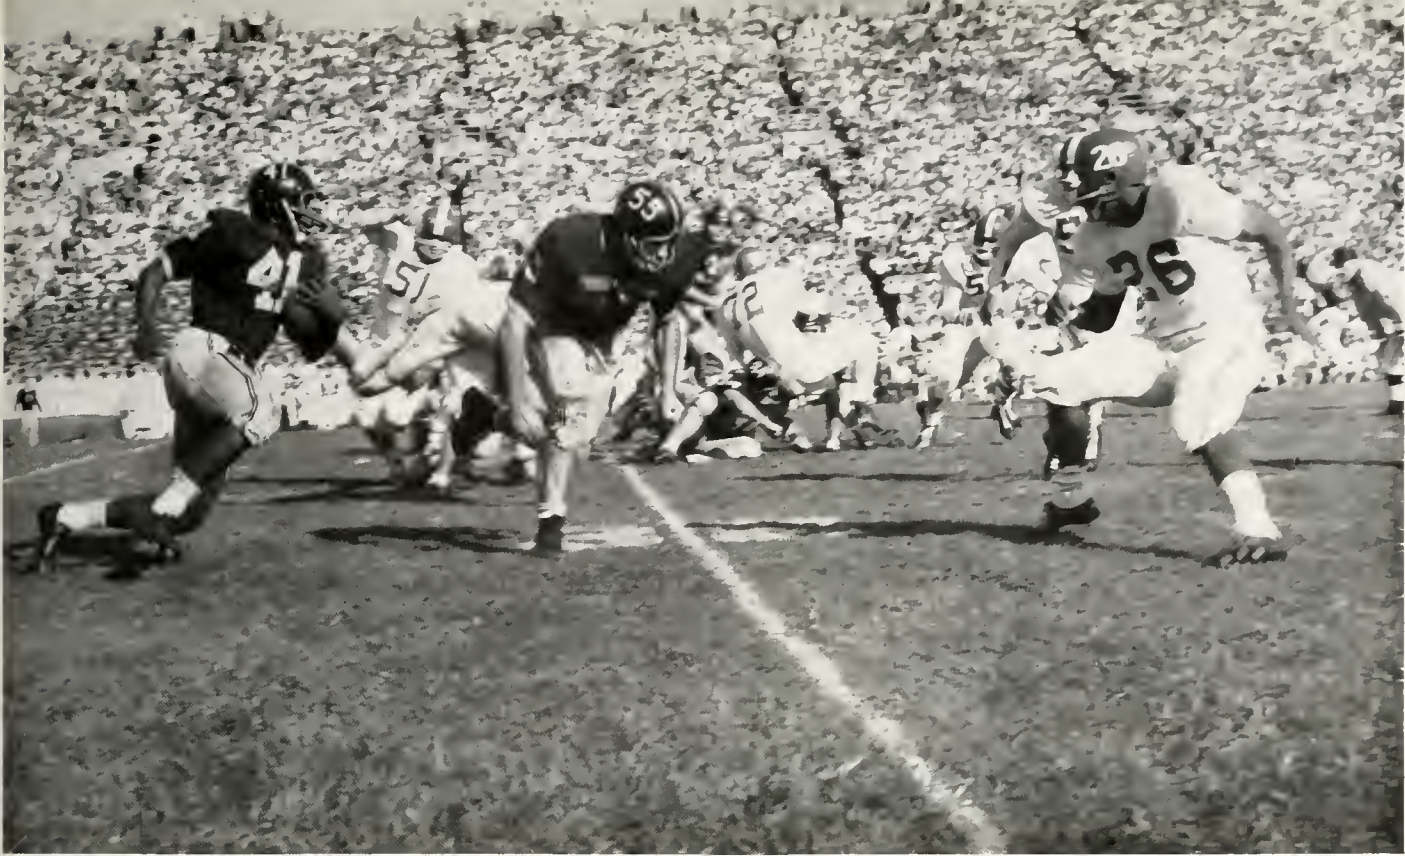

A Nebraska halfback dodges in an attempt to elude Tom Franckhauser who is coming around the right end.

With split-second timing, Clyde Washington receives a pitch-out and shoots quickly across the line for the first down.

Richard Brooks, as the intended receiver of the pass, races toward the goal line during the second quarter of the game.

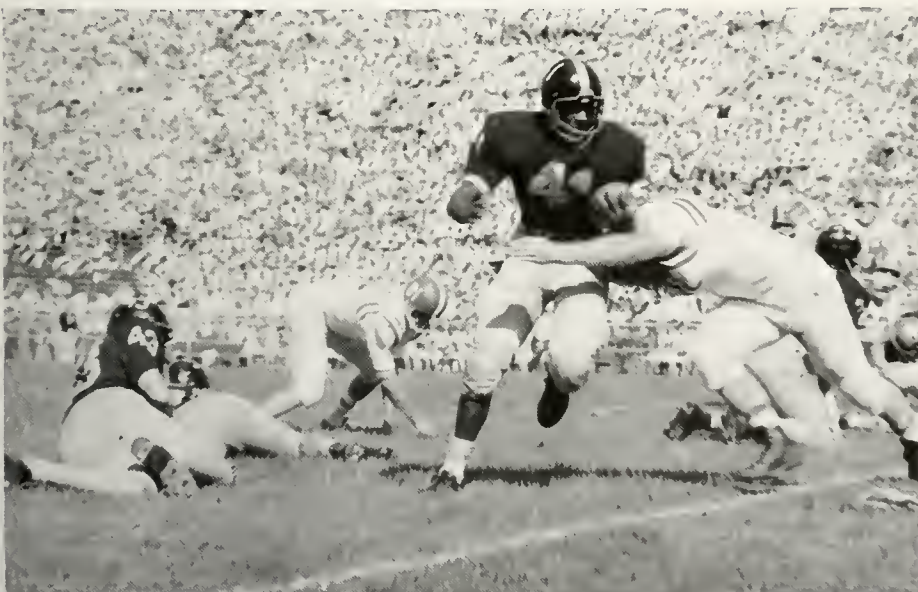

Thrilling the fans with a spectacular catch on the 48-yard line, Tom Barnett intercepts a pass and races by his opponents to penetrate deep into touchdown territory.

Nebraska's defense appeared solid in the opening plays of the game as the Boilermakers pushed downfield, only to be repelled after four downs. Late in the second quarter Bob Jarus plunged over his right guard from the one-yard line, and the scoreless tie ended; Spoo's kick was good, making the halftime score 7-0. Purdue's second touchdown came after only eight plays in the second half, aided by a 14-yard jaunt by Kulbacki for a first down on the Nebraska 8. An interception by Tommy Barnett put the Boilers in scoring position again, resulting in the third tally; Fichtner converted. Jim Tiller used his terrific getaway for two more points after the final touchdown to end the game at 28-0.

Lenny Wilson throws a key block which clears the path for Tom Barnett as he endeavors to shoot across the goal line.

The Nebraska line gives only a little as the halfback attempts a quick run over right tackle for extra yardage.

Boilermakers down Rice 24-0 for second victory

Tom Barnett, with a burst of speed and power, tears away from Owl gridmen for extra yardage and a possible first down.

Led by a hard charging Purdue line, the Boilermakers trounced Rice, the defending Southwest Conference champions. The Riveters' stout defense held Rice to only 47 yards on the ground, while Purdue's offense rolled up over 300 yards. The fine offensive game turned in by junior fullback Bob Jarus was one of the highlights of the game. A 28-yard field goal by Skip Ohl was the only score in the first half, but Purdue broke the game open in the third quarter. A 61-yard pass from Ross Fichtner to Tom Franckhauser set up the first touchdown. The hard running of Jarus, Joe Kulbacki and Tom Barnett slowly wore down their opponent. The constant pressure applied by Purdue's alternate units finally resulted in the 24-0 final score. One tragic note marred the Purdue victory. Wayne Farmer, veteran senior tackle, injured a knee and was lost for the rest of the season. Farmer was staging a fine comeback after a series of back injuries had plagued him previously.

Len Wilson, making use of his well-placed blockers, tries for the much wanted touchdown by skirting around Owl linemen.

Boilermaker gridmen were constantly met by the stiffest of opposition as Rice attempted to turn back the Rivet attack.

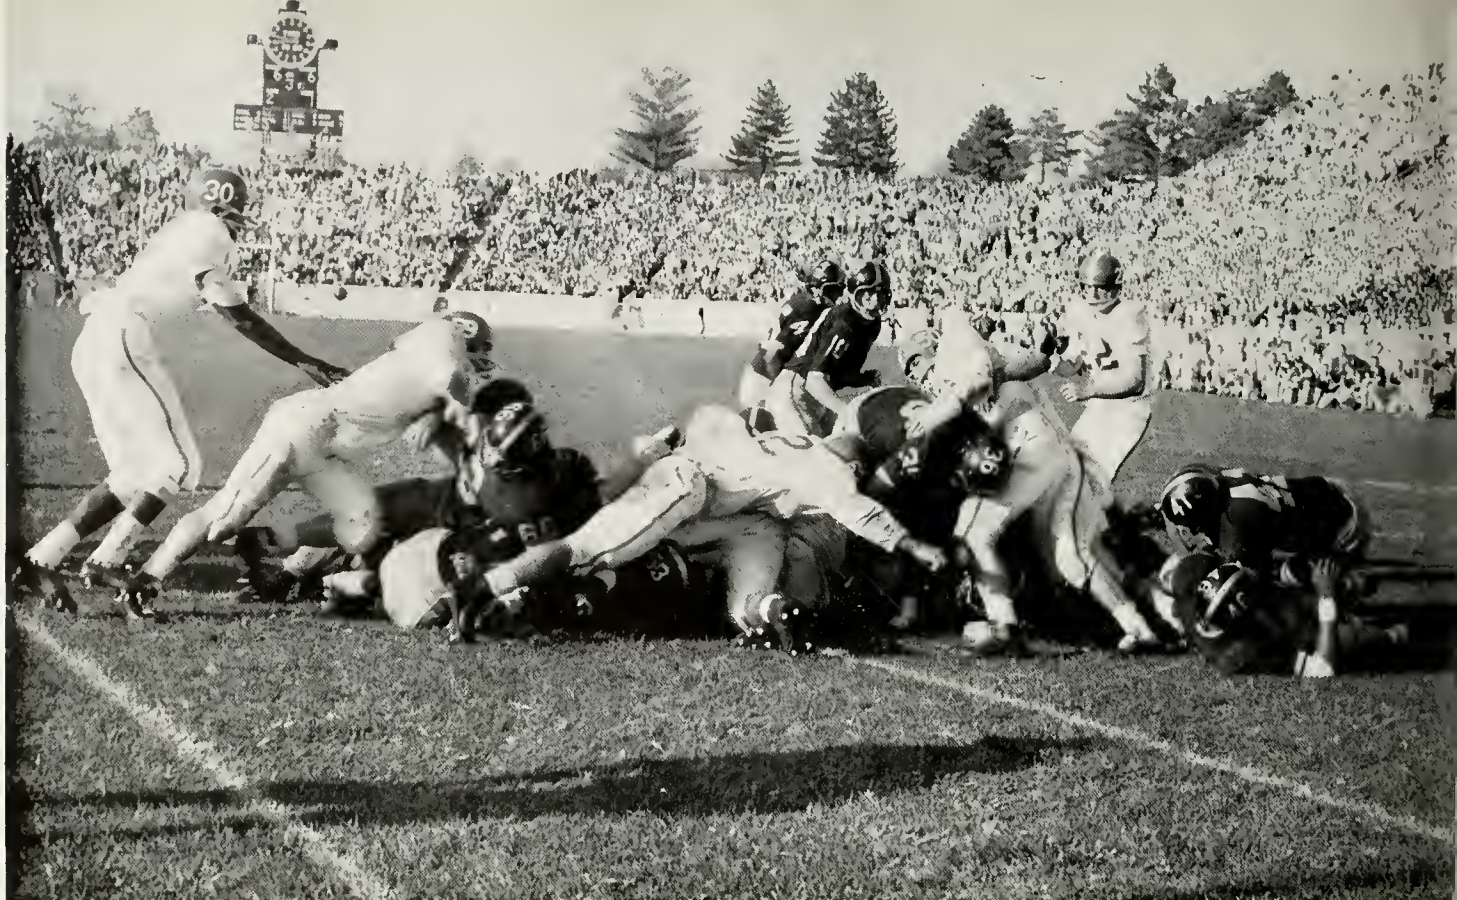

When Terry Sheehan missed an attempted tackle, Bob Spoo cut and headed toward the crafty Wisconsin runner with the hopeful roar of the jubilant crowd in his ears.

Fumbles, penalties cause 31-6 loss to Wisconsin

Emory Turner and Sam Joyner push their way toward the Wisconsin ball carrier, whose blockers try to clear the path.

In their first Conference game of the season, the hard-driving Rivet gridders failed to break the Wisconsin jinx that cost them the previous year's homecoming and now the opening game of the Conference, 31-6. At the end of the first quarter and the beginning of the second, Purdue showed potential as Bob Spoo and the second team carried the ball to the Badger 17-yard line. Ross Fichtner and the first eleven then took over, and in three plays Bob Jarus smashed his way over the line. This, however, was the only Boilermaker touchdown of the day. A fine offensive was turned in by Bob Jarus, Ross Fichtner and Dick Mayoras; and equally strong defensive work was shown by Phil Kuebbeler. Although Purdue played a good game, they were unable to convert their opportunities into points in the scoring column.

Bob Jarus, Purdue's top ground gainer and considered by many as one of the best full-backs in the Big Ten, hurls over the hard-charging Purdue line toward the goal line.

Stout Rivet defense overcomes Michigan State

The Purdue-Michigan State game was judged in pre-season circles to be the highlight of Big Ten football. Early in the game a bad pass from center caused punter Clyde Washington to be smothered on the Purdue 12. State scored but, failing to make the conversion, led only 6-0. After some fine running by Riveter Lennie Wilson, the score was tied and the half ended in a deadlock. An aggressive Purdue team held the Spartan offense to a standstill in the last two periods, while the passing, running and hard charging of Ross Fichtner, Clyde Washington and Bob Jarus pushed Purdue ahead for a 14-6 win.

Joe Kulbacki, one of Purdue's shiftiest backs, fakes neatly and cuts back in an effort to shake the determined defender.

Clyde Washington, powerful speedster halfback for the Riveters, weaves and dodges as he cuts around his opposition.

Rivet fullback Bob Jarus surges up the middle as he slices in for another score to give gridmen a twelve point edge.

In four games prior to the Notre Dame-Purdue tilt, Purdue's defense had yielded opponents little yardage; this defense was given an acid test against Notre Dame before Purdue clinched the victory, 29-22. Early in the third quarter Purdue scored three times in less than five minutes to give it a 29-7 lead. Utilizing the strong passing of quarterback George Izo, Notre Dame struck back in the fourth quarter. However, Purdue's inspired Boilermakers were not to be daunted by the Irish football tradition of stirring comebacks. Purdue repelled the last Irish thrust, and the game ended with Purdue victorious. The outstanding performance of the Purdue fullbacks was one of the highlights of this game. Bob Jarus scored three touchdowns, and Jack Laraway scored a fourth on a 28-yard run. Much credit should also be given to the Riveter linemen; in particular, Selawski, Joyner, Turner, Brooks and Beabout.

Star Boilermaker defense downs Irish, 29-22

The always reliable Bob Jarus picks up his second touchdown of the afternoon behind the hard charging Purdue line.

Quarterback Ross Fichtner picks up the necessary yardage for a Rivet first down.

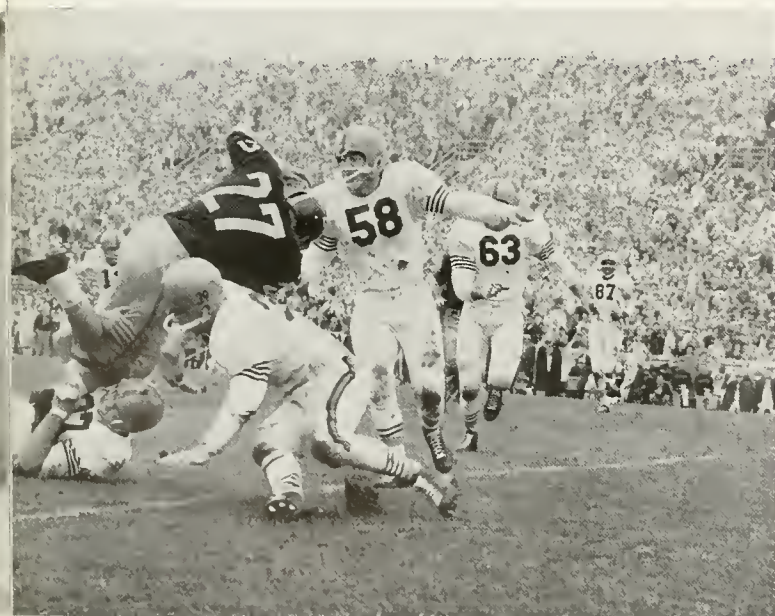

Joe Kulbacki, hard-charging and quick-stepping halfback, pushes away the charging Illinois team as he speeds around left end for a good gain and a possible touchdown.

Rivet gridders down Illini in Homecoming clash

Doing a terrific job on offense, Joe Kulbacki is finally brought down after a long driving run around left end.

Manzie Winters, sophomore end said by some to be a second Lamar Lundy, reaches out for the pass.

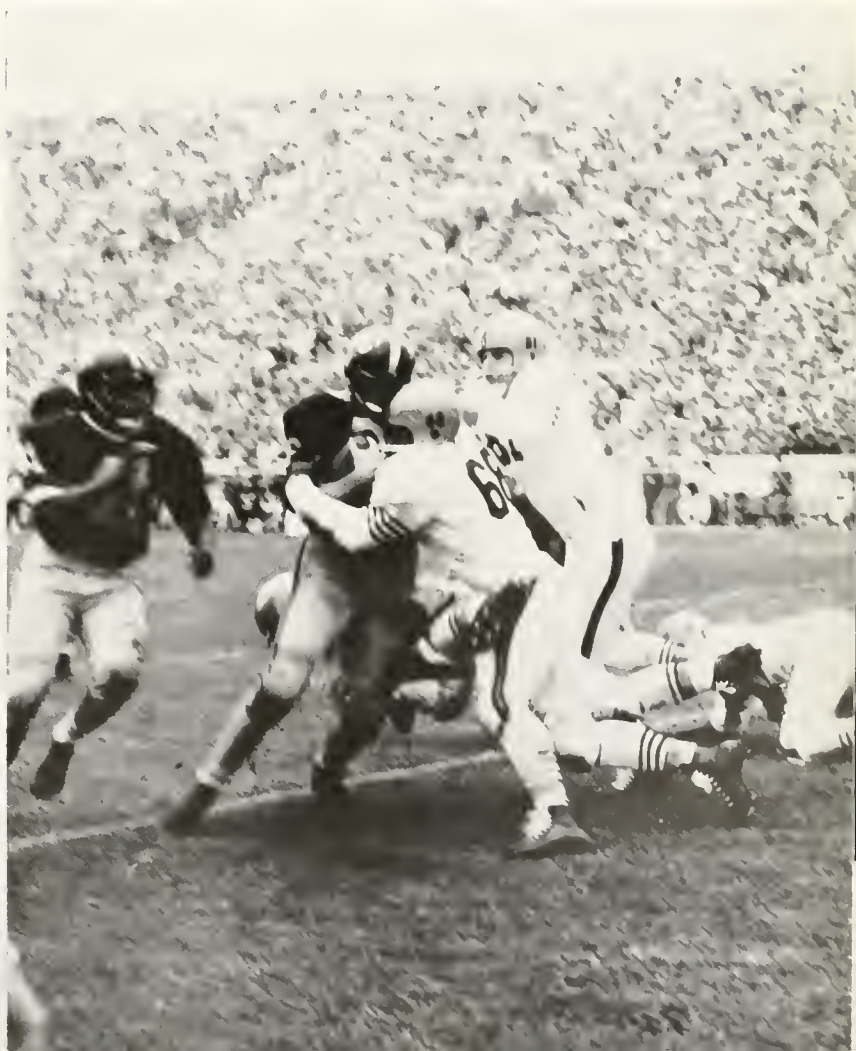

Tom Franckhauser, an all-star end and the team's co-captain, jumps high above his opposition in an attempt to grab a pass.

Terry Sheehan, stalwart on the line, digs in to fight while the other Riveters avoid their blockers and come to his aid.

Clyde Washington, after a neat pass reception, battles a host of Illini tacklers for precious yardage toward the goal line.

Although the weather was bad and the field muddy, the Rivet defense allowed a heavier Illini line only 33 yards. The first break came on a recovered fumble; seven quick plays later the score was 6-0. Franckhauser recovered another Illini fumble and after three downs, Skip Ohl kicked a field goal from the twenty-yard line for a 9-0 lead. With just two minutes of the second quarter gone, Bob Jarus smashed through for a second touchdown, but the conversion attempt failed. Soon an intercepted pass added three more points when Skip Ohl kicked another field goal for a Big Ten record. In the second half Purdue scored twice. Illinois' only points came late in the fourth period when the Illini recovered a Boilermaker fumble on the Purdue 31. In six plays Dale Starks rushed over the line into the end zone for the score, and the game ended at 31-8. The Riveters again emerged victorious.

Second half push assures Rivet-Buckeye deadlock

Len Wilson swings around his left end as Tom Barnett and Ron Maltony block an Ohio State linebacker from the play.

After falling behind 14-0 in the first half, Purdue staged a fine comeback to tie defending Big Ten champion Ohio State, 14-14. Jim Marshall, a tackle, scored both OSU touchdowns on Purdue fumbles. Purdue's platooning wore down the Buckeyes in the second half. Jarus scored on a short plunge, and a touchdown pass from Fichtner to Brooks and the subsequent conversion resulted in the tie score.

Ross Fichtner takes a kickoff during the Ohio State game and heads up field to crack the stubborn Buckeye defense.

Teammate Dale Rems looks on as Tom Barnett makes a driving tackle to prevent a first down attempt by a Wildcat back.

Northwestern's highly-rated Wildcats proved to be another victim of the powerful Rivet defense, for it was only in the last eight seconds that Chip Holcomb, Wildcat quarterback, came up with a 65-yard pass play and made a dent in the scoring column. After the kickoff Jack Laraway recovered a Northwestern fumble on the Purdue 34. Aided by Jim Redinger's repeated and valuable yardage gains, the Purdue drive was climaxed when Fichtner hit Franckhauser in the end zone for the first tally. Early in the second period the Boilermakers scored again. Jim Tiller tallied two points with a sweep around right end to make the score 14-0. After recovering a fumble on the Northwestern 23, Jack Laraway did the honors with a seven-yard touchdown plunge, and Skip Ohl kicked the extra point. Purdue then scored with a safety followed by Wildcat Holcomb's pass which ended the game, 23-6.

Riveter defense cages Wildcats for 23-6 victory

Rain, mud, Northwestern's top defensive linemen—none could hold back Purdue's strong offense as another key play is executed to bring Purdue closer to victory.

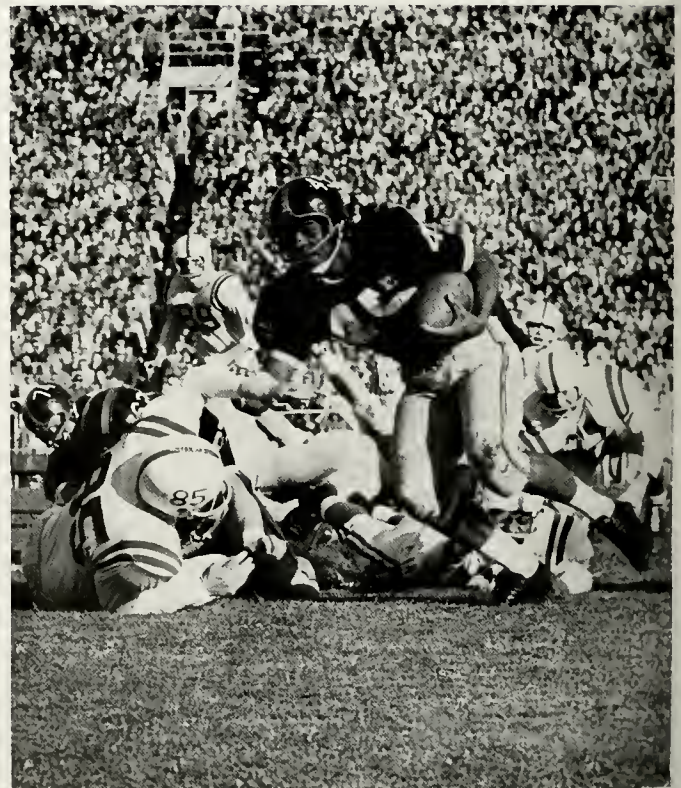

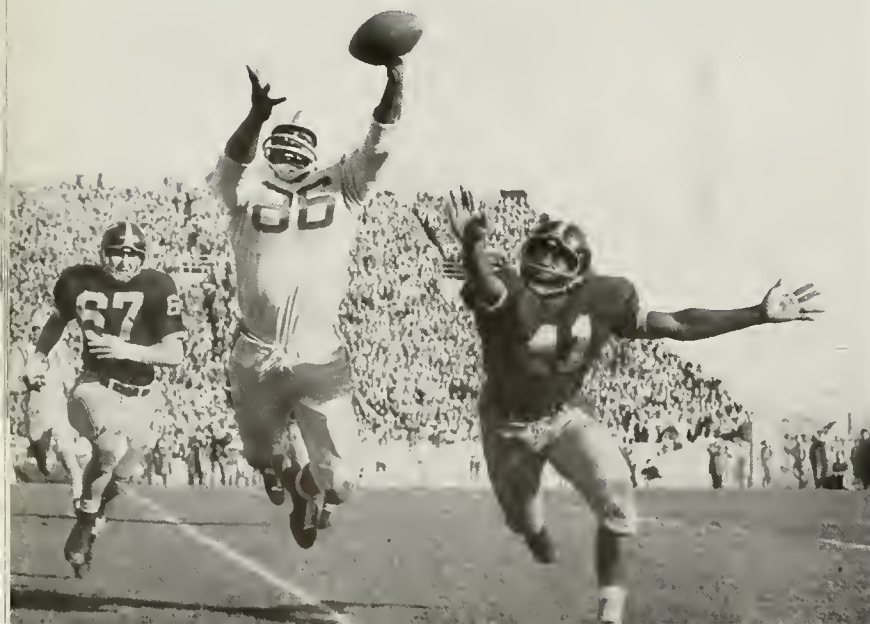

Jim Tiller, tricky sophomore scatback, takes the hand-off and sweeps clear around the end for a first down in the game.

Purdue, I. U. battle to 15-15 tie in Bucket clash

Ron Maltony and Tom Barnett chase an Indiana end as he attempts to catch a pass in the coveted touchdown territory.

Clyde Washington, swift and powerful halfback, heads over the line and attempts to outrun the opposing Indiana linemen.

Football fans saw one of the most exciting games of the season as Purdue's Boilermakers met their traditional rivals from Indiana University in a tie game at Ross-Ade Stadium. In the opening minutes, IU's quick-kick attempt was blocked, and Jack Laraway scooped it up to run 27 yards to pay dirt. The Hoosiers fought back, however, and at the end of nine plays they led 8-7. McDonald of Indiana started off the second quarter with a 26-yard run, and a few plays later a pass interference penalty against Purdue placed the ball on the Rivet 5. An Indiana pass scored, and the Hoosiers moved into a 15-7 lead. The desperate Boilermakers were still to be reckoned with, as a pass from Spoo to Brooks scored for a touchdown, while Franckhauser made the conversion and advanced the score to a 15-15 tie. Although it was a heartbreaker for Purdue followers, the Boilermakers still retained the cherished Oaken Bucket.

Tom Franckhauser waits in the end zone for a pass from Clyde Washington, completing Purdue's two-point conversion.

Joe Kulbacki, with one eye on the oncoming Indiana players and the other on his own blockers, heads around the left end in an earnest effort to gain additional yardage.

Franckhauser and Selawski earn athletic honors

Co-captains Gene Selawski and Tom Franckhauser played key roles in Purdue's retention of the Oaken Bucket another year.

Tom Franckhauser's great football ability and outstanding leadership earned him the Rivet Most Valuable Player award for 1958. Catching 13 aerials for 300 yards was an able demonstration of Tom's brilliant offensive skill. This record made him a much-feared man in the eyes of Purdue opponents. Gene Selawski, tackle and the other co-captain, was selected as a member of the Look All-American squad. He is the third tackle in the school's history to achieve such an honor. He received the Noble E. Kizer award for the highest scholastic index on the team and was named by his teammates as the outstanding lineman of the year.

Senior managers Frank Case and Jim Evans perform important functions during the game to keep the team well-equipped.

Experience is key to successful Rivet cage season

Jake Eison, showing tremendous desire and rebounding skill, rebounds over MSU's Horace Walker to tip in a key basket.

In an age of towering centers, Purdue's basketball team suffered a height disadvantage almost every time it took the floor, as the Boilermaker five's tallest starting player was 6'6". The experience and aggressiveness of the veteran Purdue team made up for this disadvantage. A switching man-to-man defense was employed most of the season with Bob Fehrman receiving the thankless job of defending the opponent's tall man. Bob did a creditable job despite his height disadvantage. Capitalizing on their fine over-all team speed, the Boilermakers used a fast break offense. Harvey Austin's deft ball handling and driving was the spark plug of this attack, which afforded Willie Merriweather and Wilson Eison, two of the finest floor shooters in the Big Ten, many excellent shooting opportunities.

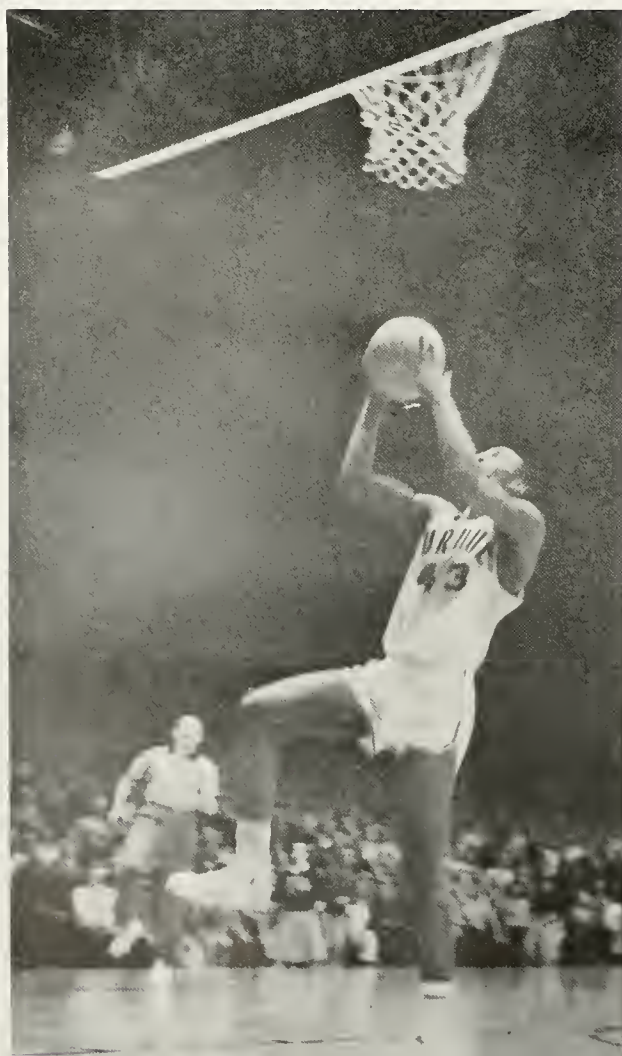

Everyone concerned looks surprised as one of Harvey Austin's fabulous driving lay-ins results in a loose ball.

Willie Merriweather leaps high in the air after threading his way through the DePaul defense for a lay-in, climaxing another Boilermaker offensive pattern.

Utilizing clever ball handling and alert passing, Purdue's fast break style of play resulted in many easy solo lay-ins.

The team listens to Eddy's advice.

Kansas State 96, Purdue 83. One of the finest teams in the nation defeated the Boilermakers in their first game of the year. Kansas State All-American Bob Boozer provided the impetus for the victory with 45 points. Bill Greve contributed 17 points to the losing cause. Purdue 65, Missouri 57. Willie Merriweather's 20 points led Purdue in its next outing as aggressive rebounding and a tight defense were instrumental in the victory. Purdue 89, DePaul 71. On December 10, Purdue opened its home campaign with an impressive performance in defeating DePaul, a fitting beginning for an exciting home schedule. Wilson Eison scored 32 points and pulled down 18 rebounds. Led by flashy Harvey Austin, Purdue used a blazing fast break to turn the game into a rout. Purdue 83, Evansville 82. The Boilermakers barely surpassed their next opponent by the slimmest of margins. The Riveters blew a huge lead in the second half and trailed by one point in the waning seconds until Austin stole the ball and went the length of the court to score the winning basket. Purdue 78, College of the Pacific 62. Although suffering a knee injury which forced him to miss the next two games, Eison scored 26 points to lead Purdue to victory. Purdue 55, South Dakota 44. The next Riveter win was a disappointing performance; Merriweather's 26 point scoring outburst was one of the few bright spots in the game.

While Harvey's plays were of the spectacular variety, he has no hope of shooting from here. "Help me out, fellows!"

Eddy's decision hinges on this one.

He restlessly paces the side lines.

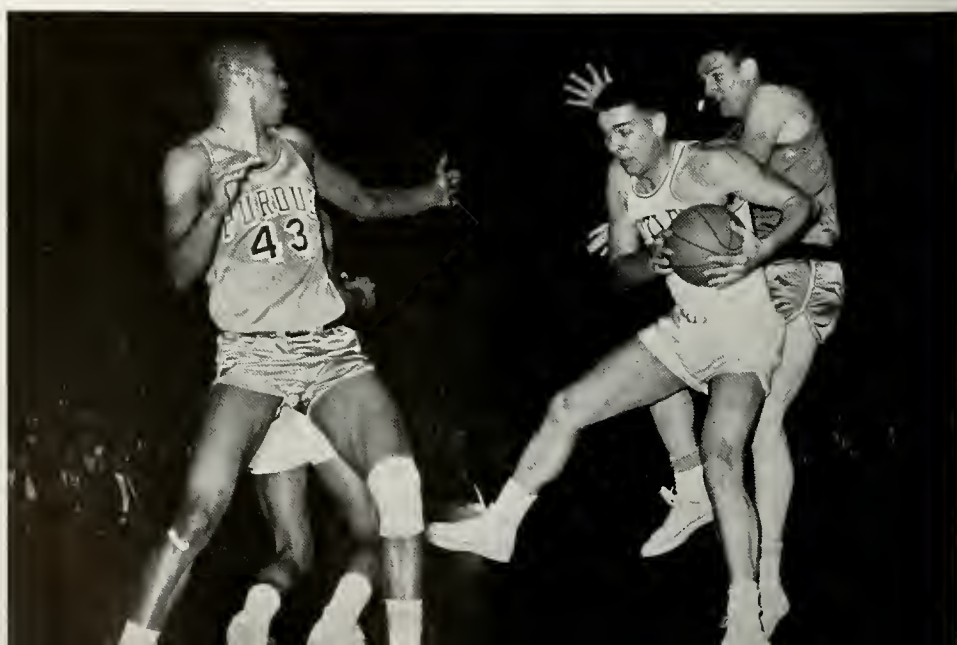

"There's time for one more shot!"

A graceful spring into the air and an arching jump shot by Willie Merriweather confounded opponents.

Harvey Austin's ability to maneuver underneath for short shots was a thorn in opponents' defensive plans all year.

A tight Purdue defense in the Classic and during the rest of the season halted many teams' offensive efforts.

For the first time since its conception seven years ago, the Hoosier Classic crowned Purdue as its champion. The victory was a decisive one as Purdue defeated Butler and Notre Dame by 13 and 15 points respectively. Purdue 78, Butler 65. The rebounding of Willie Merriweather and Bob Fehrman, plus Charlie Lyons' 16 point contribution, were instrumental in the initial victory. Harvey Austin's passing and floorwork were valuable assets in Purdue's smoothly functioning offense. Purdue 74, Notre Dame 59. The next night Purdue trounced Notre Dame to sew up its victory. Wilson Eison, recovering from a knee injury, sparked Purdue's offense with 20 points, and Merriweather scored 25 in a strong performance. A tight zone defense and Fehrman's fine defensive job kept Notre Dame's All-American Tom Hawkins well in check. The Classic victory served as the perfect "tune-up" for the rugged Big Ten schedule. Purdue's pre-Conference record of 7-1 labeled it as a strong title contender.

Harvey Austin's dazzling play on both offense and defense amazed the spectators time and time again during the action.

Two of the key attributes of the Boilermakers' play in their Classic victory were aggressiveness and determination, both in rebounding and in scraps for a loose ball.

Feel like a slice of bologna, Harv? Unable to stop his driving and shooting, hefty Spartans "lowered the boom" on him.

Purdue's opening Big Ten game was at home against a highly rated Michigan team. Michigan 82, Purdue 75. A weak first half left the Boilermakers trailing by 28 points before they began to narrow the gap. The Purdue comeback fell short as the clock ran out. Injuries suffered by Harvey Austin and Bill Greve in this game were to prove costly in the next few weeks. Indiana 77, Purdue 69. Two days later the crippled Boilermakers suffered their second defeat. Purdue's strong rebounding and Willie Merriweather's 21 point scoring outburst were not enough to head off hot shooting Hoosiers. Purdue 84, Wisconsin 61. Purdue's first Conference victory was a decisive win over Wisconsin. A tight defense kept Wisconsin's offense well in check, while Purdue's fast break rolled up the score. Merriweather scored 19 points, and Wilson Eison was right behind with 18. Minnesota 64, Purdue 62. Playing before a regional TV audience, Purdue lost a heartbreaker to Minnesota. After falling behind by as much as 14 points, Jake Eison led a Purdue rally which brought the Boilermakers right back into the game. Purdue 86, Ohio State 69. Purdue began a long comeback by trouncing Ohio State before an enthusiastic home crowd. Austin's spectacular floor work and feeding led a blazing fast break which dazzled the spectators. Ohio State soon wilted under the furious assault, which was highlighted by Merriweather's 27 points.

Many of the Big Ten teams switched to zone defenses this season necessitating careful ball handling to set up good shots.

Although usually playing against taller men, perfect timing and coordination in the air made Eison an agile rebounder.

Iron Key

Iron Key members traditionally remain secret until the familiar "clank-clank" of Iron Keys rings across our campus during Gala Week. May 2 brought an end to the air of suspense that always surrounds the announcement of those who attain this position of campus eminence. Thirteen silver keys, the symbol of this senior men's honorary, were awarded this year; and Donald R. Mallett was welcomed as an honorary Iron Key. While a certain amount of mystery is connected with every facet of this organization, selections are based largely upon leadership, scholarship and service to the University.

Gimlet Club

Members of the Gimlet Club bring out the Victory Bell for the traditional parade after a Big Ten victory for Purdue.

The sale of Purdue football history books was the major fall project of the Gimlets. Gimlets are outstanding junior or senior fraternity men organized to support athletics. Following all the Purdue Big Ten football victories, Gimlets parade the Victory Bell. During pledgeship, pledges wear black pots, carry "goodie" boxes and attend daily noon meetings on the steps of the Executive Building for school songs and cheers. When activated, the black pots are reversed to become yellow with a gold "G." Gimlets serve Purdue by ushering at basketball games and still find time for some social events.

Gold Peppers

Continued service to the University is the goal of the Gold Peppers. Qualifications for membership in this honorary for upperclass women include scholarship, service and leadership. Gold Peppers was founded by Mortar Board to back University athletics, foster ideals and traditions and honor prominent junior women. Parties with other booster organizations make up the social calendar for the year. Joining with Panhel and Mortar Board, the Peppers award a yearly scholarship to an outstanding senior continuing her education. One can easily spy a new pledge wearing her black pot and swinging a pepper.

Gold Pepper actives cut out green shamrocks and put them on pledge pots that will be used to tap on St. Patrick's Day.

Helping to keep many Purdue traditions alive, the Reamers offer various services throughout the year. They are not only in charge of operating the Boilermaker Special, but engage in such projects as the selling of "Boilermaker Special" buttons and awarding the plaque for the outstanding athlete of the year. Prospective members of the honorary are first chosen from independent junior and senior men who have displayed the most enthusiasm in campus activities, and final selections are based on personal interviews. Pledging begins immediately, and soon wooden "R" pledge boards appear on campus.

Tomahawk

An award is presented to the pledge who best fulfilled the pledge program at each initiation of the Tomahawk honorary.

Tomahawk is an honorary for independent sophomores who have done outstanding work in activities. This organization was founded first at Purdue in 1949, and now there are chapters at four other colleges and universities. Pledges attend weekly pledge meetings, carry boards for signatures of actives, attend all athletic events and carry out a pledge project. The Tomahawks stimulate freshman interest in activities, provide leadership training, perform services for the University and act as boosters for athletics. Each semester a Best Pledge Award is given to honor a deserving pledge.

To assemble college men in the fellowship of the scout oath and law, to develop friendship and to promote service to humanity are the objectives and ideals of Alpha Phi Omega. APO members contribute greatly by taking charge of campus elections, instructing scout swimming classes, visiting hospitalized students and maintaining a campus bulletin board. Income for the organization is derived from the sale of magazines. The coveted award in the APO organization is the Dwight Scarseth Memorial Outstanding Senior Award which is based on accomplishments and spirit of service shown by a senior.

A short four-week pledging period precedes initiation of Alpha Lambda Delta pledges. During this period the pledges wear white pots with the emblem of a flaming candle and carry pledge boards. One of the activities of the pledges is to act as guides for High School Day in the spring. Founded at the University of Illinois in 1924, Alpha Lamb brought its second chapter to Purdue in 1926. The purpose of this organization is to promote intelligent living with an increased appreciation of both the love of study and the cultural phases of academic life for the maximum use of individual potential.

Pledges and actives are given an opportunity to get to know each other through the traditional signing of pledge boards.

Phi Eta Sigma

An active member of Phi Eta Sigma introduces himself to a prospective pledge at one of the organization's smokers.

Phi Eta Sigma, national honor society for freshman men, was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923. The purpose of this organization is to promote higher scholastic standards and to encourage high academic attainment among the freshman men in institutions of higher learning. Either a 5.5 index for the first semester or an accumulative index of 5.5 for the first year is necessary for membership. Each year the Purdue chapter distributes a pamphlet of study hints to all incoming freshmen. Other services include providing a freshman scholarship and acting as guides on High School Day.

Tau Beta Pi

Standing as a memorial near the Engineering Administration Building is the large brass "bent," symbol of Tau Beta Pi. Purdue's chapter was founded in 1903 to recognize superior students in engineering. Pledges may be recognized by their wooden "bents" which are carried during their pledgship. All junior men with a 5.5 accumulative index and all senior men with a 5.0 index are eligible for election to Tau Beta Pi. This organization presents a slide rule to the highest ranking freshman engineering student and a scholarship to a freshman or sophomore who has been outstanding.

Pi Tau Sigma

The regalia worn by pledges of Pi Tau Sigma, an engineering honorary, adds color to the campus every fall and spring.

The white hat and white gloves of an engineer mark the pledgship of a man into Pi Tau Sigma, national mechanical engineering honorary. Junior and senior men who meet scholastic requirements submit written interviews and attend two smokers before final selection of members. Pi Tau Sigma gives service to other mechanical engineering students by providing free tutoring, publishing Slide Rule Shortcuts and maintaining the Mechanical Engineering Library reading room. This organization strives for greater student-faculty cooperation by having two joint banquets annually.

Eta Kappa Nu, an honorary for electrical engineers, promotes the electrical engineering profession. To be eligible for membership, one must have completed two semesters in electrical engineering and be outstanding in scholarship, extracurricular activities and personality. The honorary's social activities include informal smokers featuring guest speakers who address the pledges, a formal banquet given for all members and competitive sports between other engineering honoraries. Additional projects are tutoring electrical engineering students and presenting the Outstanding Freshman Award.

Dick Bush presents a battery, the familiar pledge board of Eta Kappa Nu, to an already active member for his signature.

Iota Lambda Sigma

In partial fulfillment of their four weeks pledge program, pledges of Iota Lambda Sigma hold meetings twice a week.

Iota Lambda Sigma, national honorary for industrial education, was chartered at Purdue in 1940 as Mu Chapter. The purpose of this organization is to promote the interests and welfare of its members and to further the purposes and ideals of industrial education. To be qualified for pledging, a student enrolled in industrial education must have a scholastic index of 4.5 and be at least a Sophomore 4. Selected for their personality and interest, pledges have regular meetings and social activities. The big event of the year is the initiation banquet which is usually held at the end of February.

A series of elimination contests are initiated yearly as preliminaries for the speech tournament sponsored by Alpha Zeta.

The Alpha Zeta Speech Contest is the major project of the Purdue Chapter of Alpha Zeta, national agricultural honorary fraternity. To be eligible for membership in this organization, one must be a junior or senior, have a personal interest in agriculture and have at least a 4.5 accumulative index. Alpha Zeta members perform services to the University by counseling freshmen agriculture students and acting as guides for high school students especially interested in agriculture. Another activity carried on by Alpha Zeta members is the hanging of pictures of all senior agricultural students in Ag Hall.

The Purdue chapter of Kappa Epsilon, founded in 1947, was established to unite women employed in pharmaceutical pursuits, to assist in advancement of pharmaceutical education and to cooperate with college faculty in maintaining high scholastic standards. Women who have attained a 4.0 accumulative index in the School of Pharmacy are eligible for membership. Each year a party is given for sophomore girls, and a banquet for new initiates is held in the spring. Kappa Epsilon helps with the annual Pharmacy Clinic, the Professional Pharmacists Conference and sponsors a senior banquet.

Membership in Kappa Epsilon serves as a means of uniting women who are or will be employed in pharmaceutical jobs.

Kappa Psi

In a typical monthly meeting, members of Kappa Psi discuss and make arrangements for their remaining scheduled events.

Kappa Psi, national pharmaceutical honorary, endeavors to promote fellowship, scholarship, high ideals and interest in pharmaceutical research. Meetings such as group discussions, films and educational programs with speakers are held twice a month. During the year, Kappa Psi sponsors the Annual Pharmacy Round-Up Banquet for pharmacy students, the pharmacy picnic and the annual Sweet-heart Dance. Membership in Kappa Psi affords the opportunity to belong to a professional honorary fraternity which will have many advantages when engaged in the practice of pharmacy in later life.

Dolphin

Laughter for all is provided by some Dolphin Club members as they rehearse a comedy routine for the winter carnival.

Men who are interested in swimming and aquatic activities and who have a 3.75 accumulative index are eligible for membership in Purdue's swimming honorary. Dolphin sponsors swimming shows in the fall prior to football games and also in the spring. The proceeds from their shows are used to sponsor the swimming team's yearly trip to Florida. Pledge life for Dolphins lasts from four to six weeks and consists of carrying gold fish and a pledge board around campus. The Dolphins strive to encourage interest in swimming through their water shows and enthusiastic swimming team.

Tau Kappa Alpha

The members of Tau Kappa Alpha, when in the midst of debate, are oblivious to their surroundings in the Sweet Shop.

To give suitable recognition for excellence in forensics and original speaking, Tau Kappa Alpha was founded in 1908. Members are chosen after two years of active participation in speech activities and must have a scholastic ranking in the upper third of their class. One of the major purposes of the organization is to foster respect for the freedom of speech as a vital element of democracy. Tau Kappa Alpha as a national organization sponsors many of the intercollegiate speech events in which the members participate, while local activities are designed for practice in developing techniques.

Outstanding journalists on Purdue's campus are honored by membership in Sigma Delta Chi. Membership is restricted to men students holding a junior staff position on a campus publication. Each year as their project, the pledges publish the Bar Rag, a campus parody which is distributed at Homecoming. The main project of the chapter is the annual awarding of the Best Teacher Award and the Leather Medal Award. Purdue's chapter, which was founded in 1911, is unique in the fact that it is the only chapter which is located at an institution that does not have a school of journalism.

Members of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism honorary, annually publish a short satirical newspaper entitled the Bar Rag.

Kappa Kappa Psi

Kappa Kappa Psi sponsors programs to honor the outstanding bandmen and provide needed services to the band.

The Gamma Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi, a national honorary for bandmen, was founded on Purdue's campus in March, 1956. Pledging takes place twice a year and lasts approximately six weeks. Those not fulfilling pledge duties are required to carry a Fubar, a large pledge board in the shape of a Purdue band key. A service group for the band, Kappa Kappa Psi's purpose is to distinguish the superior college bandmen. Making bus signs for band trips, selling band sweat shirts and records and sponsoring a trophy awarded to an outstanding senior bandsman have been some of this year's projects.

MILITARY

The thorough training needed for the task of leading America's military forces in these uncertain times is provided by Purdue's extensive ROTC program.

Army ROTC is largest of campus military units

After the cadets learn the fundamentals of correct marching, several hours of drilling the platoon are necessary in order to make a well-executed column-left movement.

Military training at Purdue University dates back to 1876 when a company of infantry was organized on a voluntary basis. Since its founding date, the Army ROTC program has grown to become the largest of the Military Corps on the campus. At present there are approximately 1400 students enrolled in the basic course and 450 other students enrolled in advanced training. The purpose of the program is to furnish a corps of trained army leaders who will be ready in time of national emergency. Completion of the four-year program of ROTC instruction qualifies the student for a commission as an Army Second Lieutenant.

Senior Cadet Ted Myers inspects an ROTC freshman to check whether his uniform and equipment are in order.

Junior Panhellenic, an association consisting of the eleven sorority pledge class presidents, began the new school year with a party for all sophomore women. Soon rush began, and members busily helped with rush registration. With the Junior IFC, they conducted a door-to-door solicitation for the annual Cancer Drive in West Lafayette. City Panhellenic encouraged scholarship by awarding a trophy to the pledge class with the highest average and sponsored a picnic for all sorority pledges in the spring. Junior Panhel, by these activities, strives to improve interfraternity spirit.

Entertains forty at annual Dad's Day Banquet

We were very pleased and happy to have the majority of our sixty dads come out the Dad's Day Banquet this year. After dinner they were ushered upstairs where we proudly showed off the new wall-to-wall carpeting and refinished furniture they had helped us to finance. To provide some rather unique entertainment, Mrs. Bilsborough gave us dancing lessons at our first trade party with Phi Kappa Tau. During the Christmas season we held a tea for all the members of the faculty. We presented our dates with hilarious presents and poems at our Christmas party which gave the season a festive note.

Sponsors Christmas party for needy children

September began a full schedule of social activities. First there was the steak fry with the DU's, followed by a hayride and barbecue with the Phi Kappa Sigmas. Trade parties with the Acacias, PiKA's and a trade dinner with H-1 were also included in our first semester calendar. At Christmas time, we held our annual party with Phi Kappa Tau for the underprivileged children in Lafayette. Everyone enjoyed food, games and the presents which Santa Claus passed out. An Easter Egg Hunt, which delighted the children of our local alums, added variety to our usual type of social function.

This year's project at our annual Fuzzy Fall Festival was a front yard carnival. It featured such concessions as "Dunk a Fuzzy Pledge," a hula hoop contest, "Dime-a-Dance" and "Loop-a-Leg." Senior Week was concluded in fine style. Very early on the morning of Cord Parade, our seniors, accompanied by pots and pans, serenaded the house with their sleepy voices. Just before the Christmas vacation we held a formal dinner-dance for our dates. The redecoration of the downstairs in French provincial style made a lovely setting for this occasion and for other events held throughout the year.

This fall was highlighted for us by the Jungle Jump with H-1, complete with a fortune-teller and a king. Success was predicted for us, and we won the Hula Hoop Contest with the Pi Phis at the Kappa Sig-SAE frisby match. Later, we found ourselves destined for Varsity Varieties with the Phi Gams. Gazing even further into the crystal ball, we found January full of excitement, as we had a wonderful time at the Pearl Formal, co-sponsored with Kappa Sigma. Open houses for Dad's Day and Homecoming were also seen for the future, and added the remaining links to our social chain.

Takes first place with unique pep rally sign

Winning first place with our Nebraska-Purdue pep rally sign, "Too Pooped to Pop," was the first of many successful ventures. Our dads were entertained royally with a buffet supper, an after-hours party and a startling but humorous initiation into the Dad's Club. A Halloween trade party with the Phi Gams, our annual Christmas party with the TKE's and Bermuda Olympics with the Kappa Sigs provided a variety of social events. In the spring we practiced faithfully to defend our third-time University Sing trophy and held another Ice Cream Social to raise money for our national project.

House artistically decorated with new Theta kite

When we returned this fall, the first thing that greeted us was our new Theta kite mounted on the front of the house. Upon entering we found new redwood furniture in the patio and new desks and dressers in the rooms. Our activities started off with a costume trade party with the Phi Kappas at Halloween. Costumes were also worn at our Hawaiian party with the Kappa Sigs. A dessert with the ATO's and caroling with the Sigma Chi's completed our schedule of trade parties. In the spring, we held a bridge party for the alums in appreciation of all the things they've added to our new house.

Learning that we had won the National Scholarship Trophy at our biennial convention was the big news that greeted our return to the campus. Open house to show our new addition and complete remodeling was our first big social event. "Deutsch Nicht," our Varsity Varieties act with Sigma Chi, soon followed and put us on the Music Hall stage for the final performance. Spring brought its usual flurry of activities, including Penny Carnival with the ATO's and our pledge dance given by the sophomores. We practiced long and hard for University Sing to defend the trophy won the previous year.

Observation of the steady progress on the beautiful new addition was a pas-time frequently enjoyed by the Kappas.

We were all proud of our "rabbit" which placed in the Homecoming Sign Contest this year with his slogan, "Illini Won't Get Fur." A pizza party with Circle Pines was the service we purchased in the Campus Chest Auction. With winter came "Tete-a-Tete in the Alps," a dance given by the new initiates in payment for the time the pledges got us up at six in the morning to serve us breakfast. It featured a Swiss scene with marshmallows, popcorn and cider served as refreshments. The spring semester slipped by quickly, and our activities for the year were climaxed by our preparation for University Sing.

Features Saint Peter in skit for rushees

Our year started off with a bang when we found that we had made Varsity Varieties. Our act was a take-off on the IBM machines at Purdue with the SAE's acting as our partners. Halloween brought the party with the Sammies where we were entertained with stories and dunking for apples. Other enjoyable social events were a bridge party with the Lambda Chis and our annual Christmas party with the Betas. The second semester was ushered in with rush week, and we found ourselves preparing our Pi Phi Heaven skit, narrated by Saint Peter and featuring several varied personalities.

Commemorates fraternity founding with banquet

Our first trade party held with Skull House was very unique as it featured a yo-yo contest. This was a relatively unheard of activity during the hula hoop craze. Next we joined Triangle for a skating party and H-1 for a dinner. In November we celebrated our Founder's Day with a banquet and a program commemorating our five founders, while our Christmas plans included a trade party with Alpha Chi Rho and our annual house dance. "Lavender Cotillion," a dance for the pledges held at the Lafayette Country Club in May, helped to bring another year to an enjoyable close for the Sigma Kappas.

Zeta Tau Alpha

A Halloween Party with the Phi Kappas was the first of a variety of trade functions. Several types were held throughout the semester with Pi Kappa Alpha, Alpha Chi Rho and Cary. The hunt for senior cords proved to be quite exciting, but once again the pledges failed to find them all and were obligated to give a dance for the house. This year it was a Valentine's Day dance, complete with band and clever decorations. During the Christmas season, we celebrated with our Holiday Tea, an annual open house for the students, townspeople and faculty, and a Christmas party with Triangle fraternity.

Zetas found that working on their pledge dance decorations can be just as much fun as attending the dance.

Divided into three separate and distinct branches which are the Executive Committee, the Presidents' Council and the Judicial Board, the Interfraternity Council is organized to maintain and improve the fraternity system. Along with administering interfraternity business, the IFC Office publishes a booklet on Purdue fraternities, organizes a system of rush counseling and renders services such as typing and mimeographing to all fraternities. To promote and exemplify principles of Greek strength—friendship, leadership and service—IFC and Panhellenic co-sponsor Greek Week each spring.

Entertains dates during a "Night on the Nile"

Along with the usual deluge of fall activities which included football games, trade parties and a hayride, we found time in November to have a costume party with a Hawaiian theme. December ushered in the annual Winter Formal, and, of course, the long awaited Christmas vacation. After recovering from semester exams, we found a few spare minutes for intramural sports activities and house parties. A "Night on the Nile" was the theme of our Spring Formal, held for the first time this year. The season was successfully closed by our participation in the Grand-Prix and University Sing.

Queen of ball becomes National Sweetheart

Shields and wooden benches typical of the days of the Vikings aided in transforming the house into a huge ship for our fall pledge dance. A pig on a spit also contributed to the spirit of a "Viking Beer Garden." On the spring calendar we hoped to duplicate our past two wins of the fraternity athletic trophy in second division. Turning the house over to our mothers on Mothers' Day weekend provided many chuckles as they tried to learn the knack of climbing into top bunk beds. Our Coronation Ball had very pleasing results last spring, for our queen became the National Sweetheart of Alpha Chi Rho.

Complete redecoration, refurnishing and a new addition doubling the size of our house awaited our return to classes in the fall. We invited the whole campus to an open house to show the results of this building program. One of our most appealing acquisitions was a beagle dog which we named Pete. Traditionally, the pledges plan a costume party for the night before our winter house formal in January, so to fit in with our nickname "Apes," they held a Jungle Party. In spite of many hours of study, we also managed to work into our busy calendar a spring formal, intramural and campus activities.

Since Pete, our new mascot, had an unfortunate accident and was hit by a car, he has been the center of attention.

An old coal room and a food commissary were transformed into a bum room by the use of tile and knotty pine paneling plus many hours of hard work. Eventually we hope to have it serve a double purpose by also using it as a chapter room. Turning to our social program, we held four dances, beginning with a Homecoming dance after the Illinois game. With everyone pitching in to decorate, the Winter Formal held before Christmas vacation was a big success. The annual TAP Dance, sponsored jointly with Pi Kappa Phi and Triangle fraternities, and open house on Mother's Day completed the year.

Follows recent trend toward fraternity expansion

Combined efforts of alums and the active chapter were rewarded upon the completion of our new wing. Along with redecoration of the entire downstairs, a modernized kitchen, dining room, dorm, chapter room and several study rooms were added. We acquired an unusual mascot in our baby skunk, who accompanied us to many house functions. Everyone enjoyed the chance to renew old friendships at our Annual Alumni Homecoming Dance, and much time was spent planning the remainder of our winter social season. The Album of Stars Dance, held with five other fraternities, was a major event.

Climaxes social season with Christmas Formal

During the summer, our house was completely covered with aluminum siding; and the entire first floor was remodeled. Needless to say, everyone was anxious to get back to see the house and to begin our activities for the year. Early in the fall, our annual hayride was held for members and their dates. Later we enjoyed working with Twin Pines on our act for Varsity Varieties, "Saturday Night in an Old College Town." The exciting pledge-active football game brought some anxious moments, but the final tie made both sides equally happy. Our Christmas Formal sparked the winter social season.

In the first pep rally sign contest before the Nebraska game, we worked with the DG's to place first with our slogan, "Too pooped to pop." Another activity which taxed our ingenuity was our Christmas Exterior Decorating Contest. All men's residence units, both Greek and Independent, are eligible to compete for the traveling trophy. "Shanty Town Shuffle," our pledge dance, was a great success, as the theme brought out the most in everyone's imagination for decorations and costumes. We shared with the Sigma Nu's the sponsorship of our winter dance, the "Blackfoot-Whitefoot" Formal.

A 1936 Dodge truck painted pink and blue and bearing a large dragon on each door emerged this year as the "Beta Hack." Transporting us to football games, picnics and pep rallies was its main function. In November we held the first annual Fraternal Fifties Banquet for Indiana Betas where awards were presented to the fifty-year members. Also included among our annual events were the Orchid Formal, a Christmas trade party with the Pi Phis, the Hatchet Hop with the Thetas and the Miami Triad. Last spring we were the runners-up in a softball tournament at the Northwestern chapter.

Celebrates traditional Founders Day with dinner

The result of our pre-school efforts found us in a newly painted house on the first day of classes. Paint-spattered but happy, we welcomed our fall pledge class of ten. Our first important social event was an annual Founders Day Dinner in the middle of October. Our Black and White Winter Formal, held at Christmas time, was the highlight for the holidays. The spring found us busily at work with the Chi O's on our Penny Carnival booth, as we tried to capture first place for the third straight year. Attending State Day and competing in University Sing completed our functions for the year.

Hot roasted marshmallows and juicy hot dogs were an indispensable part of our early fall hayride. For our trade party with the YWCA, we made the trip to the Logansport Mental Hospital. Here we visited with the patients and enjoyed group singing, while games and refreshments made up the rest of the program. A new addition to our fraternity this year was our mascot, Rebel. He soon became a familiar sight on campus as he insisted on attending classes and accompanying us to football games. Our spring dance, with its old time speak-easy theme, was a perfect climax to our social season.

The finishing touches are added to our new pin light before it is placed on the wall of our spacious living room.

For the second time in the history of our house, we were able to obtain the scholarship improvement trophy. Our time was not fully devoted to studies, however, for we entertained brothers from visiting chapters in the Midwest and initiated several alumni who had graduated before our local fraternity became a member of Delta Sigma Phi. Last spring we staged a "Gold Rush" party at which everyone came dressed as prospectors, dance hall girls, Indians and other characters typical of 1849. The annual Christmas dance and the Carnation Ball were favorites among our extracurricular activities.

Pledges kidnap and send actives to Wisconsin

Trouble was brewing late one Friday night when the pledges kidnapped the actives, deposited them in an old truck and sent them off to the University of Wisconsin for the weekend. Other fall activities included winning the interfraternity softball tournament, reaching the squash tournament play-offs and decorating for "Greenwich Grind," our house dance. The holidays found us defending first place in the Christmas Exterior Decorating Contest for the third straight year. Penny Carnival, University Sing, State Day, "Delta Queen," our spring formal, and our new annex completed the Delt year.

Is recipient of award for athletics at State Day

Baron, our recently acquired German Shepherd mascot, kept us busy chasing him as we tried to rescue articles of clothing which he insisted upon chewing. He followed us everywhere, however, and even attended our social functions when we let him. Several months elapsed while we were busy with our winter formal and an annual two-yard dance. In the spring, we made a good showing at State Day in Indianapolis; and our chapter proudly brought home the athletics award. After many hours of song practice, our efforts were rewarded as we placed in the finals of the University Sing Contest.

FarmHouse

Mrs. Eva Martin moved into our newly redecorated home as she began her first year as house-mother of FarmHouse. The summer remodeling consisted of connecting the annex with the house and redecorating the entire first floor. During the fall months, we won several trophies in the pep rally sign contests and played host to eighteen visiting chapters from all over the country attending our National Conclave held at Purdue. A Homecoming dance for the alums, our winter and spring formals, "Crescent Ball" and "Rose Rhapsody," and the usual line of trade parties completed our social agenda.

Not only did the house receive a different outfit in the form of all new furniture, but members also went through a progression of costume changes during the year. Dressing for a series of trade parties provided excellent practice for the December house formal, "A New Year's Eve Ball." A complete reversal followed as we donned our oldest Levi's and tattered shirts for our annual mud fight with the Phi Taus; it was a battle royal! The cycle reached completion as we once again put on white dinner jackets for our spring dance and then dressed in our "Sunday best" for State Day in Indianapolis.

Earns national scholarship improvement award

In our second annual encounter on the field of frisby in the fall, we emerged victorious over the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. We were also active in the intramural sports program on campus and finished high in the final standings for the year. A national award was made early in the fall to Chi chapter for its improvement in scholarship during the previous year. The house participated in Greek Week activities, campaigned for Campus Chest and tried out for University Sing. Three house dances, a Homecoming sign and the Pearl Formal completed a year of achievement and fun for the Kappa Sigs.

Kidnaps housemothers for Campus Chest money

Many surprised expressions appeared on the faces of housemothers and coeds on the night of December 3 when we kidnapped all the housemothers and held them for ransom. The money we collected was our contribution to Campus Chest. To settle down to a usual college life, our mid-winter formal followed shortly, and in the spring we were busy with studies, dances and sports. We were proud of winning the twelve-inch softball championship. Coloring 6000 Easter eggs has almost become a Lambda Chi tradition. November 22 was a big day for us this year, not only because of the IU game, but because it was also the date of ground breaking for our new annex. The new addition will house ninety-two men. To complete our big construction plans, we also had extensive remodeling inside the rest of the house. On the social side, we spaced trade parties between the house dance, the Christmas Formal and the Miami Triad. Our enthusiasm in the spring vented itself as we cleaned up an Indiana State Park. We drove to the Shades and worked on the odd jobs that must be done before a park can be opened to the public.

In the intramural race we won in golf and cross-country while placing high in archery and sixteen-inch softball. In competition with Phi Gams from other schools, we also did well by acquiring the Fiji Big Ten Basketball Trophy. At the second convention, we received the singing award and the Beta Cup for the most outstanding chapter.

Puts live goat in front yard for pledge dance

A haunted house with broken windows, cobwebs made from angel hair and sheets over the furniture were part of the decorations for our party at Halloween. Besides placing second in our division for all athletics throughout the year, we took second place in volleyball in the all-fraternity tournament. For our pledge dance in the winter, we converted the house into a Swiss Alpine lodge and carried out the theme with appropriate decorations and entertainment. Second semester was equally busy, but our spring dance and participation in Greek Week brought to a close another well-rounded year.

Stages party for group of underprivileged children

Happy to find that the first floor of our house had been completely remodeled during the summer, we began the school year with enthusiasm. Before we could catch our breath from our pledge dance with its French theme, the Christmas season was well upon us; and we joined with the Thetas to provide a party for the underprivileged children of Lafayette. Also on our social calendar was a spring formal with the Phi Gams. This "Jeff Hop" celebrates our fraternity's founding at Jefferson College. A "Joker Joe" steak fry, traditionally held as a final spring get-together, rounded out the year.

Phi Kappa Sigma

To celebrate our Founder's Day on October 19, all members of the chapter wore black and gold ribbons with their pins. Then came a full load of trade parties, Homecoming decorations and fun-packed football weekends at Northwestern and Wisconsin. Fraternity honors were bestowed upon us when our chapter received the second place award for its publication, The Alpha-site. The theme for our winter formal appropriately turned out to be "Sleigh-ride Serenade." After Christmas we honored all the Skull pinwomen at our annual Pinwomen's Dance and also selected our Phi Kappa Sigma Sweetheart.

Our annual French waterfront party began the social season with a gay flair. We escorted our dates as truly debonair Frenchmen; later in the fall we turned to a Bali Hai mood with a formal dance. The approach of Homecoming meant work and fun, but we were rewarded by winning first place in our division with our sign, "Around the Big Ten in Eighty Days." An event which we always anticipate eagerly is the annual mud fight against Kappa Delta Rho. We were pleased with our new acquisitions for the house of paneling in the dining room, indirect lighting, a hi-fi set and a new basset hound, Rip.

Appropriately named new dogs Phi and Sig

We returned to 302 Waldron Street this fall to find that the appearance of the front of the house had been completely changed and a nine-room annex had been acquired next door. Getting back into the groove with trade parties and convos led up to a lively holiday season in which the Winter Formal and the Album of Stars dance were prominent. The latter, held in cooperation with five other fraternities, featured the Glenn Miller Orchestra directed by Ray McKinley. Elects candidate who is Midwest Dream Girl

Again last fall the pledges got their fill of pie when we held our annual pie eating contest with Pi Kappa Phi. Later in the season we used eerie decorations and an inferno theme for our autumn house dance. In the spring we chose our "dream girl" at our annual house dance, the "Dream Girl Formal." Our chosen coed traveled to Chicago to attend the Midwest convention of Pi Kappa Alpha, where she competed with candidates from other districts and was named "Midwest Dream Girl." This is the second time in three years that a Purdue coed has represented the Midwest district for national honors.

"The Viking Party," which was our pledge dance, initiated our fall social season, while completely remodeled study rooms helped us in our academic endeavors at Pi Kappa Phi. After enjoying much practice and rehearsal, we won the annual Pie Eating Contest from Pi Kappa Alpha for the first time since 1952. Our winter formal, the Rose Ball, was the high point of the fall semester. University Sing in the spring, when we tried for our third consecutive first place, and the TAP Dance, which is our annual spring formal held with Triangle and Alpha Gamma Rho, wound up activities for the year.

Two feet of water flooded the basement to make a swamp which served as one of the props for our house dance, "Amazon Adventure." In order to enter the house, we had to walk our dates across a forty-foot tree which we had chopped down for the occasion. Joining with the Pi Phis for Varsity Varieties, we produced a satire on the use of the IBM machine at Purdue. Along with trade parties which featured entertainment by our combo and a season of intramural sports, we had members participating in a variety of Varsity athletics, including baseball, football, basketball and wrestling.

"Happy New Year!" Yes, we had a New Year's Eve trade party a week before we went home for Christmas vacation. We all set our watches four hours ahead and at midnight blew horns and rattled noise-makers. Earlier in the fall, we collaborated with the SAE's and gave a Gaza Strip party to which everyone wore Arabian costumes. Placing third in the all-campus division of intramural sports and for the second straight year taking first in the squash tournament added to our collection of trophies. Creates "Deutsch Nicht" for Varsity Varieties

We returned to school in the fall to find a new hardwood floor in the great hall, new chairs and tables in the dining room and a collie pup named Brigitte. The Farm Frolic, opening our social season, featured square dancing, homemade ice cream and an egg throwing contest. Our athletic rating received a boost when we were awarded first place in squash and second place in intramurals. We participated in Varsity Varieties with the Kappas before planning for our Blue Formal, where the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" was named. The Triad and Pledge Dance were our final social functions.

After each home football game, we invited the entire campus to an open house which featured a jazz combo. Attempting to obey the adage "do as the Romans do," everyone came costumed in a toga to our Roman Holiday. Many black and white footprints which announced our Blackfoot-Whitefoot Formal were seen covering the campus in December. We were represented by the white feet and the ATO's by the black feet. Dinner was served at our house, after which we went to the ATO house for dancing. The winning of the intramural tennis trophy was a welcome addition to these activities.

"Let's build it one brick higher!" was the motto accompanying a model of Heav Hall on our Homecoming sign which won us second place in our division. The major social event of the semester was our formal dance, "Christmas in Heidelberg." To capture the winter spirit, we sprayed the front of the house with water so that an inch thick layer of ice froze on it. In spring activities we tried to do as well as we had the previous year when we won the All-Campus Field Day and took second place in University Sing. State Day and our Sweetheart Dance also received full house participation.

Constructs winning booth for Penny Carnival

Our annual barn dance, which began our school year on a gay note, was only one of many pleasant experiences of the season. We eagerly anticipated our numerous trade parties, our pledge dance and the Orchid Formal which filled our agenda and were memorable occasions. We took great pride in winning first place in the Greek Week Penny Carnival booth contest. A rather unusual guest, a monkey named Clarence, became a permanent resident and kept the entire house in a constant uproar. Every Wednesday night we enjoyed the company of dinner guests, many of whom were faculty members.

Celebrates golden anniversary of fraternity

We knew the year would be thrilling and successful since this was the 50th anniversary of our fraternity. This was a good time to reflect upon the rewards of fraternity life, and we carried our loyal spirit to our annual Founders' Day celebration in October. We were enthusiastic about our social program which was begun with a Homecoming dance in the fall. As the holiday season approached, we looked forward to our annual New Year's Eve party. One delightful addition to our house was Plato, a boxer. Our spring formal and pledge dance were also memorable in this year of our golden anniversary.

We were pleased to claim the first place trophy for ping pong doubles and second place in basketball in interfraternity competition. As Homecoming approached, we spent spare hours working on our Mr. Magoo sign which placed second in our division of the contest. We enjoyed planning for a December house dance, our annual Christmas party with the Delta Gammas and our party for some Lafayette children. At our Apple Polishers' Dinner we had the opportunity of talking informally to our professors. Our formal house dance in the spring was a pleasant way to end our busy and successful year.

Looking over the year in retrospect, we remember among our many parties, the winter formal, "Mistletoe Mood." The decorations, highlighted by artificial snowdrifts, gave the house a cheerful winter air. Many nights were spent in study, but compensation came when we raised our scholastic rank to five places in the fraternity division. We shocked the campus by growing beards and wearing odd clothes for our Beatnik party which was held the first weekend of the second semester. Winning the horseshoe tournament crowned our achievements in the year's intramural sports program.

Adds new dog, Princess Ginny, to house roster

Major changes took place at 416 North Chauncey with the redecoration of our house interior and the addition of new siding and a porch. Princess Ginny, our Irish setter mascot, fit nicely into the new surroundings. Held in conjunction with five other fraternities, the Album of Stars dance featuring the Glenn Miller orchestra initiated the year's social season. At Christmas time we gave a party for underprivileged children where, amid the fun and presents, we rediscovered the rewards of giving. Major spring activities were Penny Carnival, entry in the Batt Boat race and our pledge dance.

Displays speed in race of pajama-clad pledges

Although we realized that studying was our main duty, we set aside sufficient time for our several varied social activities. Early in the fall we began to make plans for our Winter Formal, which was a snowland fantasy at The Trails. Because we wanted to make the holiday season especially festive, we invited our dates to formal dinners before both the Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations. With our fighting spirits aroused, we again encountered the Sigma Nus for our annual spring pajama race; and the same enthusiasm was exemplified when we were awarded second place in sixteen-inch softball.

Our athletic rating received a tremendous boost last spring when we placed first in tennis and were named winner of the Batt Boat race, a four-man kayak race with entrants from six fraternities. Not only did we excel in sports, but we also attained a highly sought after academic goal by ranking first place in scholarship. Many hours of preparation and decoration preceded the Album of Stars dance, and we eagerly anticipated our other Christmas festivities, among which was a party for underprivileged Lafayette children. Ending the year with our annual TAP dance, we reflected on a well-rounded season.

After singing for couples at the TAP dance, the Crew Cuts willingly signed autographs and mixed with the crowd.

Apart from the group, one can untwist problems from past experiences and formulate plans for days ahead.

The opinion of another may reveal a different light on an issue which one has already pondered over by himself.

Within the group a fraternity provides opportunities for expression of the various types of companionship which every person needs—be it with oneself, another or many.

WOMEN'S DORMS

In addition to the regular work of coordinating the activities of Wood, Warren and Hall E by the distribution of announcements and other materials, the Women's Residence Hall Governing Board served also as adviser in the formation of the Hall X Board. Much of the Board's time this year was spent amending its constitution. One of the several projects which the two boards sponsored cooperatively was the planning of the formal, "Winter Whisper." A joint committee also revised the WRH Guidebook.

This first year was a busy one for the Women's Residence X Board. Besides drafting a constitution and having it accepted by the Dean of Women's Office, the group held elections of officers and solved many problems which face any group in its first year of existence. The first main project was planning an open house for Dad's Day Weekend. A tour of "X" was provided and refreshments served. Two other big events on the Board's calendar were the Homecoming sign and the WRX-WRH formal.

In keeping with tradition, our first social function of the year was a trade party with Kappa Delta Rho. Practice for our Varsity Varieties act, "Calypso Holiday," with Lambda Chi Alpha, soon began to occupy all free hours. We still had time at Halloween, however, to don appropriate costumes and go door-to-door treasure hunting with Cary D. December's feeling of good will led to Acacia's purchase of our card party with waitress service at the Campus Chest Auction. At our Christmas party for underprivileged children, one of the waiters played Santa Claus and had gifts for everyone.

The first day of school at Warren Hall was a very pleasant one as we renewed old friendships and saw many new faces.

Our dinner for ten members of the faculty and their wives, one of our favorite traditions, started the year off socially. Making table decorations and completing other preparations for this dinner, which was also attended by members of the Women's Residence Hall administration, was good hostess experience for future entertaining. Our next project was our Homecoming sign—a large argyle sock with the slogan, "Argyles'll Sock 'em." The biggest thrill came when we found we had made Varsity Varieties with our "Frankie and Johnny" act, done in old-time movie style, that we prepared with H-3.

● Women's Residence Halls

An idea occurred to the freshmen in Hall E which caused some embarrassment for the upper-classmen. They presented the seniors in the hall with words to all the school songs so they would no longer have an excuse for not singing at the games. One of our first social events was a gambling party with Theta Chi which was a finale to the many hours we spent practicing with them for Varsity Varieties. Our special project for the yuletide season was serenading President Hovde with Christmas carols. Last, but not least, we were the proud holders of the Women's Recreational Volleyball Championship.

Our Homecoming sign, depicting an Indian sitting in a teepee, was the result of imagination and lengthy night sessions.

Many girls like to take full advantage of the Pot and Derby, which is just a hop, skip and jump down from their rooms.

Decorations following a Hawaiian theme with hats and leis as favors accompanied our first social event, a dance with men's residence H-3. A square dance in the midst of bales of hay at Cary Camp did the honors for Halloween. Christmas was gaily observed by a myriad of decorations and a series of parties. One night the waiters dressed as Santa Claus with white eyebrows and beards; on another H-2 joined us for caroling, and we had a final party the night before vacation. At Eastertime, we sponsored a party for underprivileged children, complete with an egg hunt and colorful Easter baskets.

Social life plays an important part in anyone's college career, and we did our best to plan our activities to provide needed study breaks. Dancing, playing cards and making popcorn with the Betas at our first party made us anxious for the next event on our social calendar. During the fall, we had a picnic with Cary, and shortly afterward a square and round dance with Stellar Brothers. No one will ever forget our Halloween dinner when we appeared as witches with green lips, heavy blue eye make-up and messy hair. The rest of the year was just as busy as the first, giving us many good times.

A pinning is a moment of great excitement as the girls of Northwest X head for the showers to douse their captive.

Although we found few hours of leisure time, we managed to make these pleasant with a few strains of relaxing music.

The honor of being the first girls in Hall X to see a pin serenade was certainly a wonderful way to begin the new school year. In planning our list of events, we decided to keep up the tradition of the Duhme Hall Beer Blast. This was a date party, and our guests were served root beer and other refreshments in the hall recreation room. We were also kept busy with the various trade parties with all the men's "H" residences. During Campus Chest Week at the Auction Benefit, we bought Circle Pines' service, a "Come as you wish you were" party. The semester ended with a Christmas party with Club 25.

● Women's Residence X

A steak fry with the Acacias started off the year at Southwest X with a good full feeling and high spirits. The first big project we attempted was a huge success as we managed to get into Varsity Varieties with Cary West and the other south wing of X. Imagine our surprise when we found that we had bought Cary West, and they had bought us in the Campus Chest Campaign. Cary promised a dating service for Dame's Day, and we promised a tray carry service and Dime-a-Dance. A skating party with State Street Court VI was next, while the hall Halloween and Christmas parties rounded out the season.

Christmas decorations at Southwest X were especially inviting as shown by these girls clustering around the candy wreath.

MEN'S DORMS

Pendragon is an organization honoring outstanding men who have lived in the residence halls. Its purpose is to coordinate and standardize the hall policy between the students and administration and to advocate and promote cooperation among the several residence halls. As an honorary organization, Pendragon rewards those with outstanding leadership abilities and those students who have shown the greatest advances in social and cultural development during their college careers.

Working together to govern the residents, the members of the Joint Council and Executive Council are responsible for the organization of Cary Hall. The Executive Council is made up of all the hall officers and unit presidents and acts as an advisory board to the Joint Council. Composed of representative officers, Joint Council serves as the legislative and judicial body for all of Cary. This year these two governing bodies jointly planned the Winter and Spring Formals and the Tricycle Race.

A busy year from beginning to end started in high gear with our Freshman Orientation Program. Our party for underprivileged children at Christmas and the winter and spring formals all contributed to the making of a full schedule, while free moments were filled by the extras in our hall—a radio club, library, dance band, hi-fi club and a camera club. Carrying on a new-born project of last year, the members of our hall have again resumed the publication of the bi-weekly paper, The Hussar Headliner.

There were many innovations initiated into our hall by the men of Halberdier Club through the approval and efforts of the Council. WHRC, the voice of Halberdiers, came on the air waves during the first semester with a 24-hour schedule of programs, both from its own studio and the other studios of the Purdue residences network. A camera club was organized for photography enthusiasts which uses darkrooms with fine equipment, including an electrically powered automatic dryer.

This was Excalibur Club's year for moving, expansion and improvement. The new facilities at H-3 were immediately put to use by all who moved with the Club from Residence X. After meeting over 300 freshmen, we began to lay the foundations for our three-fold program which consisted of promoting better relations with the other housing units on campus, writing a new constitution and working on our V² act with Warren Hall which placed us in the finals for the second consecutive year.

Formulating policies, working to stimulate interest among members and making recommendations to the Joint Assembly, which is the legislative branch of the Courtiers' student government, are just a few functions of the Executive Board. By means of an annual election, it operates under a student government which is patterned after the federal and state legislative and executive system. The executive branch of the State Street Courts and Fowler House is composed of the seven Court Presidents and the seven Courtier Executive Officers.

The men of Cary A returned in the fall eager to greet the new freshman members. The spirits of both the freshmen and the upper-classmen were heightened by winning first place in the Homecoming sign contest, with their own Lincoln Memorial, "Illinois' Only Glory." With this high honor behind them, all began work on the winter formal, which is one of the biggest functions of the year. In addition to all of the other extracurricular activities, including participation in intramural sports, Unit A managed to maintain during this past year the highest scholastic average of all the units in the Quad.

"All right, who has the axle?" was one of the many comments heard coming from the pits at the annual Cary tricycle race.

Winning second place in the all-campus Reisner Speech Contest in the fall gave the men of Unit B the incentive to work for bigger and better things. Many social functions were held this year including a Halloween party and several seasonal trade parties. At Christmas time the underprivileged children were entertained, and the men of Unit B and their dates celebrated the forthcoming gay holidays with a "come as you are" dance. The annual tricycle race found several members as eager participants. A strictly stag affair, Horny Holidays, and a spring dance ended the year's social events.

● Cary Hall

Trying for the second year as defending champions of class A basketball, Unit C activity participated in intramural sports. A trade party with the Saint Elizabeth student nurses and a fall hayride were among the season's scheduled social events. Christmas time brought a more serious mood, and the men of Cary C caroled at the local hospitals and orphanages. It was so inspiring that they decided to carol annually. To improve the hall this year, combination book shelves and coat hangers were provided to eliminate the disorder in the recreation room for the residents of Cary Hall.

Regardless of season, the recent song title, "Standing on the corner, watching all the girls go by," holds true at Purdue.

A display of sparkling trophies indicates the pride unit members take in participating in extracurricular competitions.

A whirl of activities was planned by Cary D this year, beginning with a Halloween party for Wood Hall. "Ghosts and goblins" provided the atmosphere for the evening. Aside from having a calendar of many social functions, members still found time for athletics and speech contests. Cary D has held the Reisner Speech Cup for the past five years and has taken the all-Cary sports trophy for the past seven. During the winter months, the men attended their team's basketball games regularly. Plans got underway early in the second semester for the Spring Formal and the pre-Prom reception.

● Cary Hall

From that first class in September to the last one in May, the halls of Northwest Cary never stopped echoing the sounds of our activities. Beginning with serenades to the freshman women and progressing to picnics, open houses and dances, our social program proved to be one of the best. Leadership potential was quickly recognized when the president, vice president and publicity chairman of Cary Club were elected from our unit. Others were selected for many of the honoraries on campus. Mother's Day, our final activity, made us all look forward to the time when we would return to Purdue.

Gay laughter, enthusiasm, music and dancing highlighted the trade party which opened our social season for the semester.

Often before an evening meal, we put aside our studies to relax and enjoy the music of our talented jazz enthusiasts.

Enthusiasm and spirit were initiated by our freshman-upperclass football game at the beginning of the semester. To further this spirit, many social events were planned. A roller skating party with Southeast X, a square dance with Wood Hall and a pajama party with Twin Pines were among those enjoyed by all. Open houses after the football games gave us a chance to gather informally with parents, dates and friends. The second semester found us busily planning for our Spring Formal. Soon afterward, the freshmen challenged the seniors to a softball game, and all supported the competition.

● Hall H-1

Our aims were high this year as we tried to retain the Hussars' Athletic Trophy, win again the intramural league trophy, and still maintain our superiority as champions scholastically. Highlighting our social events was our annual Halloween square dance at Cary Camp with Hall X. "Under a Polar Ice Cap," our formal dinner-dance in November, trade dinners and other parties rounded out an active social program. Our three-fold aim of having the best in athletics, scholarship and social life is the goal of all Hussars, and it makes us eager for the beginning of each school year.

"Get that rebound!" was among the excited cries heard from the sidelines as we tried for our second intramural trophy.

Members of Northwest worked under the chairmanship of Jim Myers while constructing their nebbish Homcoming sign.

Returning from summer leisure, we got started early on our signs for Homecoming and Dad's Day and had trade dinners with Northeast X and the Sigma Kappas. Planning for our January midwinter dance, we anticipated and found many unique costumes, inspired by our theme, "Suppressed Desires." The Turtle Derby found Northwest with four battling entries, including "Hussars' Charm." We joined with Southeast to produce an entry in the Go-Cart Race, while our officers held a spring picnic at Lake Freeman's Roth Park to plan for the coming year.

The bright faces of the underprivileged children at the Christmas party given by all of H-1 was typical of the cheer and good will so evident in our unit at Christmas time. The season was an enjoyable one for the people of the Old Soldiers Home and the nearby hospital patients when we caroled with Northwest X. Heading for the lakes in the spring and working on our cart for the Go-Cart Race, one of our major projects, proved successful and worth the time spent in making it. Dinner at the Trails before our yearly Spring Formal was a pleasant close to an eventful and memorable eight months.

This fortune-teller's future predictions seem quite amusing. Judy Lakemacher has the attention of everyone but a nebbish.

After winning this tug-of-war, the freshmen were permitted to discard their green pots for the remainder of the year.

Dinner after the freshmen-upperclassmen tug-of-war was an extremely happy occasion for the freshmen because of their victory. This win meant that they no longer had to wear their green pots to dinner each evening. This year in the unit we initiated a big brother-little brother system of counseling which helped to unify the hall to a much greater extent. During the year, we had several trade parties with other housing units and a trade dinner with Alpha Xi Delta sorority. A banquet for our mothers prior to University Sing was a gay beginning for the Mother's Day weekend.

As many of us were transfers from Cary Hall, we had several honors already to bring with us to our new building. In keeping with the time of year, our first trade party with Northwest X found us eating doughnuts and drinking cider. Football enthusiasm led to a replica of "the wall" as the Boiler-maker grid team, winning first prize in the pep rally sign contest which preceded the Indiana game. Charity participation included sponsoring a turtle in the Campus Chest Turtle Derby and purchasing the Alpha Delta Pi sorority's service of a Mexican Pinata Party at the Auction Benefit.

One poor unsuspecting freshman was greeted and welcomed by energetic upperclassmen at one o'clock in the morning!

Although this was our first year of participation in the Hall H intramural league, the men of Northwest demonstrated their athletic ability by gaining many of the top positions throughout the year. The proving of our prowess came with our winning of the sixteen-inch softball tournament within the hall league. Our list of trade functions included the usual hayrides, a decorating party and a somewhat unique "backward party," plus one function where we attended a convocation at the Music Hall with Northwest X. Afterward, we returned to the residence hall for dancing and refreshments.

● Hall H-2

Since this was the first year H-2 had been occupied, we began the school year by introducing our hall to the rest of the campus through an open house held in conjunction with H-3. During the weekend of the Purdue-Indiana football game, the units of H-2 combined for a trade function with the girls from Smithwood Hall at Indiana University. They were our guests for lunch before the game and were entertained with a dinner and dance in the evening. One of our biggest social events this year was our midwinter dance, "Snowflake Fantasy," which we sponsored jointly with the Courtiers.

The many interested students, faculty members and townspeople who attended our open house made it a big success.

Although the game of musical chairs caused much confusion, it also added laughter and gaiety to our Halloween Party.

Dunking for apples and dancing around the witches were among the activities planned for our Halloween party with Southeast X. The miniature golf course was the scene of an enjoyable evening with the girls of Southwest X, and the co-recreational gym was used for our splashing party with Warren Hall. At the beginning of school, we decided to have a scholarship dinner and panel featuring the outstanding students in our unit. In the spring we joined with the girls from Lucina Hall at Ball State Teachers College for a picnic at Turkey Run. Steaks were served and everyone had a wonderful time.

Northeast Excalibur Club's officers planned a well-rounded program for the members of our unit. A competitive sports schedule was arranged, and determination was strong to capture the participation trophy of Excalibur League. As the leaves began to fall, members and their dates departed on an old-fashioned hayride. Other social functions included a trade dinner with Northeast X and a pep rally dance with Alpha Delta Pi. Song sessions, pot and cord checks and raunch night were all among the several high points that helped toward making this year a wonderful and profitable one.

Cowboy outfits and gray flannel suits were among the varied costumes that Northeast men wore to their raunch dinner.

Relaxing and enjoying colored television with a favorite date was a very pleasant pastime for the coldest winter evenings.

Trying for unusual activities was the keynote this year to bring more unity to the hall. A unit yearbook, depicting the year's happenings on typical activities in the hall, was published for the first time. A colored television made our hall one of the most distinctive on campus. The men of Northwest became quite interested in various competitions held within our unit, the most popular of which were a bridge and chess tournament and a humorous pipe-smoking contest. One of our most important contests covered scholarship and served as a successful stimulant to raise the hall's index.

Along with the hectic rush of orientation, we had a steak picnic at Cary Camp for the purpose of having the big brother-little brother plan carried out. The big brothers are upperclassmen who are willing to help the freshmen throughout the year. Winning the trophy for twelve-inch softball was only one example of our athletic accomplishments. We invited both women's residence halls and co-ops over during the year for trade dinners. Spring found us decorating for our unit dance and planning for our annual unit picnic, after which spring fever hit in force and we settled down to await summer vacation.

Studying early in the semester seems rather useless, but as the time for tests approaches, we realize its importance.

Standing in line was a good way to make friends at the get-acquainted picnic of our unit at the beginning of school.

Winning the Excalibur-H League participation point trophy in sports last year gave us an added incentive to have another successful year in athletics. We began with the sixteen-inch softball tournament, but we put fall sports aside as we started practicing our Varsity Varieties act with Warren Hall. Our Frankie and Johnny theme, depicting an old time movie, was a lot of fun and rewarding as we made the final act. A "Snow Frolic" party with our neighbors, Kappa Alpha Theta, highlighted our social program. With the year drawing to an end, we made our final big project a successful spring formal.

After being inhabited for the last two years by coeds, Court I became living quarters for men once again. Interest in student government took form immediately in matters of finance and politics where we accomplished much through our united efforts. Our contribution to charity through Campus Chest also provided fun on the social side when we performed our service as waiters for a sorority. Dancing to the music of Buddy Morrow and his orchestra at our winter formal opened the second semester and was followed by parties and picnics which preceded the final event, our spring formal.

Greeting old and new members with a hearty handshake began an enjoyable evening of relating our summer experience.

Splashing around in the co-recreational pool was good exercise and a means of relaxing after the hectic campus activities.

After the round of cold shower surprises and shaving cream duels was ended early in the year, Frisby was unofficially chosen as our daytime sport. Aside from this, intramural sports gave us a strong competitive spirit and provided much opportunity for good fellowship. The visits of faculty members to our unit proved interesting and stimulating, as they seemed to provide an added incentive to study. The spell of the Christmas season was enhanced by united efforts to complete decorations for the house. Noteworthy of the spring semester were several formal dinners, including our scholarship banquet.

Picnics and parties in the fall temporarily interrupted our study habits, but we soon settled down to earn scholastic honor for Court III. The results of our endeavors were rewarding as we were presented with the Courtier Scholarship Award. In spite of our emphasis on academic achievement, we still managed to find time for a full social program including picnics, hayrides, bowling parties and convocation parties. Sports received its well-deserved boost with our perfect record in sixteen-inch softball which captured the crown and a record of five wins and only one loss in table tennis.

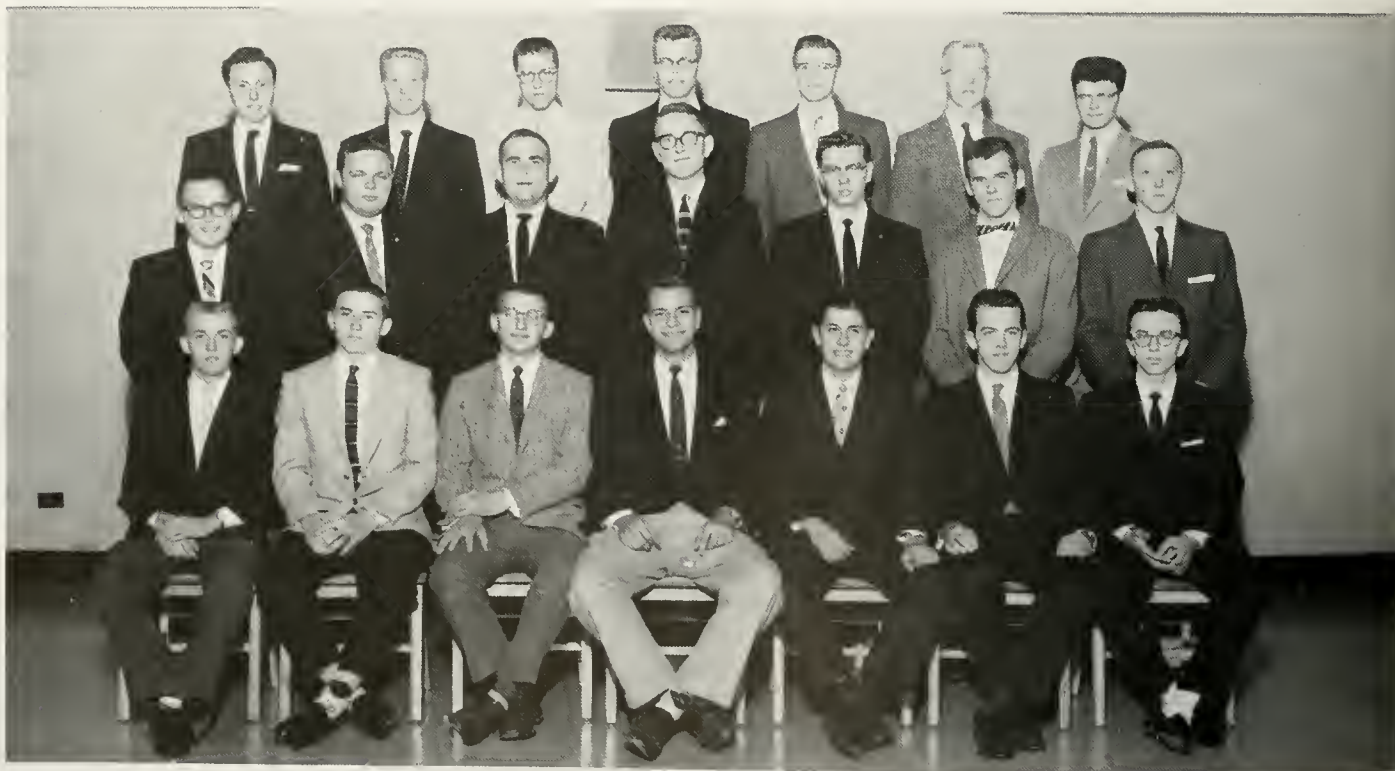

Although ironing shirts isn't the most pleasant task we've encountered, it's an experience that will not be forgotten.

Our fourth year of operation in the Courts brought several changes which included the soundproofing of our lounge and its division into a snack area, a television area and a section for committee meetings. Upon completing this new construction, we directed our energy toward the intramural sports program and finished the season with second place in tennis and fourth place in sixteen-inch softball. Because we were also interested in other campus activities and honoraries, we were active in Tomahawk, Purdue's All-American Marching Band, the Purdue Order of Zouaves and many others.

For the second consecutive year our Scholarship Awards Banquet was the highlight of our activities. Dr. Harold DeGross, Head of the School of Aeronautical Engineering, was our guest speaker while Mr. William Stielstra, Assistant Dean of Men, was honored guest. Our men further demonstrated academic interest when each of our six units invited a faculty member to dinner. A new tradition began with the awarding of a trophy to the student acquiring the most participation points in various sports activities. On the social side, we enjoyed recreational sports with the women of WRH.

Intramural sports were quite popular throughout the year. Our court participated in softball and basketball during the fall and winter, then turned to golf and swimming in the spring. The year was a social success with swimming parties, trade dinners, informal dances and the traditional Christmas decorating party. The festive spirit manifested itself with the caroling of our chorus under the windows of the women's residence units. In order to stimulate competition between units and to encourage academic interest, we presented an award to the unit with the highest scholastic index.

Table tennis, a popular pastime during study breaks, provides both competition and excellent means for relaxation.

For the second consecutive year Fowler House demonstrated its athletic prowess and scholastic ability by winning the all-sports participation trophy in the Gables-Courtiers intramural league and maintaining the scholastic leadership of all men's residence halls on campus. Fowler House operates as an honor hall in the Courtiers system with a committee of residents interviewing and screening all men who apply for residence. The center of Courtier activities, Fowler House contains the Governor's headquarters, Courtier offices, the dining room and WCTS, the Courtiers' self-operated radio station.

Working on WCTS, the Courtier carrier current radio station, provides present enjoyment and experience for the future.

Reamer pledges, who entertained with their skit in the Sweet Shop, were initiated early the following morning.

Promising to appear in the reflection pool if all of H-1 turned out for campus elections, Ian Lin kept his word.

The Executive Board of the Student Co-operative Association consists of representatives from each of the fourteen co-ops. Members pool their talents to coordinate the efforts of the four hundred students living in their respective houses. A new co-op was added this year and work is being done toward further development of new houses. The Venture, a monthly publication, keeps the members informed of special events, while the publicity chairman keeps outsiders posted on the functions of the SCA. Extensive athletic and social programs held this year helped to further their objectives.

Lynn Webster, President.

Too many cooks spoil the broth, but not when they are fixing a big lunch for thirty-three hungry girls at Ann Tweedale.

Winter was the eventful season for us this year as we started off our round of activities by joining Club 25 for a skating party. Christmas caroling with Delta Sigma Phi put us in the true Christmas spirit. We said good-bye to the friendly season with our annual Christmas dance and a party for underprivileged children. Interco-operative relations were strengthened through a trade picnic with Chauncey and Rochdale and a dinner with Fairway. A bowling party with State Street Court I and a Hawaiian party with H-1 closed our social whirlwind but made us anxious for another year to begin.

Alums who returned for Homecoming this year were honored with a supper after the game. Invitations had been sent, and we all enjoyed a delicious chili dinner. First item on our social log for the year was a wiener roast with Circle Pines followed by an unforgettable swimming party with State House and a trade party with Chauncey Co-op. Guests were invited to dinner on the Sunday before Christmas vacation, and after eating, we entertained a group of children with a party and gifts. Ending the social year was a costume party with Kneale House, a dinner with Fairway and an open house in May.

Dusting and cleaning are daily tasks which these girls take pride in performing to keep their house neat and presentable.

Shoemaker girls give a prospective member a peek into their scrapbook at the variety of house events in the last year.

A new white sign with bold black letters reading "Shoemaker" greeted us when we returned to school in the fall. Music and cards provided the entertainment for our pizza party with Stellar Brothers, and Halloween brought an unusual event in the form of an after-hours serenade to our neighbors, the Alpha Chi Rhos. A new fad of raising goldfish in aquariums was instituted at Shoemaker. Dinners with other housing units, including Cary, State Street Courts and Alpha Chi Rho, constituted many of our trade functions this year in addition to a combined picnic with Circle Pines and Chauncey co-ops.

Our first and main project for the year was the furnishing of our bumroom. We painted the walls beige and added early American maple furniture. Our activities list was headed by a trade party with FarmHouse. A western theme for our trade party with Rochdale prompted house decorations and the appropriate western costumes. The guest of honor at our Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners was our adviser who also attended the Christmas house dance "Mistletoe Memories." The activities list ended with our annual banquet at which awards were presented to outstanding members of the house.

Although the girls of Twin Pines plan their own house activities, they rely on the loving counsel of their housemother.

Hoping the bunted ball will get them a run and a possible victory is the thought in the minds of these Chauncey men.

The purchase of several new desks, installation of new closets and the redecoration of one room was completed during the summer. Upon our return, we discovered that our pet gray squirrel, Repeat, had left us. The memory of winning the softball tournament sponsored by the Student Co-op Association the previous spring was still with us, and we had high hopes of doing the same thing this year. Our social life in the fall included a Halloween party with Twin Pines and a wiener roast with Shoemaker. Aside from trade parties, the majority of our free time was spent building our second racing car.

Trade parties with the Phi Mu's and Glenwood came early in the year. The topping on our Homecoming weekend was our winning pep rally sign with Humpty Dumpty saying "That's the breaks of the game" to Illinois. We joined with Shoemaker to hear a very interesting Old Master which was followed by a party for both houses. The ballroom in the new Memorial Center was the site of our Christmas dance this year. The exchange of funny gifts typifying some peculiar characteristic of the recipient highlighted our Christmas party. Skits about our seniors' special traits were also given in the spring.

These industrious members of Circle Pines put up decorations for their trade party to lend atmosphere to the occasion.

The Co-Rec Gym was the scene of our first trade party which we held with Ann Tweedale. Sign building and the usual cleaning for guests accompanied Homecoming preparations. The visit of an Old Master and the discussion of his philosophies were both enjoyable and instructive. Our house dance "Starlight Rendezvous," held at Marshall's Starlight Room with dancing to the music of the Glenn Wright Trio, highlighted the fall activities. We met with Southeast X to entertain a group of underprivileged children from the surrounding area to celebrate the Christmas season and the spirit of giving.

The new room we built last spring proved its worth during the Homecoming and Dad's Day weekends for which preparations occupied most of our activity at the beginning of the year. Excitement ran high at our yearly basketball game with Delta Sigma Phi in which we competed for the trophy that had been in our house for two years. Spring brought trade parties. Terminating the year was our banquet held for the graduating seniors during which we presented awards for outstanding achievement scholastically and for advancement in sports. With summer vacation near, everyone was eager to return home.

It doesn't take long to find out studying can be impossible unless there is something that smells like food within reach!

September brought not only a new school year, but it was also the commencement of our first year in existence. Being the youngest co-op on campus isn't our only distinction. We are also the only house who has a grandmother as well as housemother. Mrs. Odessa Tynan is our housemother, and her mother, Mrs. George Stackhouse, is our grandmother. Homecoming brought the usual festivities of building a sign and entertaining guests along with our first trade party with Shoemaker and our second, a dinner with Ann Tweedale. Our first year proved to be a very enjoyable as well as productive one.

Adding to the excitement created by our rocket Homecoming sign's first place in the SCA sign awards, was the presence of over fifty alums, the best turnout in history, at our annual dinner. The bestowal of many honors upon individual members was also a source of some pride. One is being sent to Europe by the International Farm Youth Exchange, another has applied for a Rhodes Scholarship, and the 4-H Club is sending a third member to Washington, D.C. A senior dinner, the finale to the events of the year, was the scene of gift-giving to the house by the seniors who in turn also received gifts.

During the fall, the men of Kneale House spend many of their free hours engaged in friendly backyard games of horseshoes.

Frisby, a new family member soon to become master of the house, is welcomed enthusiastically by the men of Marwood.

Dunking for apples at the Halloween costume party with Shoemaker got our activities off to a good beginning. A picnic with Twin Pines followed. After being forced to heat our dish water on the stove, words fail to describe our gratitude at seeing our broken water heater replaced. A tea honoring our new housemother, Mrs. Lucy Roberts, was held early in the year. Our annual Frosh-Sophomore versus Junior-Senior football game coincided with the first snowfall, and a cold time was had by all. The return of warm weather permitted swimming and boating as entertainment for our regular spring picnic.

Scarcely before the excitement over taking second place in the SCA Homecoming sign awards had calmed, we began work in earnest on building our knotty pine bumroom. Our annual house dance with a banquet held before at the American Legion Lodge and a party with Shoemaker made up the Christmas festivities. Our dance with Twin Pines was rather unique, as it featured a cowboy and farm dance complete with decorations, costumes, square and round dancing. The seniors received their traditional farewell dip in the water at our annual house picnic which is held at the first signs of spring.

It's a familiar sight around the campus on sunshiny Saturday afternoons to see cars being energetically washed and shined.

A member of State House finds he is handicapped in a game of ping-pong when playing against not one but two of his friends.

The sixteen new members welcomed to State House last fall were barely settled before plans were begun for remodeling the kitchen. These plans became reality in the spring. A swimming party with Glenwood headed our social calendar, while the trophy awarded by Student Co-op Association for the men's co-op with the highest scholarship for the previous semester headed our academic achievements. A Christmas dinner provided an excellent opportunity for honoring our adviser and previous and present housemothers. The year closed with plans for greeting new members who will join us next fall.

With remodeling as the word for the day, we began an extensive "face lifting" program which effected a new porch, new siding and steps, sidewalks and a new sandstone wall. The Old Soldiers Home was the site of our first trade party, a wiener roast with Glenwood, and a dance party at the Co-Rec Gym with Northwest X was subsequent. A decorating party, at which time half of the house went to Twin Pines and half of the Twin Pines house came to decorate with us, ushered in the Christmas season. The spring ice cream social held for all the co-ops concluded another year at Stellar Brothers.

These industrious workers from Stellar Brothers find that the project of building a good retaining wall is a man's job.

These couples were among the first to arrive at a co-op house dance held in the ballroom of Purdue's new Memorial Center.

A group playing bridge is a typical scene at campus trade parties, and this co-op party seems to be no exception.

Putting up storm windows is a familiar sight at the co-ops as the threat of winter weather approaches each year.

SENIORS

Oh, to be a senior—the world in his hands, hope in his heart, and cockiness in his attitude. Seniors seem almost ready

Thomas Johnston Hall III

A student who learned what was necessary and then sought more.

A leader whose time belonged to those he led.

An appreciator of the works of authors, composers, artists.

A person sincere, warm.

A friend to all who knew him.

And to you, T. J., we dedicate our book . . .
